WEALTHY FRESNO WIDOW MURDERED

WAR RIFE IN BELFAST; BLAMED ON REPRISALS; IRISH ARMY SPLIT SEEN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BELFAST, April 2.—Four men were shot and killed and [illegible] small children were wounded last night in the Sinn [illegible] area near the Old Lodge road district. The ages of the [illegible] ranged from 40 to 63 years.

It was another grim week-end for Belfast. The shooting of the men is believed to have been in reprisal for the killing Saturday, of Constable George Turner, a regular policeman. The news of the shooting of the policeman spread rapidly and there were scenes of excitement on the streets. Later heavy rifle and revolver firing, punctuated with the shrieks of women and children was heard and shortly afterward the bodies of four men were taken to a hospital where the three wounded children also were conveyed. The father of the children, Joseph Walsh, was one of the men who was shot and killed. All the killings took place in the homes of the victims.

MURDERED IN HOME.

Walsh was lying in bed with the two younger children, and the bullet which killed him, wounded them. Two-year-old Bridget was shot through the head.

Frank Walsh, a son of Joseph Walsh, was stopping with his grandmother a few doors distant from the Walsh home. The grandmother's house also was raided.

The body of a young man was found lying in the road at midnight last night three miles from Newry. There were two bullet wounds in his head and a bicycle lay beside the body.

ORANGE HALL BURNED.

Orange Hall, near Newry, and close to the scene of the recent train-burning, was destroyed early today. Armed men ordered out the woman caretaker and her four children and threw out the furniture and set fire to the building.

At Waterford today, Protestant Bishop Millar of Cashell, speaking on the "terrible events in North Ireland," said he had consulted with the clergy and men prominent in all denominations who had voiced the opinion that "the names of Catholics and Protestants are being used in connection with some of the foulest deeds that have ever disgraced a country."

SPLIT IN IRISH ARMY.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

DUBLIN, April 2.—The serious extent of the split in the ranks of the Irish republican army was revealed today when from five Dublin battalions which had been ordered out to take a "new oath of allegiance or an oath with new implications," not less than 2000 men obeyed the republican appeal and marched to Smithfield. There, in the presence of Liam Mellowes, Roderick O'Connor and other noted heads of the republican movement, they took the oath of allegiance to free themselves from any other further responsibility to the Dail Eireann.

The extremists tonight expressed entire satisfaction at the response to their appeal.

A large crowd, including contingents from the women's organization, witnessed the parade of the

RADIO TOLL IS PLANNED IN GOTHAM

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—The [illegible] Telephone System will inaugurate a radio toll service in New York City within the next few [illegible], a second station will be [illegible] in St. Louis in May with [illegible] to as many cities in the United States thereafter as traffic warrants, it was learned today. The Bell Radio Service at first will be toll broadcasting. Of course, all radio transmission is broadcasting, inasmuch as the waves go in all directions, but the broadcasting in the new service will be for radio fans anywhere to pick up. It is understood that if certain experiments which are to be conducted with the toll apparatus are successful, a nation-wide Bell radiophone service will result.

These experiments will have to do with "announcing" and "entertaining" broadcast messages so that Bell telephone subscribers may talk by air anywhere in the United States with secrecy. It was said, however, that the Bell system has not in mind the use of the telephone for subscribers to receive broadcast radio programs as this would tie up telephone lines during program hours.

The new broadcasting toll service will be available for all uses except advertising. It is understood that political speeches are acceptable for transmission and that any business concern may [illegible] the utility for the entertainment of "the public on the [illegible]" being allowed a "by courtesy [illegible] announcement. Under the name of "public service radio station" the service will be available at all hours with Bell operators in charge.

STARTS THIS MONTH.

The service was to start April 1, but it is learned that there will be a few days delay, owing to the delivery of the antennae tower now held up.

Details of the apparatus, the height of the tower and other such information could not be had today, owing to the fact that the American Telephone and Telegraph Company has insisted upon the utmost secrecy until formal announcement is made. A reporter was in the reception-room, [illegible]-room and broadcasting-room of the Public Service Radio Station No. 1, this afternoon, where workmen were busy with final installations. The walls of the toll-room are being plastered with a special material, which will give the best acoustic effect. The transmitting board has already been set up in the broadcasting-room.

SEEK WAVE LENGTHS.

A. S. Griswold, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, in charge of wireless, could not be reached at his office today. It is understood here in Washington with experts of the Bell system, applying for several wave lengths for the exclusive use of the public service radio system. A licensed call number has not yet been allotted by the government.

J. W. Elwood, secretary of the Radio Corporation of America, when asked today why his corporation had not undertaken this domestic business, explained that the agreement between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Radio Corporation of America in 1919 had restricted in a division of radiophone and radio telegraphy fields, the latter corporation being given international communication between [illegible] and shore and between ships, while the telephone and telegraph corporation controlling the Bell system being limited to continental communication.

The public service radio system will be an outcome of this agreement, for if it had not been entered into either company could have obstructed the other, as each controls basic patents. The value of the agreement was the trading of patent licenses by which one company cross-licensed the other. It is understood that the fundamental patent in radio telephony held by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, this also including fundamental in long-distance wire telephony, covering the use of the vacuum tube by which the voice is amplified in long-distance wire telephoning and now in radio receiving and relaying.

QUIET DAY IN STRIKE OF MINERS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

The second day of the country-wide coal mine strike passed quietly with both sides preparing for the first test of strength, expected today.

Union officials maintained that 600,000 men, of whom 100,000 were nonunion miners, were idle Saturday and that 6200 mines were closed.

While not disputing these figures, operators declared many of these men would return to work today, as Saturday was observed as a holiday. West Virginia operators also were reported to be preparing to reopen unionized mines on an open-shop basis.

In the main, however, both sides were expected to observe a tacit truce, no effort being made for the time being to operate the mines.

EYES TURNED ON LEWIS.

Meantime, the eyes of the country will be turned on Washington, where John L. Lewis, international president of the miners, will appear before a Congressional committee to testify regarding strike issues. Governmental officials have held that only the existence of an emergency could justify government intervention and that such an emergency does not now exist.

Reports from most of the unionized fields indicated that Sunday passed quietly. In many sections an exodus from mining to other industrial districts had already begun and thousands more were expected to drift away from the coal fields during the week.

ASSERT STRIKE EFFECTIVE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The national coal strike is 100 per cent effective in the unionized bituminous and anthracite mines of the country and is getting support in nonunion territory, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, declared today on his arrival here to attend Congressional hearings tomorrow.

"There are 600,000 miners ready to stay out of the mines "indefinitely, until the operators are ready to discuss with us the question of new wage agreements in the central competitive fields," Mr. Lewis declared, adding that while the union "courted investigation of itself and the industry, it seeks no government intervention, but does ask for the support of public opinion in forcing the operators to continue collective bargaining with the miners over wages and working conditions."

EXPECTS EARLY PINCH.

Discussing coal reserves and the effect of the strike on the interests of consumers, Mr. Lewis strongly expressed his opinion that "a pinch would come earlier than expected." He declared nonunion mine production had been "greatly exaggerated" and that the operators had been more or less openly following tactics that "forced a strike so they could get higher prices and greater profits."

"There won't be a single man returning to work this week," Mr. Lewis said, "from the 600,000 men who went out. It takes a little longer in the nonunion fields for us to get the reports. In the West

Prefers Death to Unhappy Life; Is Killed by Suitor

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, April 2.—Mrs. G. R. Holstein, wealthy Mississippi widow, was shot and killed early this evening by J. O. Randol after she had refused to reconsider her decision not to marry him after a previous engagement had been severed due to Randol being arrested for being drunk on several occasions. Mrs. Holstein was the widow of a Mississippi physician and worth several hundred thousand dollars, owning 600 acres of land in the Southern State, a number of valuable diamonds and a large local bank account.

Letters found by the police and assertions of friends indicate that Mrs. Holstein had decided that she would rather be dead than marry Randol. Her friends also declared that she had said that fortune telling by cards had forecast her death by murder, a prediction her friends declared she firmly believed. She said in a notification, "In case something happens to me."

The tragedy occurred in a local hotel after Mrs. Holstein had made her decision choosing death to an unhappy marriage. After firing four shots into his victim's body Randol turned the gun on himself and fired a shot into his head.

He is at a local sanatorium in a precarious condition, with little hope being held for his recovery.

In a letter written to the landlady of the hotel where she had been stopping several days ago Mrs. Holstein said she feared her life was in jeopardy, as Randol had threatened to kill her several times.

WILL PUT ARBUCKLE ON STAND.

Comedian to be Heard in Own Defense; Case to Last Two More Weeks.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle is to take the stand in the next few days to tell his own story of the happenings at the Hotel St. Francis party, in which he is alleged to have fatally injured Miss Virginia Rappe, motion-picture actress, counsel for Arbuckle announced today. The Arbuckle trial, which is on a manslaughter charge in connection with the actress' death, is expected to consume at least two more weeks.

It will be Arbuckle's second appearance on the stand in the three trials of the case. He did not testify at the second trial, the prosecution reading his testimony in the first trial into the record and the defense considering that this was sufficient as far as his personal story was concerned.

Tomorrow's first witness will be Fred Fischbach, room-mate of Arbuckle during the party, whose cross-examination, begun on Saturday, will be completed, according to prosecution schedule. It was announced at the session Saturday that documentary evidence tending to contradict the testimony of Jess E. Norgaard, a prosecution witness, also will be introduced. Norgaard testified that Arbuckle attempted to bribe him to obtain a key to Miss Rappe's room in a Culver City studio of which Norgaard was night watchman.

NAB WHITE WIVES OF ORIENTALS

Ten Girls Are Arrested in Narcotic Raid; Valuable Drugs Found.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Detectives of the narcotic squad early today raided a Pell-street apartment-house where ten white girls are living as the wives of Orientals and seized opium and morphine valued at many thousands of dollars in the beautifully furnished apartment of the "Queen of Chinatown." The raiders declared they discovered one of the most important distributing centers for opium smokers in the tenderloin.

"Babe" Butler Chu, the "Queen of Chinatown," and her husband, Chom Chu, were arrested on charges of possessing narcotics.

Because of her attractiveness and display of unusually expensive clothing, Mrs. Chu has been known for years as the "Queen of Chinatown."

Deputy Police Commissioner Simon, who questioned the Queen of Chinatown, said Mrs. Chu displayed culture unusual for residents in Chinatown.

Mrs. Chu told Dr. Simon she had three apartments, two in the Pell street building and one in the vicinity of Seventy-second street and Broadway. One of the apartments of the "Queen of Chinatown" was used for her dwelling. The other, Dr. Simon said, was used for opium parties.

In police headquarters, Mrs. Chu sketched her romance. Seven years ago, when she was sixteen, she said, she met Chom Chu at the home of a missionary who worked among the Chinese. They have a 4-year-old daughter.

HUNGARY MOURNS CHARLES

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUDAPEST, April 2.—A telegram announcing the death of former King Charles in Madeira reached Budapest late Saturday night, but the news was withheld from the public until today.

The news of the death of Charles caused widespread feeling of regret among all classes. Even those who were opposed to the former King were moved to expressions of sympathy by the tragic and lonely end of his career.

STREETS PATROLLED.

As a precautionary move, mounted police patrolled the streets of Budapest throughout Saturday night and today, to prevent any untoward incident by royalist supporters. The government decreed today a day of national mourning. All theaters and other places of amusement were ordered closed, flags were at half staff and music was suppressed.

Admiral Horthy, the Regent, and Count Stefan Bethlen, the Premier, telegraphed condolences on behalf of the nation to former Queen Zita.

"The young King's life," said the message of Regent Horthy, "has been extinguished by unfathomable destiny. Hungary is profoundly grieved and shares his family's sorrow."

LEGITIMISTS ACTIVE.

"Prince Otto is the hereditary ruler of Hungary. This is the only legal way to view the situation," declared Count Albert Apponyi, former Premier, today. Count Julius Andrassy and Count Hunyady made similar statements, which seemingly confirm other statements that the legitimists are rallying around the eldest son of Charles. It is said that legitimist Deputies intend to move in Parliament a bill for the immediate return to Hungary of Otto and his education under Hungarian teachers.

While M. Banffy, Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated today that the political situation would not be changed by the death of Charles, many believe a possible compromise between those favorable and unfavorable to Charles has been facilitated by his death. The Monarchists express the hope that Francis Joseph Otto can be restored to his former rank, with the present regime continuing in power during the minority of the one-time heir apparent to the throne. In all events, the death of Charles is expected to exercise great influence in the elections in favor of the Hapsburgs.

AWAIT OPENING OF WILD.

The opening of the King's will is awaited with the greatest of interest, the people being especially anxious to obtain information as to the clause regarding the guardianship of 9-year-old Francis Joseph Otto.

The leading adherents of Charles will meet tomorrow. They have sent telegrams to the followers of

THIEVES LOOT GOTHAM HOME IN DAYLIGHT; GET BOOTY WORTH $90,000

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—The most amazing daylight robbery New York has known in years occurred today in the home of Albert R. Shattuck, retired financier, 19 Washington Square North, when four armed bandits overpowered Mr. and Mrs. Shattuck and their seven servants, bound them all with rope, locked them in a wine cellar and stole jewelry valued at $90,000.

The robbers ransacked the dwelling for an hour and a half, but as they were leaving, one was captured and, in an overcoat he had abandoned in his flight through Washington Square jewels valued at $20,000 were found.

The alarm was given by the butler, who freed himself from his bonds and, running to a neighbor's house while the thieves were still at work, telephoned the police.

The police arrived as the four robbers were leaving. They scattered as they fled, pursued by hundreds in the square. Three escaped.

HOLD UP SUGAR TRAIN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.) April 2.—About forty bandits, armed with rifles and revolvers, held up the Chicago-bound Yonkers sugar special train on the New York Central early today about eleven miles east of here and, after ordering the train crew to disconnect the engine and drive a mile up the tracks, looted more than two dozen of the cars. They then discovered they had held up the wrong train and, after firing a volley of shots in the air, escaped in six automobiles. Eight posses are now searching for the bandits. The searchers have orders to shoot the bandits on sight.

WIRES ALL CUT.

Before the train was held up every telephone wire in the surrounding country had been cut. Following the hold-up the train crew was delayed more than an hour in notifying the authorities.

The robbers were after the silk and money train which leaves New York City every night at midnight except on Saturday night, when it leaves at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning.

When the sugar train reached Chelsea, the engineer brought his long train to a stop when a red signal was shown.

Immediately the bandits swarmed aboard the train. Under threat of death the entire train crew was ordered into the engine or to sit on the tender. Four bandits stood guard over them as the engineer was ordered to drive up the tracks for about a mile. The rest of the bandits remained to rifle the cars.

About an hour later several shots were fired in the air and the four bandits who stood guard over the train crew, taking the red signal, ran back to the cars. Fifteen minutes later a volley of perhaps fifty shots was fired at the engineer and train crew by the bandits as they climbed into several automobiles and disappeared.

NAVY FOES HAMMERED; CITE FACTS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The forthcoming fight in the House over the proposal of the Appropriations Committee to reduce the Navy personnel to 65,000 promises to be a spectacular battle.

Representative Rogers, Massachusetts, came out today with a broadside against the recommendation, which he said would reduce America to a position inferior to Japan in the 5-5-3 ratio provided in the Navy limitation treaty and make the United States a third-rate naval power.

MADDEN'S REPLY.

Representative Madden, Illinois, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, says he will demonstrate that 85,000 men are all that are needed to man the ships the Navy intends to keep in commission and to operate shore establishments. He asserts that the data supplied by Secretary of the Navy Denby shows that the ships slated for retention in commission can be manned with 83,000 men.

While Denby contends that 96,000 men are indispensable to maintain the Navy without impairing the 5-5-3 ratio, Madden says he will show that there are 20,000 men "lost somewhere in the Navy" whom the Secretary was unable to locate to the satisfaction of the committee.

"I wonder if the people of the United States realize what a Navy of only 65,000 enlisted men means to the nation," said Representative Rogers. "It means that we can maintain in commission only twelve capital ships, instead of the eighteen allowed the United States by the naval treaty of February 6; and I think it was generally supposed that when the United States agreed to reduce its capital ship force to eighteen it was making a very considerable sacrifice which was nationally permissible only because the other world powers also were limiting themselves in proportion. Now, with the ink scarcely dry upon the naval treaty, it is proposed to reduce the eighteen capital ships to twelve.

CHANGES WHOLE RATIO.

"It means that instead of the 5-5-3 ratio established in the naval treaty we shall have with the new fiscal year a 2½-5-3 ratio with the United States representing the 2½, Great Britain the 5 and Japan the 3.

"It means that in point of naval effectiveness the treaty ratio of 5-5-3 is cut exactly in two so far as the United States is concerned, the other powers of course remaining undisturbed.

"It means that the United States automatically becomes the third naval power of the world instead of one of the two powers pre-eminent in naval strength.

"It means that the United States will stand before the world self-convicted of insincerity. The world thought and this country thought, that we were sincere in proposing a drastic cut in our naval force, far below what we would have contemplated had not the other naval powers agreed to make corresponding reductions. Now we propose to turn about and cut the Hughes irreducible minimum in half, in spite of the fact that our naval rivals are naturally proposing to maintain their navies up to the exact treaty quotas.

ABANDON PROGRAM.

"It means that we shall have to abandon our great program of education and betterment for the enlisted men of the service and to pare down ruthlessly every naval activity.

"It means that we shall have only two navy yards on the Atlantic Coast—and that neither of these will be at Boston or Portsmouth.

"It means that we shall not have a single capital ship defending the Atlantic Coast. Every major vessel of war will be in the Pacific.

"It means that a policy of 'crippel and scuttle' is to prevail in our first line of national defense.

"The reductions in our Army appropriations, under the bill passed by the House of Representatives, were unspeakably bad. But the naval reductions now proposed are infinitely worse."

LAST YANKEE DEAD HOME.

Nation Joins in Tribute to Men Whose Bodies Have Long Laid in France.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Arrival of the last of America's 70,000 war dead was commemorated in Brooklyn today.

One body, that of Private Charles W. Graves of Rome, Ga., symbolised, for the time, the bodies of the 1065 soldiers which were returned from France last week on the United States troop ship Cambrai.

Amid the hushed vastness of an Army pier, his 1064 silent comrades, in long, unbroken ranks of flag-draped caskets, maintained the bivouac of the dead, while sorrowing thousands of high and low degree paid the last respects of a grateful nation.

His body, enthroned on a gun caisson and drawn by six horses, had been borne through the ranks of silent multitudes. Stern generals had saluted the flag which wrapped him. Hundreds of his comrades had marched beside him. Guns had boomed in his honor, statesmen had eulogized his deeds, mothers had wept over him and "taps," the soldiers' farewell, had given him Godspeed.

The body of Private Graves had been chosen to receive the honors of the day because he, of the 1065 aboard the troop ship, was the last to be taken from the hold and placed on his native soil.

Private Graves's body, in a gray steel casket, was mounted upon a horse-drawn gun caisson at the Army base. Before the caisson rode a detachment of mounted police.

BELGRADE, April 2.—Continuous heavy earth shocks are occurring throughout Serbia. More than 100 houses have been destroyed and many others damaged.

The monetary loss up to the present time is estimated at 30,000,000 dinars. (Normally, the dinar is worth 19½ cents.)

QUAKE IS RECORDED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2. — An earth movement of pronounced intensity was recorded this afternoon on the seismograph instruments at Georgetown University. It lasted from 2:47 to 3:22 p.m. and was estimated to have been centered about 3000 miles from Washington.

LATE MORNING NEWS

Ex-Empress Zita May Now End Exile

PARIS, April 2.—The resolution of the ambassadors' council exiling Charles to Funchal having been directed only against the late Emperor personally, ex-Empress Zita and her children will now be free to leave Madeira and choose a new residence.

Man Killed in Fall to Bottom of Shaft

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2. — Charles Coleman, address unknown, fell from the fourth floor to the bottom of an elevator shaft in a local office building some time yesterday and lay with a fractured skull and a broken spine for twelve hours or more before he was discovered by the night watchman early today. He died a few hours after being taken to a hospital.

Mother and Children Perish in Fire

CUMBERLAND (Md.) April 2.—Mrs. Albert Logsdon, 28 years old, and three of her children—Agnes, John and Raymond—aged 11, 8 and 6 years, respectively, were burned to death Saturday night when flames destroyed their home, located on a farm about two miles from Mt. Savage, Md. Mr. Logsdon and two sons—Leo, 15, and James, 13 years old—escaped by jumping from a window.

Train Hits Automobile; One Man Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—One man was killed and two seriously injured when their automobile was struck by the Southern Pacific Lark at the San Bruno crossing, south of here, tonight. San Mateo officers said the machine bore a license registered to a San Francisco cleaning establishment. The gate at the crossing was out of order and a watchman had been stationed there. He reported that many of the Sunday motorists had disregarded his warnings and crossed in front of approaching trains.

Mexican President Comments on Recognition; Denies Knowledge of Doheny Oil Deal.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICO CITY, April 2.—President Obregon, in an interview today, attributed stories of the favorable attitude in Washington toward recognition as due to the fact that improved conditions in Mexico are becoming better known to the American government. He said conditions were steadily growing better for an understanding between the two nations.

When questioned about De La Huerta's movements, the president said that Huerta would return to this city. He attributed President Harding's statement that he would receive De La Huerta in Washington as a courtesy one government shows to another.

When asked the meaning of his statement to the newspapers that he is a revolutionary, he said that he is working under revolutionary constitution laws for the good of the country, and he is not a soap box revolutionist. He stands for law and order. The red trouble makers in Guadalajara will be imprisoned and the leaders expelled from the country. He denied that the Mexican government favored Catholics in any way, the laws of the country prohibiting the recognition of religious bodies and sects.

He denied that he knew anything about the heralded Doheny oil deal and stated that he had no relations with Mr. Doheny. Mr. Doheny reached Mexico City yesterday and if he pays a visit to the President he will be received.

Regarding the accusations of graft in the department of agriculture, a new man will soon be appointed.

Regarding the return of railway stockholders, he said the government had spent millions in the reconstruction of roadbeds and in replacing rolling stock and buildings. The rolling stock is now in better condition than it has been for years.

Portuguese Airmen Start Second Jump.

QUIET DAY IN COAL STRIKE.

Walkout to Furnish Test of Union Strength.

Operators Expect Many to Return to Work.

Only Emergency Will Cause Government to Act.

Virginia panhandle, for instance, right along the Ohio line, there are about 5000 or 6000 men in nonunion mines for whom meetings are being held today. There are meetings here and there in nonunion territory all over the United States today. We'll get the regulars later. In the union territory we know what happened; the operators aren't even going to try and run the mines."

Taking notice of the suggestion by Chairman Borah of the Senate Labor Committee that the government ought to inquire further into the situation, Mr. Lewis remarked that he was "afraid nothing much could be done with the operators."

"Every attempt has been made to get them to meet their obligations to continue collective bargaining with us," he continued, "and I assume they will maintain their refusal, no matter who tries to get them to confer. We stand ready, now as ever, to enter any conference with them to discuss the terms of a new wage contract which will allow us to resume work.

"If the miners today were occupying the position of refusing to discuss a wage contract, as the operators are, they'd be morally castigated by all the citizenship of this land.

"Although the operators regard each other as competitors," Mr. Lewis said, "and are not acting in concert, we know that we cannot get a general wage scale without unity of action in the central competitive field, because a difference of a cent a day in wages means cents per ton in the selling price of coal, makes turmoil in markets, and closes up old mines to open new ones.

"Still, they were a unit in wanting suspension," he continued. "They had loaded up all the big consumers with coal on a strike scare, and held up the market prices while the loading was going on. Now they think that if they're shut down long enough there'll be a scarcity and a runaway market. Their disposition made the strike inevitable."

EXPECTS SETTLEMENT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUQUOIN (Ill.) April 2.—A prediction that a partial settlement of the coal strike in Illinois will be brought about despite any existing "four-State agreements," was made today by Dr. A. E. Fyke, president of the Marion County Coal Company, and a prominent mine owner in the Southern Illinois field. Dr. Fyke, whose company owns the Chicago Glen Rose mine, located at Centralia, based his prediction on the belief that whatever strength the union possesses in the Western Pennsylvania fields will soon disintegrate, resulting in a return to normal production in that region on a nonunion basis.

"When that happens the logical sequence will be almost immediate feelers thrown out by Illinois union chiefs looking toward a getting together with the Illinois operators," said Dr. Fyke.

Dr. Fyke laid the principal blame for the big tie-up on the refusal of the Pennsylvania operators to meet union heads in conference. Illinois mine heads, he said, throughout the controversy, assumed a much more conciliatory attitude toward the union leaders than the Eastern owners. The situation in the East forced John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Frank L. Farrington, State president, into a corner where they were, from their standpoint, compelled to call the national suspension, was the opinion of Dr. Fyke.

WILL LAST ALL SUMMER.

That the big 100 per cent tieup in the State will most likely persist throughout most of the summer, even with a separate agreement as the final outcome, was the opinion expressed generally by both operators and union leaders throughout the Southern Illinois production district today.

DETAILS STILL LACKING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) April 2. Definite details of the effectiveness of the union coal miners' nationwide suspension of work, begun yesterday on a miners' holiday, were expected to be developed tomorrow, but doubt existed in union circles here whether the full extent of support given the walkout by nonunion workers would be established before the middle of the week.

Confidence, however, was expressed at the headquarters here of the United Mine Workers of America, that the suspension would be shown as complete as on the opening day, when President John L. Lewis, estimated that 600,000 men had laid down their tools as a means of forcing the operators into acceptance of the miners' terms for a new wage contract.

One Man Dead, Four Missing in Hotel Fire.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HAZELTON (B. C.) April 2.—Frank Walsh of Vancouver, B. C., is dead and four other persons are missing as the result of a fire which early today destroyed four buildings here, including the Hazelton Hotel. Search is being made for the missing, but little hope is entertained of their being found alive. The property loss is estimated at $65,000.

The fire, which was first noticed about 2 o'clock this morning, started in the Hazelton Hotel, a two-story frame building. By the time the fire department arrived, the building was ablaze from top to bottom. The fire spread to the hotel stables, a Chinese cafe and the residence of L. A. Graeff, government telegraph operator, all of which were destroyed.

Walsh was a traveling salesman for a Vancouver, B. C. hardware firm. He was occupying a room in the hotel.

RETAIL FOOD COSTS ARE SLIGHTLY LOWER.

LABOR DEPARTMENT REPORT SHOWS DECREASE OF 2 TO 3 PER CENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Food costs at retail continued to decrease in all of the sixteen principal American cities where observations are maintained by the Labor Department in the month ending March 15, according to the monthly report issued today. The average of decline amounted to .3 per cent in Detroit, Philadelphia, Rochester, Salt Lake City and Scranton; 2 per cent in Norfolk and San Francisco, and 1 per cent in Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Little Rock, Louisville, Mobile, Minneapolis, New Orleans and St. Paul.

For the year ending March 15, 1922, the department placed the total decrease in retail food prices at between 8 and 16 per cent, according to locality, but estimated that cost still remained 20 to 40 per cent above 1913 levels.

Prize Play Produced.

BOILED BY BEER PRICE ADVANCE.

Bavarians Do Not Want to Pay Twelve Marks for Quart.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, April 2.—As a result of the dollar being worth 300 marks everything is increasing in price in Germany. The Bavarians are aroused over beer going to 12 marks a quart. The Reichstag proposes doubling postage rates. Taxes are thirty times more than they were before the war and tomorrow the prices of food will be increased about 25 per cent. Hotels are charging more than 1000 marks a day for ordinary rooms.

BLACKMAIL TRUST GETS MILLIONS.

No Rich Man or Woman Safe, Says Head of Famous Detective Agency.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—More than $3,000,000 a year is being extorted from wealthy New Yorkers by a national "blackmail trust," W. Sherman Burns of the Burns Detective Agency said today.

Men of national prominence are being victimized. The "trust" is operating all over the United States and its total annual loot is "simply appalling."

Burns asserted that the amount of money obtained by blackmailers almost equals the annual harvest of all the highwaymen, burglars, pickpockets, train robbers and postal bandits in America combined.

"Blackmail is the big crime in America today," said Burns. "The facts of these cases are not published; the police hear of scarcely 10 per cent of them.

"A list of the recent victims would contain names of national prominence; its publication would create the greatest sensation this country has ever known.

"More blackmailing is going on today than any time in my knowledge, and it is not safe for a man or woman of wealth to make a chance acquaintance in any of our large cities. The most innocent meetings may be made the basis for demands for great sums of money.

"The amount that is daily wrung from the pockets of victims in this country is simply appalling."

Cape Verde to Secure Relief from Portugal

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

LISBON, March 10.—The Portuguese government is taking steps to relieve the economic distress in the Cape Verde islands which last summer were famine stricken in consequence of the drought which had lasted for three years.

The Minister of the Colonies has instructed Filip Dias de Carvalho, the new Governor of Cape Verde, to undertake an elaborate program of humanitarian relief work. This will comprise harbor-construction work at St. Vincent and improvement of other ports, irrigation of the islands, establishment of regular steamship lines between Lisbon, Cape Verde and Guinea, and erection of a wireless station at St. Vincent.

Credits are to be opened for the islanders to pay for these improvements, for a complete cleansing and disinfection and for a thousand tons of corn lately purchased to feed the starving inhabitants of Archipelago.

LINEBERGER SEEKS VETERANS' HOSPITAL.

BUREAU TO CONSIDER SITES FOR MILLION-DOLLAR INSTITUTION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Congressman Lineberger, following a conference with Congressman Osborne, has taken an aggressive course to secure the location of the new tubercular hospital for the veterans of the World War in his district. He had a conference today with Col. Forbes, director of the Veterans' Bureau, and urged upon him the advantages of the climatic and other conditions in the Ninth Congressional District. He ascertained from the official records that approximately 70 per cent of all the soldiers treated for tuberculosis by the Veterans' Bureau are in Southern California, an even higher percentage than he at first deemed possible.

Col. Forbes advised him that the Veterans' Bureau wanted a site of from fifty to 100 acres and would consider locations in Monrovia, near Arrowhead or at Sawtelle, and that of the $1,000,00 available for such hospital $500,000 would be invested in a fireproof building and a similar amount in equipment, grounds and planting. If the government is to erect such a hospital on other than government ground, it wants a free site if possible and will give precedence to the community making the best offer under the general requirements stated above.

Col. Forbes informed Congressman Lineberger that if the hospital were to be erected without delay those proposing free sites should make their plans known at once, as the commission to locate these hospitals expects to leave Washington in a few weeks.

SIXTEEN ENTERED IN FARMINGDALE MEET.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FARMINGDALE (N. Y.) April 2.—Baseball and track are now occupying the attention of the students at the State Institute of Agriculture and plans are formulated to make this the greatest year in the athletic history of the institution. Twenty-eight men reported to Coach Follett on the first call for baseball practice, and the prospects look particularly good for the coming season. Five of last year's regulars are back in line and George Van Pelt, 1921 football captain, will lead the nine.

Rapid progress is being made in the plans for the annual track and field meet for the high schools of Suffolk and Nassau counties which will be held on the Aggies' field on May 13. Sixteen of the high schools have signified their intention of entering the meet. They are Islip, Rockville Center, Freeport, Glen Cove, Lynbrook, Southampton, Lindenhurst, Hempstead, Huntington, Sea Cliff, Lake Grove, Port Washington, Sayville, Riverhead, Lawrence and Patchogue.

VERDICT FOR LOSS OF DOG.

Alaska Huskies Said to Have Died of Neglect While Under Attachment.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEVADA CITY, April 2.—Sam Malotto, Alaska dog driver, has been awarded a verdict of $845 by a jury in Superior Court here against William Boettcher, constable of Truckee, on the allegation that three of Malotto's husky dogs had died of neglect while held by Boettcher under attachment. The case had been pending for two years.

A previous verdict for $900 damages was set aside by the court.

Charles throughout the country to be present.

Most of the newspapers today are black-bordered.

AUSTRIA SILENT.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

VIENNA, April 2.—No official recognition of the passing of former Emperor Charles thus far has been given by the republic. Neither half-masted flags nor the customary display of sable bunting were to be seen in Vienna today.

The absence of the aristocracy from the usual Sunday resorts and a large increase in the attendance at the churches were the only private evidences of recognition of the death of the last Hapsburg ruler.

The voluminous obituaries and appreciations of the former Emperor-King which fill the press today are colorless but kindly. They dwell on the virtues of Charles as a man, husband and father, but excuse him as a statesman; for being well meaning, but an unfortunate ruler called to the throne at a time when greater men than he could not have done more for the people. The circumstances of his death in exile and poverty elicit a note of pity.

ENTENTE ACCUSED.

The Monarch Reichspost accuses the Entente as being directly responsible for the death of Charles by exiling him to the tropic island of Maderia. The Socialist Arbeiter Zeitung speaks of Charles as "a man from whom God visibly has withdrawn his hand, allowed to wander in exile and called before Him before his allotted span of years."

There is considerable speculation as to whether Zita, the widow of Charles, will attempt to take up her residence in Austria, inasmuch as the banishment decree against Charles includes neither Zita nor her children. It is pointed out, however, that even Zita, if she returns, would be compelled to sign the oath of renunciation for herself and children as regards accession to the throne which Charles refused to sign. Even the Socialist newspapers offer no opposition to the return of Zita.

The general belief prevails that the body of Charles will lie with his ancestors in the Church of the Capuchins.

SERENE AT END

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

FUNCHAL, Madeira, April 2.—"Oh, God, Thy will be done. Into Thy hands I commit my soul and the care of my wife and children. I offer Thee my life as a sacrifice for my people."

Thus spoke former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary, serene and calm, at the moment of his death.

The body of the former Emperor-King, dressed in the campaign uniform of a field marshal, lay today in the Chapelle Ardente of the house that has been his residence since he came to Madeira in exile. After it had been embalmed, the body was placed in a leaden coffin with an outer shell of mahogany. The bishop of Funchal said mass in the mortuary chapel today and the local authorities made calls of condolence.

On Tuesday, the body will be removed to a private chapel in the cathedral pending transfer to a mausoleum in the cemetery of Monte Campo.

It was learned today that Charles had been ill for ten days before a physician was called to attend him.

TROUBLE FEARED AT ARGENTINE ELECTION

GOVERNMENT TAKING ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS FOLLOWING DISORDERS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUENOS AIRES, April 2.—Elaborate precautions against disorders today, when Argentinians will go to the polls to elect a new President, have been taken by the police and military authorities in view of Friday night's riot and panic during a parade of the Radical party. Revolvers were used freely during the disturbance, causing the death of two persons and the wounding of more than a score. The campaign has been marked by considerable violence.

There are four Presidential candidates, Marcello T. de Alvear, Radical; Norberto Pinero, Concentracion Nacional; Nicolas Repetto, Socialist, and Carlos Ibarguren, Progressive Democrat. The result probably will not be known before a month.

It will be the second Presidential election under the secret, compulsory voting law and the first in which the direct personal appeals to the people, American fashion, have been made by the candidates.

Many political observers believe that notwithstanding Senor Alvear's absence from the country, his election is a foregone conclusion, as he is the candidate of the party in power.

LAST YANKEE DEAD HONORED

Nation Joins in Tribute on Arrival Home.

Services Held in New York Are Impressive.

Thirty-fourth Infantry formed a cordon of honor. Behind them marched the honorary pall bearers: Commodore Robert P. Fossew, Brig.-Gen. Charles I. de Bevoise, Franklin W. Ward, Palmer E. Pierce, James W. Lester, De Witt Weld, William Weigel and Capt. James Vogelsang.

Hundreds of flag bearers followed, holding aloft the many colored emblems of 150 organizations that had seen service at the front. With them, in platoon formation, marched regiment after regiment of soldiers, sailors and marines. Swelling the procession were thousands of members of the American Legion, veterans of foreign wars, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, and women veterans of the Red Cross and welfare services.

As the funeral cortege neared Fort Hamilton Parkway, Army and Navy bombing planes swooped over the caisson, releasing flowers over the bier of Private Graves and almost obscuring the huge wreath of roses which President Harding had presented in behalf of the nation.

With the flowers, the President sent this message to Col. E. A. Simmons, master of the ceremonies:

HARDING'S MESSAGE.

"You and your assistants are going to voice the last testimony of love and affection from living comrades for their dead. You may be very sure that the whole nation will re-echo your sentiments and feel with you the common pride and common sorrow—pride in the glorious service and historic achievement of these, our brothers, who freely gave all exacted of them.

"They have set for all of us the perfect example of service and sacrifice and it is well through this tribute to remind the nation of its eternal obligation to prove worthy of the devotion its sons have shown for it.

"Already, in the light of the morning of hope after the storm, we descry very real justification for trust that a sadder and wiser world will find means to save the future from repetition of the tragedy wherein they played so noble a part.

"Let us unite in faith and work for such a consummation. That would be the sincerest testimony that we fully appraise their sufferings and sacrifices."

Formal services over the body were held in the gray-walled inclosure of the Army base, where chairs had been placed for 5000 gold-star mothers and their escorts.

Notables of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, with governors, Senators, Congressmen and bishops, occupied the speakers' stand. These included Assistant Secretary of War J. Mayhew Wainwright, Vice-Admiral Hilary P. Jones, commander of the Atlantic Fleet, and Maj.-Gen. Lejune, representing the Marine Corps.

SOBS BREAK STILLNESS.

Only the occasional sobs of bereaved mothers, widows and fathers broke the stillness while the program was in progress. And when, at the close of his address, Assistant Secretary of War Wainwright bowed toward the flower-decked caisson and said, "Heroic dead, we salute you. Sweet be your deathless sleep. You live with the immortals. Hail and farewell," a score of women fainted and were carried from the scene by soldiers.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the body of Private Graves was returned to the shed where waited the 1064 comrades.

Tomorrow will begin the consignment of bodies overland to the twenty States whence the men whose names the caskets bear enlisted.

OPERATION WOULD HAVE COST LIVES.

SEPARATION OF "SIAMESE TWINS" IMPOSSIBLE, X-RAY SHOWS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, April 2.—Any operation attempted on the "Siamese twins," Josefa and Rosa Blazek, who died last week at the West End Hospital, to separate the bodies would have resulted in their immediate death.

X-ray photographs, taken after the bodies had been removed to the undertaking rooms, showed one continuous U-shaped spine and many intermingled organs would have necessarily been severed to separate them.

George W. Brady, radiograph expert, who made the plates, declared that intestinal obstruction was the real though unsuspected cause of their deaths. While they were yet alive, he said, this examination was impossible because of their weakened condition.

Reading the evidence of the radiographs, Mr. Brady went on:

"The bony structure of the twins is extremely unusual. There is virtually only a single pelvis, with four acetabula or hip-sockets. The spines start from the pelvis in a cow-horn shape, with the two spinal cords adjoining at the center."

Moreover, the evidence of the radiographs scouts the general belief that Franz, the 11-year-old boy, was the son of Rosa Blazek.

"It is extremely improbable that there ever was a normal childbirth," said Mr. Brady, "as the shape of the pelvic structure would require a Caesarian operation. No scar tissue can be seen to indicate that this operation was ever performed."

battalions, but gave no demonstration of sympathy beyond their presence.

CAMPAIGN CONTINUES.

The campaign of election oratory continued today. Eamonn de Valera addressed a demonstration at Dundalk. Referring to the new peace pact, he said that already in North Ireland it was regarded as a scrap of paper.

Michael Collins spoke at Castlebar. He also alluded to the new agreement which he declared opened up a new era in the northeast and added immensely to the prospects of a union between the north and south. That prospect, he said, would become almost a certainty if the people could reach an understanding among themselves. An appeal was made by Mr. Collins for consideration of this point by the followers of De Valera.

BARNYARD SCENE OF SUNDAY JAG.

HILARIOUS ANIMALS SHATTER USUAL SUNDAY QUIET IN NUTMEG STATE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WATERBURY (Ct.) April 2.—This section of the Nutmeg State has not been as shocked in years as it was today by the goings-on in the Mike Antan barnyard near Mohawk Park. Wildly hilarious turkeys, geese, sheep, cows, pigs and chickens staggered and flopped about, cut up de-dads most unseemly, shattering the Sunday quiet into the merest bits.

A flock of white geese honked uproariously—from a position of doubtful comfort and utterly lacking in dignity, on their backs. One bleary-eyed rooster attacked a drunken billygoat that didn't have a leg to stand on. Antan's four cows chewed their cud as though their tongues were just a bit too big for them.

It all happened because prohibition agents raided Mike's farm day before yesterday and found six huge stills in full operation. They spilled 800 gallons of mash in the yard, confiscated 100 gallons of raw moonshine and slapped Mike into the lock-up.

Neighbors took pity on his stock when Mike couldn't show up this morning and turned the hungry animals out to pasture. The animals, their appetite whetted by the abnormal fast, made a bee line for the mash.

ART THOMPSON GETS UNEXPECTED TROPHY

When Art Thompson won the finals in Dryborough cup tournament at The Flintridge Country Club he not only won possession of the big beautiful trophy for the year, but also received a beautiful cup which he is to keep permanently.

When Mr. Dryborough put up his trophy for competition it was with the understanding that it had to be won three times before it became the permanent possession of the winner, and then he surprised the club by presenting the company with another lovely cup for winning the first leg on the big cup.

Semenoff Here to Seek Support for Rebellion Against Lenin and Trotzky; Some Cash Needed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Gen. The General carries with him a huge portfolio of documents purporting to be petitions from villagers in Siberia which, he said, would have him present their plight under Bolshevik rule to the world at large, and more particularly to all Russians opposed to the regime of Lenine and Trotsky.

TIME FOR ACTION.

"The time is ripe for action in Siberia," Gen. Semenoff said. "The people there are sick unto death with the present form of government, and it will take only a little encouragement to have them rise and overthrow the Bolsheviks. That encouragement can be best given in the form of relief funds for the amelioration of their present economic difficulties. Once the Siberian people are convinced that they have the support of anti-Bolshevist Russians throughout the world they will have the courage to drive out the Reds."

The General explained that he was seeking no funds for himself, but that he would appeal to Russians of all political beliefs in all the world centers to help for the peasants of Siberia.

NAME CREEKS WHICH FORM TRIPLE DIVIDE.

ONE FLOWS INTO HUDSON BAY, ONE TO PACIFIC, OTHER TO GULF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Recent action of the United States Geographic Board in naming three small creeks in Glacier National Park rising at the intersection of the north and south and east and west continental divides, the Atlantic, Pacific and Hudson Bay creeks call attention to the fact that the only triple divide mountain in North America is located within the park's borders.

From the summit of triple divide mountain one can toss a pebble into the waters of streams flowing into the Hudson Bay, the Gulf of Mexico, and into the Pacific Ocean. The creek names bestowed by the Geographic Board are therefore particularly appropriate. These new names as well as numerous other changes to bring it strictly up to date appear on the new topographic map of Glacier Park, just issued and for sale by the Geological Survey. ASK CHANGE IN SUGAR DUTIES.

Final Appeal is Made by Western Senators.

Protection is Sought for Beet Industry.

Tariff Bill to be Reported to Senate Soon.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Republican Senators from Western States have joined in a final appeal to the Senate Finance Committee for a reconsideration of duties on sugar.

The western Senators, who are interested in the protection of the beet sugar industry, have urged the Finance Committee to increase the duty on sugar from Cuba to 2 cents a pound, which would mean 2.5 cents a pound on full duty sugars. The Fordney rates on Cuban sugar are 1.6 cents a pound with a duty of 2 cent on full duty sugar.

Those joining in the eleventh-hour appeal to the Finance Committee were Senators Gooding of Idaho, Nicholson and Phipps of Colorado, McNary, Oregon; Bursum, New Mexico; Oddie, Nevada, and Shortridge, California.

HOPE FOR REVERSAL.

Inasmuch as the Republican members of the Finance Committee approved the Fordney rates by a vote of 5 to 4, the western Senators have hopes that a reversal of the action may be a possibility.

Although the Finance Committee failed to report the long awaited tariff bill to the Senate during the last week, as promised, there seems but little question that it will be compelled during the coming week. The bill is likely to come out of committee about Thursday. It will be taken up on the floor of the Senate within a few days thereafter.

With the exception of a few items, the committee has disposed of questions relative to duty. Administrative sections, including flexible tariff provisions and the basis of valuation, are to be determined upon this week. The bill may be entirely completed within a day or two. While formal action as to the basis of valuation remains to be taken, the Senators appear to take it for granted that the bill will be reported with ad valorem rates on the foreign valuation basis and that this will help to expedite action on the floor of the Senate. The final controversy over the question of American valuation will come after the bill reaches the conference stage.

Senator Frank A. Gooding said the tariff bill "will protect agriculture and industry alike, not only in the West and South but in the East and North."

"SARGE PLUNKETT" DIES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) April 2.—A. M. Weir, known for his newspaper articles under the pen name of "Sarge Plunkett," died yesterday at his home in Decatur.

Pacific-Southwest Review

By Jay Spence

Vice President and Cashier, Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank.

Jay Spence

One of the most important factors in making of the Pacific Southwest an economic entity has been the development of a great commercial telegraph system in this district. The large expanse of this territory has been closely drawn together by the network of wires making possible the transaction of business with ease and speed.

The extent to which money is transferred over the wires of a particular city or town is an excellent index of the business activity of a district. The importance of Los Angeles to the Pacific-Southwest, and of that vast empire to Los Angeles is evidenced by the fact that more money is received and sent from Los Angeles telegraph offices than is the case in any other American city with the exception of New York.

It would seem that Los Angeles as the financial center of the Pacific Southwest is in keeping with her position as the commercial and industrial center.

In order to render more and better service to its customers, the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank and The First National Bank of Los Angeles have organized telegraph and cable departments in which all the telegraphic business is handled by experts devoting all of their time to this work.

By using codes for the sending of messages involving the transfer of funds, a considerable saving is possible and this saving increases as the amount of money to be transferred and the distance increases. The banks transfer money by cable or telegraph to practically every point of North, South and Central America; Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia.

The general public, and especially customers of the banks, are invited to avail themselves of the facilities of the Telegraph Departments.

These Departments are equipped with all of the important commercial codes such as Bentley's, Peterson's, Leibers, Western Union, etc. The private code of the American Bankers Association is used by over 15,000 banks in the United States, and in addition to possessing this code, the telegraphic departments have private codes for the use of the banks' correspondents in the United States and abroad.

All messages sent are indexed by days and also alphabetically so that reference to any message may be had very quickly. Telegrams sent at night cost considerably less than if sent during the busy hours of the day. A further saving is realized by utilizing codes,—which in no way sacrifices clearness.

The banks' Telegraph Departments are open for the transaction of business from 8:30 A.M. to 5 P.M. every business day, with the exception of Saturday when the departments close at 1 P.M. The codes and services of the departments are available at any time during these hours.

NOTAS LOCALES.

La Reine de "Italia Chica."

Una fiera reyerta por el amor de María Monini, 797 New Depot street, la "Reina de Italia Chica," fué lo que originó, según dice la policía, una contienda a balazos en el barrio Italiano, anoche. Después de meter a la cárcel a tres individuos, que parecen ser los líderes de la tremolina, "Italia Chica" estuvo tranquia ayer. Después de una larga conferencia en la oficina de detectives, en el curso de la cual los presos y sus amigos prometieron arreglar sus diferencias y ya no disparar más, la policía soltó a los jefes del motín, en la tarde, mediante fianzas. Estas fueron de $100 cada una.

Autos que Matan y Mutilan.

Accidente tras accidente ocurrió ayer durante los paseos dominicales de imprudentes automovilistas. Los resultados líquidos han sido la muerte de un hombre y llamadas a las ambulancias para que transporten lastimados a los hospitales del Condado y de la Ciudad. La víctima que perdió la vida por atropello ha sido parcialmente identificada como el Sr. C. Goggins, del 219 Grosse Building. Fué encontrado en la calle Figueroa, entre la Once y la Doce, después de que varios automóviles habían pasado sobre su inerte cuerpo, sin que los conductores, al parecer, hayan reparado en él. Había pruebas de que un coche había chocado contra él, despues de media noche.

Son Baratos Los Pasajes de Tranvías.

En una prueba presentada ayer, en la segunda audiencia del caso del Pacific Electric en Hollywood, la Comisión de Ferrocarriles del Estado declaró que los pasajes de tranvía en California son, sin excepción, los más baratos de los Estados Unidos. La Comisión había enviado un cuestionario a 100 de los principales ferrocarriles eléctricos del país, y recibió datos de 79 de ellos; entre los cuales, doce tienen pasajes de 10 centavos; uno, de 9 centavos; quince, de 8 centavos; treinta, de 7 centavos; doce, de 6 centavos; y nueve, de 5 centavos. La mayor parte de las ciudades que enviaron informes, especialmente las que tienen los pasajes más altos, hacen un descuento cuando se compran billetes en cantidad. En algunos casos, se carga extra por las correspondencias (transfers.)

Pide Ayuda Para la Cruzada Contra el Vicio.

El Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor de la Iglesia Bautista Temple, excitó a los ciudadanos de Los Angeles, ayer, a que ayudasen en la campaña contra el vicio y el crimen. ¿Es acaso cierto, dijo en el curso de su sermón, que nuestra moderna sociedad, como el templo fabuloso de los Mexicanos, debe edificarse sobre una capa de hombres y mujeres vivos, que se le arrojan como cimiento? ¿Es parte indispensable de nuestro progreso materially de nuestra asombrosa civilización que estén acompañados de vicio y de crimen, de bebida clandestina y de juego, de absoluta irreligión y de incurable inmundicia? Por lo que a mí personalmente toca, no creo en la doctrina fatalista de que los bien conocidos vicios de las grandes ciudades sean inevitables e imposibles de abolir.

DEPORTES.

Carreras de Autos.

Tommy Milton ganó ayer la serie de carreras cortas en el autódromo de Los Angeles, venciendo a Jimmy Murphy, hasta la línea de llegada, por un cuarto de milla próximamente. Llegó en tercer lugar Harry Hartz, y Pietro Bordino arribó cuarto.

Golf.

El torneo de golf de invitación del Country Club de Virginia fué ganado ayer por W. W. Campbell, en el Country Club de Los Angeles, donde derrotó a Horace T. Major del Club de Beverly, por 8 contra 7.

Tiro de Pichon.

"Scotty" Walch se llevó ayer los honores en el tiro de pichón del club de escopetas de Los Angeles, con un total de 98 por ciento.

Carreras de Caballos.

Coffield gano ayer en Tijuana la carrera de una milla; Motor Cop llegó segundo; en tanto que Muliciber, la sensación de este año, alcanzó tercer premio.

Soccer.

Los once de Pasadena ganaron ayer la copa trofeo Spalding, en el parque Maier, batiendo al equipo de soccer de los Hijos de San Jorge.

ROOSEVELT DEATH DRIVER IS HELD.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Davis Zalky, driver of the municipal bus that is believed to have killed Robert B. Roosevelt, Jr., second cousin of the late Theodore Roosevelt, late Friday night, was arraigned today in West Side court and held without bail charged with homicide.

The defendant's attorney pleaded more than fifteen minutes for bail.

"There are too many of these accidents," Magistrate Cobb said, "too much criminal negligence on the part of drivers. The victim in this case was a fine young man in possession of all his faculties and the evidence such as it is, is sufficient to warrant my holding the defendant."

The defendant will not be released, it was said. If he has any witnesses he may bring them into this court next week when the examination will be held.

AGED MOTHER AND DAUGHTER HELD.

MUST ANSWER CHARGE OF POSSESSING PART OF STOLEN PLATINUM.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—A mother 72 years old, Mrs. Rose Weiler, and her daughter, Katie, 31, were held yesterday to answer a charge of possessing part of $80,000 worth of platinum stolen from a government powder plant at Jacksonville, Tenn., two years ago.

Both women fainted when bail was fixed at $10,000 for the mother and $5000 for the daughter by Judge Chatfield in Federal court, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Weiler of Maspeth, L. I., is the mother of "Spanish Joe" Weiler, believed to be a member of the band which stole the platinum. He is said to be in prison now in New York county.

Meyer Ripstein is held in Nashville and the wife of "Spanish Joe" in West Virginia on the same charge, Federal agents said.

The chemist who substituted clay in bottles for the platinum in the Old Hickory powder plant at Jacksonville is serving fifteen years in Federal prison. Part of the stolen platinum is alleged to have been hidden in the Weiler home. It is estimated that $40,000 was realized from the theft.

BETTER BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS SEEN.

IMPROVEMENT IS NOTED IN FARMING INDUSTRY, SAYS STATEMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Acting Director Davis of the War Finance Corporation, in a statement today, noted "marked improvement in the condition of the agricultural industry and a better outlook for business generally," on the basis of April 1 reports from corporation agencies.

"Live stock producers and farmers generally," the statement said, "are reported more confident because of improved market conditions. Bank deposits have increased in many agricultural communities and the country banks are generally in a stronger position than for a long time. Best of all, confidence is returning, and with it the trend of business is toward a restoration of more normal conditions."

Up to March 31, the statement said, the corporation had approved loans aggregating $322,325,697, of which $214,187,761 was to banks, $58,387,816 to co-operatives and $50,250,120 for export purposes.

WYOMING FOR RIVER COMPACT

Willing to Compromise on Colorado Project.

Commission Adjourns to Meet Next Summer.

Study of Situation Urged by Secretary Hoover.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHEYENNE (Wyo.) April 3.—Wyoming is anxious that the Colorado river commission write a compact governing the waters of the Colorado river and suggests that the compact could be agreed to by the seven States through which the river flows on allotment basis, witnesses from Wyoming told the commission at a hearing here today.

After the session, the commission, which has been holding hearings in the west since March 13, disbanded. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce and chairman of the commission, departed for Chicago and the rest of the commissioners tonight were en route home.

In his final statement to the commission, Secretary Hoover said:

HOOVER'S STATEMENT.

"With this meeting the present session of the commission will stand adjourned. It is proposed that the commission will reassemble some time in the latter part of July or early in August at some point in the basin, by which time it will have been possible to have digested and come to some conclusions with respect to both facts and opinions that have been presented. It appears to me that some four or five different principles for the formulation of a pact have been advanced, and we have heard a vast amount of argument pro and con. Out of these principles somewhere we should be able to formulate some sort of an agreement.

"I think every member of the commission realizes fully that this is no argument between seven men—that this is an agreement between seven States and the national government; that each member of the commission only represents what may be the concensus of public opinion in those areas, if we are to secure the ratification of such a pact. It, however, requires that public opinion in each one of the States shall be enlightened and it will require time in which to do it.

LACK OF UNDERSTANDING.

"There is a sad lack of understanding of even the most fundamental engineering facts in the relation of the upper basin to the lower basin. There is a general tendency even on both sides to obstruct by mental deliberation the importance of engineering facts, as they lean both ways, or either way; but in time the relative weight of the rights of each of the States, the relative weight of the different engineering principles involved, the relative weight of the different legal processes that may follow from failure to make a pact, will all contribute to drive these States together with the national government to some solution.

PRAISES HOSPITALITY.

"Before adjourning, I wish to express the obligations of the commission to the people of the six States that we have visited for their hospitality. We are especially obligated to Gov. Carey, to Gov. Shoup, to Gov. Mabey, to Gov Mechem, to Gov. Campbel and to Gov. Boyle, and I wish to express my personal obligation to my fellow members on the commission for the fine spirit that they have shown and the great ability that they have brought to bear on this problem, and I am confident that with a representation of this character we will be able to present some sort of a pact in simple terms that will promote the development of the Colorado River Basin."

Frank Emerson, State Engineer of Wyoming, addressing the commission, pointed out that it was impossible to do anything without compromise.

"Insofar as Wyoming is concerned," said Gov. Carey, "we desire to protect our rights. We have a great responsibility, for we are deciding this important question of water not for today but for all time to come. On the other hand, Wyoming is willing to accept a fair compromise. We want results from the commission. We will do anything to bring about an agreement."

AGAINST HASTE.

N. E. Corthell, attorney of Laramie, reviewed the history of the law of water, and suggested it was inadvisable for the commission to act hastily. He declared the building of dams on the upper reaches of the river would be of great benefit to the lower basin.

Chairman Hoover took issue with Corthell about the desirability of storage on the upper river.

"Storage capacity," said the chairman, "of the upper basin is insufficient. Everything points to the lower basin as more desirable for storage."

Gov. Emmett D. Boyle of Nevada questioned W. F. McClure, California's member of the commission, as to the amount of lands California could irrigate. Commissioner McClure declared California now has 461,000 acres under irrigation and 458,000 acres additional are irrigable, making a total acreage in California involved in the problem of the river's waters 939,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3. When Bert Kahn, brother of Congressman Julius Kahn, quit the United States customs service here fifteen years ago because he thought the compensation too small he declared he would not return to it until he could come as appraiser of the port of San Francisco. Yesterday he was sworn in as appraiser. He started in the service in 1903 as an unclassified laborer.

HAIL HOUGHTON AS PEACE AMBASSADOR.

GERMAN PRESS PLEASED WITH REMARKS; PROMISE HEARTY WELCOME IN BERLIN.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BERLIN, April 3.—The remarks of Alsson B. Houghton, American Ambassador to Germany, on the occasion of the farewell dinner tendered him last week prior to his departure for Berlin, are given unusual prominence by the German newspapers. Some of the newspapers hail Houghton as a "peace Ambasador" whose sentiments accord him a "hearty welcome."

The Lokal Anzeiger, the Industrialist organ, says:

"The new Ambassador's utterances afford a pleasing contrast to the hateful and venemous forensic products of some of our other former foes. We trust Mr. Houghton will be able to carry out the White House policies which were reflected in his declaration."

"Mr. Houghton's words," says the Vossische Zeitung, "may count on a favorable reception, not only because of their sympathetic sentiments, but chiefly because of the fundamental significance involved in the positive manner in which he rejects discussion of the question of war guilt as expressed in the Versailles Treaty. We may not be able to agree over the issues of the past, but this should not prevent an understanding on the problems of the future."

HEARTFELT DESIRE IS FULFILLED.

Aged Ojibway Squaw Sees First Airplane Shortly Before Death.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAULT STE. MARIE (Mich.) April 2.—A droning airplane, cruising high over Sugar Island, fulfilled the wish that lay nearest the heart of Mrs. John Whalen—christened Wahsaya-O-ge-ban-anquet—a member of the Ojibway tribe of Indians, who died recently at her home on the island near here. She was reputed to be 119 years old.

Mrs. Whalen had never been more than 100 miles from home, and she died within a stone's throw of the spot where she was born.

One day last summer, a seaplane on its way from Lower Michigan to Batchewana Bay, winged its way almost directly above her lodge. Children playing outside, called her attention to it, and with many exclamations of pleasure, the aged Ojibway watched the craft until it had disappeared in the distance. This was her topic of conversation for days, although her auditors were far more interested when Mrs. Whalen would relate tales of the early days in Michigan; the bloody tribal conflicts, and all the century-old folklore.

She spoke of the "Walk-in-Water," the first steamboat to appear on the Great Lakes in 1818, and would tell of the coming of the railroad, but all these things to her mind were trivial compared with the wonders of an airplane.

Of her eleven children, only two and these beyond the allotted "three-score and ten," are still alive.

TWO IMMENSE TIMBER DEALS CONSUMMATED.

MORE THAN 900,000,000 FEET INCLUDED IN CONTRACTS SIGNED IN WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HOQUIAM (Wash.) April 2.—What is said to be the largest deal ever consummated in the timber business on Gray's Harbor was completed here when William E. Boeng and associates of Seattle sold 600,000,000 feet of timber at the head of the Hoquiam River to H. J. Miller of the Miller Lumber and Logging Company of Everett for a consideration said to have been over $2,000,000. The Timber is mostly fir.

A second big deal in timber was negotiated this week between the government and M. R. Smith & Co. of Seattle, whereby 305,000,000 feet of timber in the Indian Reservation, north of here, was sold at a price said to have been approximately $650,000.

SENATE TO TAKE UP BONUS BILL SOON.

WAY LIKELY TO BE CLEAR FOR CONSIDERATION NEXT WEEK LEADERS DECLARE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator McCumber, North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, stated tonight that the soldier bonus bill will be taken up for consideration by the committee as soon as the tariff bill is reported to the Senate. As it is planned to report the tariff bill this week, the way will be clear for consideration of the bonus bill next week.

It is possible the bonus bill will be passed by the Senate before the tariff bill is debated, Senator Watson, Indiana, is in favor of rushing the bonus bill to the Senate within the next two weeks and then allowing the Senate to decide which measure it will consider first. Anti-bonus senators would fight for immediate consideration of the tariff bill but will be defeated for they do not number more than a score, according to Watson.

Charges that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States manipulated its recent referendum on the bonus are contained in a letter which every Senator has received from John Thomas Taylor, vice-chairman of the legislative committee of the American Legion.

RUSSIAN REFUGEES HUNGRY, HOMELESS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—A vivid description of the problem of caring for Russian refugees who are pouring into Constantinople is contained in a report of the situation by Mrs. Foster Stearns of Boston, wife of the secretary of the American Embassy in Constantinople, made public at American Red Cross headquarters.

As executive secretary of the Constantinople chapter of the American Red Cross, Mrs. Stearns took an active part in the work of aiding the refugees. At present, according to Mrs. Stearns, there are some 3600 children in Constantinople without proper care and nourishment, despite the fact that the chapter has already helped 4443 individuals directly and some 10,000 more indirectly.

"It is almost a super-disaster," said Mrs. Stearns, "this crowding into Constantinople of thousands of hungry and homeless. Our money has been spent largely for transportation and to furnish the means by which these brave people try to earn a living. We buy tools, small stocks of postcards or cakes for them to sell, or a musical instrument to play in a restaurant. While some of them succeed in finding work of one sort or another, others do not know where tomorrow's bread is coming from. The economic condition in Constantiople is so chaotic that there is little work to be had."

COLLECTIVE BUYING IS AIDING FARMERS.

SHOWERS INTERFERE WITH PLANTING OF COTTON IN SOUTHEAST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) April 2.—Collective buying of fertilizers in the Southeast is helping to solve one of the most difficult problems of the farmers so far as the production of cotton is concerned. It is reported ni many districts that a saving of 30 per cent is being made through this collective buying for cash. Many farmers who have failed to satisfy obligations hanging over from last year are pooling their money and buying fertilizers in quantity. This has operated to stimulate the fertilizer business and to put into circulation money which has been in retirement for months. Bankers report that whereas the demand for money is usually heavy in the spring there has been a decided slump in requests for loans this year.

Intermittent showers occurring almost daily have interfered ously with the planting of c and it is believed this will re curtail acreage and permit ers to engage more extensi production of grain and crops. As a money crop it garded as certain that the will place greater depend peanuts than ever many districts quantities nuts are being sowed on a anteed price of $50 a ton product.

AMERICA NOW WORLD BANKER

Leading Investor in Foreign Enterprises.

World Owes Us Over Fifteen Billions.

United States is Garnering Profits Abroad.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, April 2. — A forthcoming publication of the Federal Reserve Board will disclose how completely the United States has taken the place of Great Britain as the world's banker, the leading investor in foreign enterprises.

In addition to the $11,000,000,000 war loans by the United States to the Allies, private American capital has advanced $4,000,000,000 to foreign borrowers since 1914. With trade credits taken into account it is estimated that the world owes us between $15,000,000,000 and $18,000,000,000.

Time was when the United States was a debtor nation, with England and other foreign nations heavy investors in our enterprises. Now we are a creditor nation and garnering profits abroad.

More than $2,000,000,000 of American capital is now invested in foreign enterprises paying dividends of hundreds of millions of dollars and the volume of American investment abroad is increasing daily.

BALANCE OF TRADE.

The balance of trade in favor of the United States represents a continuous credit piled up in foreign countries to the order of American manufacturers, farmers and exporters. That item alone represents a loan that totals many millions at any given time. Although foreign buyers are continually making payments to cut down their indebtedness, neat credits are being piled up on new business.

The billions, more or less, permanently invested in foreign countries, place the United States in an advantageous position to increase its export trade. Foreign purchasers flow to the country which loans its dollars to build and operate factories, railroads and industries generally.

American dollars are now building meat packing plants in South America, cement factories in China, knitting mills and machinery to operate in Japan, municipal docks in France, street car lines in Switzerland and railroads throughout Europe.

MILLIONS INVESTED.

Millions are invested each month in the United States in bonds and other securities offered for sale by foreign governments and foreign municipalities. The investment houses of Brazil, Argentina and Uruguay are sending to the United States generous portions of all the government issues given them for discount. Canadian cities depend upon investors of this country, rather than those of England, to take a large share of their school and municipal bonds. Listed in the New York exchanges are the bonds of a dozen foreign cities and governments. The French government recently sold $500,000,000 worth of its post-war bonds in the United States and is preparing another big offering. German bonds are being bought heavily as a speculation by thousands of Americans.

Stocks of British industrial concerns until the recent rise in the exchange rate of the pound sterling had a wide sale here. This was because by cable ordering American investors could take advantage of falling exchange to buy at unusual bargains stocks of reliable, long-established British railroad companies, mines and manufacturing concerns as well as shipping companies.

During and after the Civil War when the dollar was quoted at low rates on the international exchange markets, the investors of England and Europe laid the foundations of many of the present-day large fortunes by judicious investments in American industrial and transportation stocks and bonds.

At the outbreak of the great war these securities began to flow back to America in payment for gigantic exports. It is estimated that within a few months Europe returned to America more than $2,000,000,000 of securities. These were absorbed by American investors in addition to the $2,000,000,000 now owing to this country by private capital abroad.

FIND REMNANTS OF OLD WRECK.

Cannon Found in Lerwick Harbor Believed to be Dutch.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 11.—Remnants of a wreck believed to date back to a Dutch-Spanish battle in 1641 have been brought to the surface by salvage workers in Lerwick Harbor.

Four ancient cannon, each seven feet long, with a three-inch bore, have been salvaged, and these have been supplemented by massive oak timbers, which are in a good state of preservation.

It is believed that the wreck is that of a Dutch warship, which, with three East Indiamen, was attacked by ten armed ships of Dunkirk (then Spanish) in Bressay Sound, on June 13, 1641.

Tried to Steal Purse in Church; Woman is Held

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2. — Mrs. Catherine Fitzhugh was held without bail yesterday, accused of attempting to steal the handbag of a woman at prayer in church. Eight witnesses appeared to testify against her in the West Side court, where she was found to have a criminal record.

Mrs. Fitzhugh's father was William Bruce Fennell, who at one time ran for Governor of Virginia, and she married one of the "fighting Randolphs of Virginia," according to a Washington attorney. She has had a varied matrmonial career, and was once confined in a Washington insane asylum.

The charge under which she was held today is that of attempting to steal a bag and its contents, worth $60, from a pew of the church of St. Mary the Virgin. The complainant was Mrs. Fannie J. Gray. Mrs. Fitzhugh has been arrested upon similar complaints and has been convicted of grand larceny and disorderly conduct, according to the police.

ESCAPED PRISONERS JAM IN VENTILATOR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BALTIMORE, April 2.—Six prisoners, two of them serving life sentences, made a break for liberty from the Maryland penitentiary last night and were recaptured only after five of them had remained wedged tightly in a ventilator atop the institution for more than four hours.

The fifth was captured when he fell from the roof, fifty feet below. It was necessary for firemen to saw the iron ventilator apart to extricate the imprisoned men.

SANTA CLARA COUNTY FESTIVAL OPENED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN JOSE, April 2. — Bright sunshine ushered in the twenty-third annual Santa Clara county blossom festival in the presence of thousands of persons at Saratoga yesterday.

An address by Gov. Stephens, a musical concert by the College of the Pacific chorus and orchestra, a radio concert and athletic contests were features.

SITUATION IN FIUME IS SERIOUS

Hostile Attitude Taken by Zanella Being Resented in Italy.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, April 2.—The Fiume situation is getting more complicated. Riccardo Zanella, who is presiding over the majority of the Fiume assemblymen in Jugo-Slavia territory, is taking a more hostile attitude toward Italy, and is threatening to call on the little entente for aid. The Foreign Office states "Italy will observe rigorously the Rapallo treaty and it will recognize any government that is supported by a majority of Fiumans, but negotiations for the organization of such a government must take place in Fiume and not in foreign territory. Italy will not consent to interference by the little entente."

The Nationalist leaders declare if M. Zalenia is re-elected President trouble will start again, because the Fiuman Fascisti and Nationalists, though not forming the majority, will never allow M. Zanella to rule the city.

ADMIRAL COLBY TO REVISIT OIL FIELDS.

VALUABLE PROPERTY WAS CLAIMED FOR UNITED STATES YEARS AGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. N. retired, has sailed for Turkey to re-visit oil fields worth $500,000,000 which he examined and claimed for the United States during President Roosevelt's administration, Henry Woodhouse yesterday told the Foreign policy association.

The oil fields which have been the subject of many conferences in Washington and European countries, are in Mesopotamia and Great Britain has also claimed them.

In May, 1921, Admiral Chester, in a conference with Secretary of State Hughes, said that all rights in the fields, together with permission to build necessary pipe lines, had been given to the United States during President Roosevelt's term, but just before the United States started development the war broke out and the oil fields were deserted. This trip to Turkey is made on the invitation of Kemal Pasha, Mr. Woodhouse said, and Admiral Chester will renew the claims of this country to the oil fields.

STUDY PRACTICAL CANAL AIR ROUTE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—War Department experts are hard at work on practical routes to be followed by planes of the Air Service in the proposed flights from the United States to the Panama Canal. The route most favored at present, it was said, is one from Florida to Havana, thence to a point in British Honduras, Yucatan or Costa Rica and then to the Canal Zone.

Such a route, it was said, would give a minimum of flying over the Gulf of Mexico, and would be the most direct air line to the canal. Consent of the British and Mexican governments would be necessary before American planes could be landed in their territory.

HORSE SHOW IS HUGE SUCCESS.

Santa Barbara Event Closes in Blaze of Glory.

Pasadena Steed Carries Off Dealers' Blue Ribbon.

Army Men Thrill Spectators With Daring Stunts.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 2.—What the Santa Barbara Horse Show lacked in attendance today it made up in enthusiasm, for those attending witnessed what they say was about the best afternoon of the show, which closed tonight. The equine classic was pronounced a big success. Features of the day were the hurdle mounting by horses ridden by Miss Esther Hammond of Montecito, the appearance for the first time on the Coast of "Liberty Bond," a noted stallion from the F. W. Matthiessen's stables, said to be Mr. Matthiessen's particular favorite, and the way Sinbad, a Matthiessen horse which has been one of the sensations of the show, made good while the band kept the arena vibrating with music.

Yesterday Sinbad lost the blue ribbon because he could not stand the music of the band. Today with the same selection pulsating the horse went through every pace set.

ARMY HORSES FEATURE.

The Army horses again today were an outstanding number of the program. The service men put on a bareback riding exhibition and threw many thrills into the afternoon.

A horse from the stables of Revel English, Pasadena, captured the blue ribbon in the dealers class, while "Major" from the Tom Mason stables, Santa Barbara, carried off the red. George Mc, also a Tom Mason horse, took the yellow ribbon. Mrs. Courtney of Montecito rode Major in this event. In the owners' class, Mavis, which has been a consistent winner through the show, took the blue ribbon. Mavis is owned by Mrs. Roth of San Francisco.

Bunker Bean, from the Hammond stables at Montecito, carried off the red, and Black Dare, gelding, owned by Mrs. George J. Panarte of San Francisco, took the yellow.

EXHIBITED IN PAIRS.

Exhibition of riding horses in pairs was a feature, two horses from the Matthiessen stables taking the blue ribbon, while Mavis, a San Francisco favorite, and her mate took the red ribbon; the yellow went to Black Dare and another northern horse.

In the officers' mount class, Blackie, owned by Arthur E. O'Gilvy of Santa Barbara, captured the blue ribbon, the red went to Colonel, owned by H. A. McDonald of Montecito, and the yellow went to General, a horse from the Matthiessen string. General was ridden by Mamor Meyer, decked up in an officer's finery, and made quite a show.

It was in the championship five-gaited contest that Sinbad made the big hit, with his conquering of music. This is the competition for the Ambassador system challenge cup open to geldings or mares that have won first or second prizes in two other classes. This cup must be won three times before it can be his property. Sinbad won the trophy in 1920, but lost last year to Cochette, from the Revel English stables, but taking the cup today puts Sinbad close up to the trophy ownership. Lady Sensation, of the Thomas Jefferson stables at Beverly Hills, captured the red ribbon.

STAGE PUSH-BALL TILT.

In the combination class, Miss Triumfo, from the Matthiessen stables, took the blue ribbon shown to a vehicle and judged suitable for harness purposes; also shown under saddle at walk, trot and canter. A horse from the Revel English string took second prize and Iola Chieftain, from the Matthiessen stables, took the third.

With Bunker Bean and Ben Bolt, the Hammond stables at Montecito took first place in the pair of jumper class, Miss Hammond riding Bunker Bean and Miss Peterson Ben Bolt. Bounder and Drift, two geldings from the Revel English string, took the red ribbon, and Lieut. P. A. Noel, Eleventh Cavalry, carried off the yellow.

A push-ball game between an Army team and a team composed of local horsemen developed thrills and was won by the Army.

All the horses are to be shipped tomorrow to Los Angeles.

SEALS BLANKED BY CHICAGOANS

Cubs Whitewash Bay City Team by 7-to-0 Count.

Oaks Hand Out 9-to-3 Lacing to Major Leaguers.

Windy City Outfit Departs for Home in East.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—The Seals looked as weak as a string of rainwater against Alexander and Jones this afternoon and were beaten 7 to 0. As the Oaks beat the Cubs two games and the Seals could not beat them at all this trip, it is all settled across the bay that the Oaks are a better ball club than the Seals and they will try to prove it next week when the Seals play over there.

Fred Coumbe started the game for the Seals in the afternoon and had some tough luck. Not a ball was hit hard off him in the first inning, yet two runs scored. The Cubs were hitting on top of the ball and bouncing it out of reach of the Seals or over their heads. Not one of them got hold of a ball right and sent it away with a solid crack. All of which goes to prove that luck will beat a shotgun.

SAM LETS GO.

Big Alexander rammed one in the second inning, however, that had the right ring to it. He sent a line drive to Fitzgerald. Krug scored after the catch, but did so because Sam Agney dropped Fitz's good throw. Fitz would have nailed Krug had Samuel hung onto the ball.

Three innings were enough for Coumbe and then Alten had a workout. For three innings he looked great, turning the Cubs back in one, two, three order, but in the seventh he was given a fine pasting and driven to cover. That brought in Daka Davis, who pitched the best ball of the day for the Seals, only three men in an inning facing him.

The Seals will rest today, while the Seattle team will have a workout in the morning to put them on edge for the opening day.

The Chicago Cubs started East tonight. They crabbed a lot about the weather early last week, but they had perfect days Saturday and Sunday and, as a lot of customers turned out, the Windy City folks went away feeling happy, for again San Francisco made good for them.

OAKS CLEAN UP.

The Cubs were given another mauling by the Oaks this morning in Oakland, resulting in a 9-to-3 drubbing of the major-league visitors. Festivities were halted at the end of the eighth inning, the cessation of the run-making being deemed advisable, as the Cubs were to play on the San Francisco side in the afternoon and the tenure up to this point of the game was longer than expected.

The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago (National League)	3	8	1
Oakland (Pacific Coast)	9	11	3

Batteries—Cheves, Freeman, Martin and O'Farrell; Brenton, Jones, Eller and Kohler.

STOCKTON, April 2.—The Chicago Cubs' No. 2 team staged a poor exhibition here today and was beaten by the Seattle Coast Leaguers 10 to 3. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Seattle (Coast)	10	12	2
Cubs No. 2	3	12	6

Batteries—Daller and Adams; Freeman and Wilts.

Over Million Enrolled in Russian Army

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, April 2.—With certain people insistently calling on France to disband its army, Russia goes to Genoa with an army of 1,370,000 men.

Trotzkyk estimates the reds have ninety-five infantry and forty-nine calvary brigades with the colors. The overwhelming preponderance of the mounted troops over the infantry indicates clearly that the bolsheviks have strategic and tactical plans for operations in the event of trouble—rapid mobilization, concentration and an immediate drive deep into Poland or Germany or South Central Europe before the opponent is enabled to interpose serious resistance.

Hhat the red general staff bases its hopes in future wars on the offensive, is clearly proven by the mass of cavalry, despite the increased costs of maintaining mounts. The French military leaders assert the reds' cavalry is worthless against modern weapons, machine guns, tanks, barbed wire and airplanes, but admit that a mounted army might sweep over the enemy before it had time to organize any defense.

To Abandon Campo Army Post.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Abandonment of the army post at Campo, San Diego county, at an early date, was announced yesterday at Ninth Corps area headquarters. No reason was assigned but it was said the long period of quiet on the Mexican border was the cause. Structures and supplies at the post will be removed to Fort Rosecrans, San Diego, or salvaged.

Foreign Fire Chiefs Coming Here.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Members of the Paris fire department will attend the international convention of fire chiefs to be held in San Francisco next August, according to letters received by Fire Chief Thomas R. Murphy of the local department from commanders of two branches of the Paris fire department. The fire department of London as well as those of a large number of American cities will be represented at this fiftieth annual meeting.

DESERT WILD FLOWERS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, April 1.—"California's greatest pageant—the desert wild flowers—is now in progress in the Coachella Valley and other places similarly situated," said Mode Wineman, well-known camera naturalist, here today, after his return from a motor trip across the resort to the Coachella Valley in company with H. E. Bidwell of this city.

Mr. Wineman described the desert flora "startling in its splendor" at the present time. Mr. Wineman and Mr. Bidwell visited Palm Springs, Coachella, Thermal and other points.

Auction De Luxe Today

MONDAY, APRIL 3RD, 10 A. M.

At 2266 West 21st St.

Take West Washington St. Car to Gramercy Place. Walk Two Blocks South.

Including Chickering Concert Grand Piano and Reception Hall Chime Clock (Both Mahogany Cases.)

I have obtained for sale the furniture and furnishings, of which a few items worthy of special mention follow. They will be sold at the above address today, Mon., Apr. 3rd, at 10 a.m. sharp. This being an eleventh-hour sale and owing to lack of time, it will be impossible to give a detailed description. I wish to say, however, they are "luxurious" in every respect, being the best that money could buy.

In addition to the magnificent Chickering Concert Grand Piano and beautiful Chime Clock mentioned above, there is some extraordinarily fine furniture. The living-room suite cost $1000.00. There are several elegant art pieces in mahogany, including library table, rockers, chairs, fern stands, jardinieres, floor and bridge lamps, Oriental rugs, including the finest Persian and Chinese weaves, in both small and large sizes. The dining-room suite is of solid walnut and consists of nine pieces. There are 4 very high grade bedroom suites; one in gray is exceedingly fine and consists of dresser, chifferobe, vanity dresser, bowfoot bed, chair, rocker, bench and night stand. The other three suites are in ivory and walnut. There is a large assortment of rare bric-a-brac, very fine linens, refrigerator and many other items of interest. This will be an all-day sale; luncheon will be served to my patrons and guests at noon.

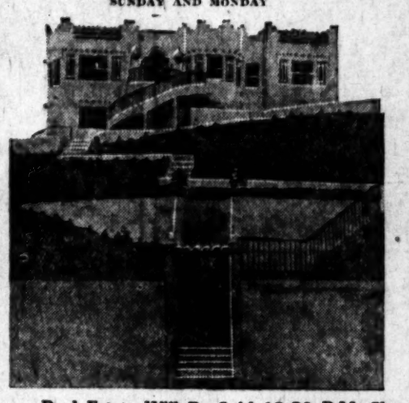
LUXURIOUS AUCTION—Real Estate and Furniture

TUESDAY, APRIL 4th, AT 1317 LAVETA TERRACE

OPEN FOR INSPECTION ALL DAY SUNDAY AND MONDAY



Take Sunset Blvd. Red car to Laveta Terrace, which is one block east of Echo Park Ave. Autos can drive to top of Laveta Terrace.

FURNITURE SALE BEGINS 10 A.M. REAL ESTATE WILL BE SOLD PROMPTLY AT 12:30 P.M.

This home of splendor, known as "The Blue Castle," situated as it is, offers an opportunity to the party seeking "something different," "something unusual." It is a home of exclusiveness, "a home of refinement," "a home of individuality." It would be impossible to describe in befitting words its magnificence. Situated as the picture illustrates, on the top of a mountain overlooking the entire city of Los Angeles, commanding a view far beyond the realization of imagination. This home is "entirely different" to any in the city, "original in every detail." Built but a short time, you can enjoy the pleasure of its newness. The grounds were terraced by an artisan landscaper; the plastering was done by Mr. Ed. Westburg of "Ambassador Hotel fame." The approach is beautified with artistic steel walls and fences, 1 ton of steel being used in its beautification. The entrance is reached from a spiral stairway which adds to the attractiveness. All walks and cement work are in. No expense was spared in the construction of the home and many thousands of dollars have been spent on the grounds. Automobiles can drive up Laveta Terrace, giving access to the home without a step to climb.

Real Estate Will Be Sold 12:30 P.M. Sharp.

THE INTERIOR: There are eight rooms in all. A reception hall as you enter, leading to the living-room and dining-room through sliding doors of French beveled plate glass. The walls and ceiling of the reception hall and living-room are "Tiffany decorated," designed from the style of the XVII century; the ceilings are hand-painted in wondrous color scheme by the same artist, who decorated the Alexandria Roof Garden; the dining-room as also the den is papered with imported tapestry paper; the open fireplace in the living-room is finished in old copper and is a masterpiece; there is also an open fireplace in the den of art brick; two spacious bedrooms and a disappearing bed in the den; large kitchen with tiled drainboard; tile bathroom with shower; the breakfast-room is finished in French gray and hand decorated and leads through French doors to a patio with beautiful fountain; hardwood floors of the finest material throughout; the master windows and doors have French beveled plate glass; the front door is specially designed and is a work of art; a ventilated storeroom and also a laundry lead from the kitchen; dressing-rooms off the bedrooms and spacious closet room; the lighting fixtures were specially designed to suit the individual architectural arrangements. There are many other distinctive features too numerous to mention.

Furniture Will Be Sold Piece by Piece at 10 A.M.

THE FURNITURE AND FURNISHINGS are practically new and consist of a beautiful KIMBALL (mahogany case) BABY GRAND PIANO, mahogany case; cabinet talking machine ($250.00 size); massive davenport with chair to match, upholstered in tapestry; magnificent overstuffed rocker and chair, upholstered in silk velour; solid mahogany library table; solid mahogany bookcase; solid mahogany tabouret table and chair; the dining-room suite is unusually handsome and of early English design (its original cost was $1750.00); 10 pieces of 6-inch extension table, 7 chairs, including host chair, sideboard, china cabinet and serving table; the rugs throughout are Angle Persian with the exception of two small Oriental rugs; they range in size from 8.6x10.6 to 11x15; there are two bedroom suites, one in brown hardwood and one in mahogany; many small items, such as bric-a-brac, pictures, dishes, glassware, kitchen utensils, side-oven white enamel gas range and many other articles of interest.

Sale Positive Regardless of Weather Conditions.

TERMS OF REAL ESTATE SALE: Purchaser assumes bank mortgage of $4300.00, balance half cash, remainder half, trust deed, payable $125.00 a month, including interest at 7%.

If necessary, more convenient terms can be arranged.

PIKERS WIN A FORTUNE.

Small-Fry Players Got 400 to 1 for Their Money When Peytonia Defeated Maid Marian.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

To those not "in the know" it is generally accepted as an indisputable fact that no one beats the races from the ground end. Having followed the game for many years and studied its various phases, we beg leave to file a demurrer to this gratuitous assumption. We should premise, however, that our declaration is based on wagering against the old booking system—a system that is ideal in the betting line, despite the fact that disgruntled losers have always put the stigma of "crookedness" on it.

But sidestepping, however, a controversy on this much maligned mode of punting, we will tell the world of one day in particular when the layman fattened to almost bursting proportions—fattened almost beyond the dreams of avarice. The day in question was probably the greatest ever known to the piker in the turf world—the day that Peytonia beat Maid Marian and a fleet-footed bunch of sprinters in a mile dash at Washington Park, Chicago.

WHAT A CROWD!

It was Derby day in the early 90's, a crowd of almost 60,000 being on hand. If we remember right, there were at least eighty-five books doing business, besides a brace of one-dollar slates for the benefit of the small-coin fry. Just before the Derby was run, Maid Marian, one of the fleetest mares of her time once around the circle, was pitted against a pretty fair field in a mile dash. She was a red-hot favorite. The second choice was some pumpkins himself as a sprinter, and it really looked like a two-horse race.

Now it is a well-known fact that many spectators on Derby day plant about ten or twenty bucks in their pocket, making it a sort of an annual plunging debauchery, and whether they win or lose, chalk it up as a day's real sport. Among the starters against the Maid was Peytonia, owned by J. W. Lyle, who was making the form chart, at the time, for the association. He didn't dream that his entry had a ghost of a chance. And now for the real kick. Peytonia opened at 100 to 1 and by the time the bugle blew for the post call, was quoted on many slates at 300 to 1 and 400 to 1—in fact, several of the leading penciliers quoted her at 500 to 1.

MAID IN FRONT.

When the horses got off, Maid Marian and the second choice shot right to the front like a whirlwind with the rest of the field straggling. The two leaders just ran their fool heads off and it was only a question as to which of the twain would break first. Turning in the final quarter both wobbled something awful — yet they were so far ahead of the others that it still looked like a two-horse race.

In the last sixteenth the two in front sprawled terribly with their jockies plying the whip unmercifully. It was along here that something kept moving up on the inside rail, gaining gradually. It was Peytonia. The Maid and her companion were staggering under the wire when Peytonia just got up in time to stick her nose in front. A few maniac yells was all that greeted Peytonia's number when it was flashed as the winner.

Oh, what a windfall for a number of shooters at the moon! One man on the north side, running a little grocery store, had made four different bets of $5 each just to be interested. He got 400 to 1 for every $1 of his wager and had a big crowd following him when he was paid off. He took that $8000 and invested it in a bigger store and soon amassed a fortune—but never went to the races thereafter.

A saloon-keeper at Clark and Lake streets who had never seen a race before won $15,000 and it was a well-known fact for years afterward that he gave the track the merry go-by. A manicurist from the Great Northern Hotel cleaned up $10,000. When she was told Peytonia had won, she fainted. It was her first time at the track.

The books profited nigely on the race, as the rank and file bet thousands on Maid Marian to win. In all the history of the turf this was undoubtedly the biggest killing ever made by pikers and shooters at the moon.

Power Holdings Auctioned.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GREENVILLE, April 2.—Entire holdings of the Plumas Power and Light Corporation were auctioned off here recently by Sheriff L. A. Braden of Plumas county, to satisfy a judgment against the concern. This is believed to be the first time in the history of the State that property of a public utility corporation was sold under the hammer.

LASCELLES IN PARIS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, April 2.—Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles, returning from their honeymoon trip, arrived in Paris tonight. They are visiting Lord and Lady Granard.

HENRY AND LELANDS PLAY SECOND FIDDLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LANSING (Mich.) April 1.—The Lincoln-Ford Motor Car Company was incorporated here today with a capitalization of $15,250,000. There are 2500 shares of common stock of which Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, holds 2497. Henry Ford, Henry M. Leland and Wilfred C. Leland hold one share each.

A saloon-keeper at Clark and Lake streets who had never seen a race before won $15,000 and it was a well-known fact for years afterward that he gave the track the merry go-by. Hits Monopoly of Telephone.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, April 2.—The Sacramento Women's Council feels that five minutes is long enough party-line telephone and a recent resolution declaring it against good policy and good manners to monopolize the party line for social visits via the telephone was adopted.

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

For Advertising Men.

Announcing a program of entertainment, oratory, education, facts, pep and music, the Advertising Club will have its Monday noonday meeting tomorrow in the ballroom of the Alexandria with H. H. Lestico as chairman. The speakers will include Luther G. Brown, E. C. Livingston and H. S. Whiffen.

BRYAN INTERRUPTED DURING HIS LECTURE.

REFUSES TO ENTER DISPUTE WHEN ASKED BELIEF IN PERSONAL GOD.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Six thousand men and women at the Hippodrome today were thrown into an uproar when a man interrupted William J. Bryan's lecture on "God and Evolution," and demanded that Bryan prove that there was a personal God and to say whether his conception of God was "male or female."

From all parts of the audience came cries of "Put him out!" The man, who later said he was Emanuel B. Lopes, stood his ground in the orchestra.

Bryan answered by saying he did not appear at the meeting "to teach school" but declared that if the interrupter did not believe in a personal God he did not want him to teach his unbelief in the public schools.

"If any other atheist or agnostic wants to ask a question I am ready," said Bryan.

"Put him out," yelled spectators.

"I'm not an atheist nor agnostic," shouted Lopes.

"I don't expect you to admit it before an audience," replied Bryan.

MAKE PROTEST ON ACTION OF HARDING.

FEDERAL EMPLOYEES REGISTER COMPLAINT ON REMOVAL OF WILMETH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Protest was made to President Harding today by the National Federation of Federal Employees against the sudden removal Friday of Director James L. Wilmeth and twenty-eight other officials of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and the immediate filling of their positions by new appointees.

No official explanation of this action has been made other than it resulted from an inquiry into the bureau's operation by the Department of Justice.

The summary dismissal of Director Wilmeth and his associates was denounced to President Harding by L. C. Stewart of the National Federation as impugning their character and taking away their "Civil Service status." A separate protest from the woman's union of the Bureau was made at the same time against the removal of four women executives whose places were filled by men. This would close the avenue of promotion to thousands of ambitious women employees, President Harding was told.

MISS STONE GUARDED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—Miss Olivia Stone, the nurse who slew Lawyer Kinkead, whose common law wife, she had been, is closely guarded against suicide. She positively refuses to take any food and has not slept for three nights. She has collapsed several times during her trial and is in a precarious condition.

MICHIGAN SLEET STORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT, April 2.—With higher temperatures, Lower Michigan yesterday emerged from a sleet storm that was not surpassed in severity this winter. Property damage, it is estimated, will reach several million dollars.

FEATURE YOUNGSTER.

MARY PHILBIN WILL APPEAR IN VON STROHEIM FILM.

By Edwin Schallert.

The cast for Erich Von Stroheim's next feature at Universal is now being assembled. The principal novelty will be the presence of Mary Philbin, whose fate as a screen actress is to be decided by her work in this picture. Some critics believe in her possibilities as an actress, while others regard her as just a sweet little girl.

Others selected for the cast are Maude George, Dale Fuller and Cesare Gravina. Mr. Gravina is being brought back to Universal City from Brazil.

The story of the picture will have as its atmospheric background a colorful corner of the European continent. Many large sets, it is said, will be built. Unlike "Foolish Wives," however, the film will be completed in three or four months.

Dexter at Studio.

Elliot Dexter is again among those present. He has been cast in Clara Kimball Young's feature, "The Hands of Nara," from a story by Richard Washburn Child.

Others in the cast are Edwin Stevens, Alec Francis, William V. Mong, Emmett King, Roy Allen, Ashley Cooper, Buddy Post, Eugenie Besserer, Louise Dresser, Mona Kingsley, Martha Maddox and Dulcie Cooper.

Mr. Dexter has ben on a trip abroad for several months. He visited all the principal countries of Europe.

Opera Lectures.

The first of a series of free interpretive lectures on the repertoire of the Chicago Grand Opera Company will be given under the auspices of the University of California, extension division, this afternoon in Choral Hall, Philharmonic Auditorium. The talks will be continued throughout the week between 4 and 5 o'clock daily. One opera a day will be discussed in the same order as they are presented by the Chicago company.

Comedian in Drama.

Raymond Griffith, who has won popularity in comedy, has been cast for a leading part in Marshall Neilan's new feature, "Her Man." Mr. Neilan has realized that Mr. Griffith possess possibilities of an exceptional dramatic actor in direct contrast to his success as a comedian. Accordingly he gave Griffith the opportunity he wanted in "Fools First," in which production he played the part of a clever crook. Now Mr. Neilan has rewritten a part of the story for his next film, giving Mr. Griffith a more important role.

"Green Temptation."

"The Green Temptation," the final feature made by William D. Taylor, is showing at Grauman's Rialto Theater. In this picture Betty Compson has the principal role. Others are Mahlon Hamilton, Theodore Kosloff.

Play Mozart Sonata.

Bessie Chapin, violinist, gave her program, "Music of the Eighteenth Century," at the Ambassador Hotel for its resident guests Wednesday afternoon. She was assisted by Miss Ida Selby, pianist, who gave two groups of solos. Miss Chapin's numbers included a group of French things by Couperin and Pochon, Schubert's ballet music from "Rosamund" and "Ave Maria," Bach's air for the G string, Minuet by Mozart, Beethoven's Rondino and Romance, the Tartini Variations, arranged by Kreisler and the latter's "La Gitana," a Gypsy song of the eighteenth century.

Miss Chapin and Miss Selby together rendered the Mozart Sonata in B flat major. Both wore eighteenth century costume and high-powdered wigs. The stage was illuminated with scores of tall wax candles.

Miss Chapin recently gave the same program for the Pomona Ebell Club, assisted by Miss Selby and Mr. John Smallman, baritone.

LUXURIOUS QUARTERS FOR GENOA ENVOYS.

DELEGATES TO CONFERENCE WILL BE GUESTS OF GOVERNMENT.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

ROME, April 2.—Foreign Minister Schanzer plans to arrive at Genoa April 8, two days before the opening of the economic conference. There will be a meeting of the Allied delegates on the ninth, at which the attitude to be followed during the conference will be decided.

All the delegations, numbering with those of the British dominions, thirty-five, are to be guests of the Italian government and most of the hotels at Genoa and many hotels and villas around the city have been requisitioned or rented for their use.

Luxurious trains will transport them from the Italian frontier to Genoa. Five hundred motor cars will be at their disposal. Police precautions for the safety of the foreigners are being taken on a lavish scale.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP RULES BY WIRELESS.

SECRETARY OF TRUSTEES WILL BROADCAST INFORMATION FOR STUDENTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SWARTHMORE (Pa.) April 2. President Frank Aydelotte of Swarthmore College, and American secretary of the Rhodes Scholarships trustees, yesterday adopted radio as the method to broadcast the annual regulation governing the thirty-two scholarships apportioned to the United States.

Application for the scholarships must be in not later than October 21, and final selections will be made December 2, Mr. Aydelotte told his invisible audience, many of whom, he said, he imagined were high school and college boys.

The regulations provided that the stipend of a scholarship, normally $1500, had been increased $250, as a bonus to meet the increase in prices.

Famous Church of Rockefellers to be No More.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, April 2.—The Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, famous for years as the place of worship of the Rockefellers, held its last service in its historic edifice today. Next Sunday the church takes on a new name and will occupy its new $1,500,000 edifice a mile up town on Park Avenue, the newer fashionable street of the city. While the church will be named hereafter the Park-Avenue Baptist Church, it will not lose its Rockefeller connections. J. D. Rockefeller Jr., will continue as leader of the men's bible class.

The new structure is a departure in church architecture. It is of the skyscraper order, nine stories high, and houses only the church proper and its four auditoriums and sidercoms for different functions. The main auditorium will seat 700.

Cadet Training Suspended.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

MELBOURNE, March 3.—Cadet training, which is the basis of the Australian military system, is to be suspended for a year in the interests of economy, under a decision of the Federal government. It is estimated that a saving of £132,000 will result. Meantime, remodeling of the defense scheme is to be considered.

SERVICES OF THANKS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, April 1.—At the suggestion of Dr. Merle N. Smith, pastor of the Pasadena Pastors' Union, a number of the churches will have special prayers of thanksgiving at their services tomorrow because of the ratification by the United States Senate of the Disarmament Conference treaties.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull tired feeling — sick headache — torpid liver — constipation, you'd find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.—[Advertisement.

STABBED BY NEURITIS!

Many people suffer attacks by this arch fiend, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp, stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia, which troubles often do end up in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve pains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poisons. Just apply Tysmol over the part that hurts and in 2 to 5 minutes the pain will be gone.

Tysmol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually helping to restore them to healthy condition.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at the Owl, Sun and other reliable druggists. Tysmol Company, Mfg. Chemists, 400 Sutter St., San Francisco, Cal.—[Advertisement.

Sprucing Up For Spring

MOST men take the selection of a new Spring outfit as a matter of course—sort of necessary ordeal to be gotten over with as little trouble as possible.

This attitude changes when the selection is made from a stock offering many opportunities for choice.

Many men who never before realized what a difference in appearance the right hat would make—or how much distinction can be gained with a well-tailored suit—find real interest in sprucing up for Spring.

HELD ON SUSPICION OF MURDER

Police Believe They Can Link "Broker" With Slaying of Aged Druggist.

The charge of petty larceny against Edward C. Daly, self-asserted real estate broker, who was arrested Saturday night, was changed to that of suspicion of murder on the police records at the Central Station yesterday following an investigation made by Police Detectives Gamash and Cowen.

According to the detectives, they have information which they declare connects Daly with the murder of Russell Baker, 65 years of age, on February 27. Baker was shot and beaten to death in a rear room of his drug store at 9404 South Vermont avenue. Nothing was found by Detectives Mack and Riggs of the University Police Station, who investigated the case, that would indicate a motive.

The link which the Central Station detectives believe they can fit into a chain of incriminating circumstances following the murder is an automatic pistol. The pistol, they said, was the property of Mr. Baker, and was missing from his premises when the police arrived to investigate. Daly had in his possession when arrested Saturday a pawn ticket for a pistol which the detectives state may be identified as the one belonging to the druggist. Other information purporting to further warrant the charge of the charge of petty larceny to a more serious one the detectives are holding secret.

Daly, when arrested Saturday by Patrolman Ousley, had in his possession, according to the officer, six motor meters, said to have been taken from parked automobiles.

Search for the oldest horse in the State has been started by students at University Farm, Davis, who plan to give the winner of the contest a home for the rest of its life. Anyone having a horse that he wishes to enter as a candidate for oldest honors may obtain details from J. B. Woodford at the farm. When the oldest horse is found his transportation charges will be paid by the University Farm in time to be in the parade at the annual picnic day on the 29th inst. All entries should be in by the 15th inst.

GHOST NO AID IN GOLD HUNT.

Spanish-Speaking Spirit Only Adds to Mystery.

Prospector Ends Six Months' Search for Treasure.

Ancient Document Describes Burial of Millions.

John Mayeroff has given up his search for buried treasure and returned to Miami, Ariz. To say that Mr. Mayeroff is as blue as a month of Mondays is putting it weakly, for he had high hopes.

This Arizona and California prospector less than a year ago found some old documents buried under a rock in a desert spot in the Imperial Valley. He bought a Spanish-English dictionary and went to work, and then he turned the papers over to those skilled in Americana, and their genuineness was established beyond a shadow of a doubt, etc. No doubt of it, it was a record of an expedition of 350 years ago; told how the Spanish explorers had found a rich mine, started south with "A vast treasure," met a party of Frenchmen, jointly were attacked by savages, and at the last stroke of the chronicler's pen were about to be killed, every mother's son. The paper described where the "vast treasure" was buried.

SETS OUT TO FIND GOLD.

Naturally, Mr. Mayeroff set out to find the gold (there also was silver) but gold chiefly. The old document described a tunnel door, beside a huge black lava rock on which numbers had been chiseled. Hence, it was necessary to find the rock before finding the door, and the door before finding the gold.

Mr. Mayeroff spent six months looking at black lava rocks. He found several, and he believes the very one mentioned in the document. But although he dug for an acre around he found no tunnel door, much less tunnel. This was discouraging, for Mr. Mayeroff at that time said he was sure the treasure would value $1,000,000.

So the prospector, who by that time very much needed a shave, came to Los Angeles and got one. Then he interviewed a fortune teller. She (a gypsy) laid out the cards, and after having her palm crossed with silver said that the treasure would be found northby - south - east, at a half-eclipse of the moon beside the black rock.

"But where is the black lava rock?" Mr. Mayeroff asked.

"I already have told you," the Romany said, and would say no more.

INTERVIEWS GHOST.

The old prospector then met a man who told him fortune-tellers were worse than nothing, that a clairvoyant was what he needed. Mr. Mayeroff at the time said he was sure the treasure was worth $5,000,000, at least. He found a clairvoyant without much difficulty and asked him about the treasure. It cost $10, and for that sum the clairvoyant scared up the ghost of one of the Indian-clan old Spaniards. But, of course, the ghost could talk only Spanish, a language in which the clairvoyant and even Mr. Mayeroff with aid of his vest pocket Spanish-English-English-Spanish dictionary were ignorant. So it took another $10 to produce the ghost, while a translator was present. Mr. Mayeroff obtained the translator in a restaurant, where he washed dishes. The young Mexican, however, was so frightened at seeing a ghost that he paid little attention, and later declared the ghost spoke Portuguese or perhaps the Catalonian dialect, which he said was just as bad.

The prospector being certain that the wrong ghost had been summoned, left the aid of the clairvoyant, although the latter offered further assistance, and he again went to the rock he had found and proceeded to dig. About this time his grubstake was running low. So he returned to his home in Miami.

Word from the Arizona city last week was to the effect that Mr. Mayeroff had announced he was sure the treasure was worth $10,000,000, if a penny.

Cousin Jailed as Slayer of Compton Man

Harold Rowe of Compton is dead and Robert W. Hensley, also of Compton, is in the County Jail on suspicion of murder as a result of a quarrel and shooting which took place in that city late Saturday night.

According to the report of officers who investigated, Mr. Rowe and Mr. Hensley, after having a quarrel earlier in the week, met Saturday night when Mr. and Mrs. Rowe went to the residence of Mr. Hensley's mother, where they had been living, to remove some of their personal belongings.

Reports are that Mr. Rowe, who was Mr. Hensley's cousin, attacked him with a milk bottle and the latter drew a gun and fired two shots, one of which went through Mr. Rowe's heart, killing him instantly.

The body was removed to the Neel & Towne undertaking parlor and Hensley was arrested by City Marshal Rozelle. He was brought to the County Jail last night.

PLAN DANCE WITH MUSIC MILES AWAY

Calexico Elks to Enjoy Ambassador Orchestra by Use of Radio Phone.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, April 2.—The Elks' assembly room in this city is to be equipped with a powerful radiophone, that the members may enjoy long-distance musical events, and get the broadcast news of the world from Los Angeles.

Carl Strawn and Earl Mitchell, expert electricians, have gone to Los Angeles to select the equipment, and will have the outfit installed within the next ten days. The equipment is to be of sufficient power to communicate across the continent, and its first general use is with the addition of a powerful magnavox to give a dance in the clubrooms, with the music furnished by the Ambassador orchestra, in Los Angeles.

With a less powerful radio set a few nights ago, Mr. Strawn picked up the annual address of the Exalted Ruler of the Denver Lodge of Elks, and every word of the speaker was heard here clear and distinct.

BURGLAR SUSPECT CAUGHT IN CHASE.

NEGRO ACCUSED OF STEALING JEWELRY FROM HOME OF FILM DIRECTOR.

A few minutes after he is said to have stolen jewelry valued at about $2000 from the home of Lynn W. Reynolds, director for the Tom Mix cinema productions, at 8241 Fountain avenue, yesterday afternoon, Gene Newman, aged 24 years, a negro, was taken into custody by Officer Joseph A. Page of the Hollywood Police Station. The arrest was made at the intersection of Sunset Boulevard and Gardner avenue, after a lively chase of several blocks. When Officer Page clamped his fingers upon Newman's coat collar the negro had secreted about his person part of the stolen jewelry and a revolver belonging to Mr. Reynolds, according to the police report.

C. E. Norton, a neighbor of Mr. Reynolds, had witnessed the supposed burglar passing out of the rear door of the director's residence. He telephoned the Hollywood Police Station. No one was present in Mr. Reynolds's home at the time of the burglary. Newman was placed in jail on suspicion of robbery.

HEAVEN "WIRE" IS CALLED BUNK

Dr. Peebles's Friends Deny Celestial Message.

Guest Present in Spirit Only Gets a Rap.

Take Steps to Organize for Psychical Research.

Ghosts visible to eyes of flesh were not greatly in evidence at Choral Hall yesterday afternoon when scores of friends of the late Dr. James M. Peebles offered evidence tending to prove that the noted spiritualist, who passed from earthly activities last February, has neither revisited the world nor sent the messages purported to have been received by numerous persons.

Presiding at the meeting was Fred U. S. Hughes, head of the Peebles committee, which was recently formed in honor of the late scientist. Mr. Hughes stated that he had invited Dr. Guy Bogart to be present at the meeting, but that the latter had informed him he would be out of town and would be present in spirit. If Dr. Bogart was there he failed to materialize.

ADDRESSES MADE.

Among the addresses made were those by Henry Page, a friend of Dr. Peebles; Mrs. Page, who attended Dr. Peebles in his illness; Mrs. Marian Carpenter, a medium; Robert Sudal, who was secretary for Dr. Peebles, and John Gray. All of the speakers testified to the sterling character and great intellectual attainments of Dr. Peebles and several of them declared that the name of the famous spiritualist is being used to promote motion-picture enterprises and to further the interests of the Longer Life League and Astrarian Brotherhood.

Mr. Hughes said that photographs and slate writing said to have been received from Dr. Peebles since he crossed the Great Divide had been hanging on the wall of Dr. Peebles's home long before his death.

"I asked Burton Kalsley, one of the board of directors of the Society for Psychical Research in San Francisco, how a certain local afternoon newspaper managed to copyright messages from the spirit land sent by a supposed correspondent on the Heavenly Gazette to Herbert Kuehn," said Mr. Hughes. "He replied that if it was a scoop it was worth while and if it was a fake nobody was hurt by it. However, the world is always injured by untruth."

LACKED STYLE.

In their arguments in refutation of the purported messages of Dr. Peebles, the speakers pointed to the fact that the asserted missives have not been written in the fine literary style of Dr. Peebles and that the messages contained words which the doctor always refrained from using while he was on earth.

Mr. Page said that Dr. Peebles had promised a skeptical friend that if he did send a message to the earth-bound it would be in a code which none but the "skeptical friend" could read. So far, said Mr. Page, that code message has not been received.

Mrs. Marian Carpenter stated that she had known Dr. Peebles for twenty-five years and that he was a spiritualist, not a spiritist. She said he was a mystic and belonged to one of the highest orders of wise men.

TRIBUTE TO DR. PEEBLES.

"Heaven was the brighter for the coming of this great master," said Mrs. Carpenter. "But we do not retrograde when we pass on and if we were wise and true on earth we do not make it our business in Heaven to send back slang messages to ignorant men and women who are on a low moral plane of life."

The first steps were taken yesterday toward the organization of the Southern California Psychical Research Society, nearly a score of the attendants promising to support such an institution which, it was stated, will be formed in the near future.

POLICE JAIL FEUD LEADERS.

Three Held Following Fight in Little Italy; Lives of Bystanders Endangered.

There is peace, with watchful waiting, in "Little Italy" today, following the gun feud that broke out there late Saturday night and sent three men, said to be leaders of two warring factions, to the City Jail.

Following a long conference in the detective bureau yesterday, in which the prisoners and their friends, and witnesses produced by both, promised to patch up their differences and shoot no more, the police released on bail the men who are said by them to have figured in the "Battle of New Depot street," in which scores of shots were fired and the lives of several innocent bystanders endangered the night before.

A bitter feud over the love of beautiful Mary Monini of 797 New Depot street, known as the Queen of Little Italy, is said by the police and Attorney S. S. Hahn, representing both factions, to have caused the gun play and arrests.

The three men accused by Detectives Carl Williams and Longeuvan of being the ringleaders of the two factions are:

Vincent Ambriola, 33 years of age, 782 New Depot street.

Marino Fontino, 19, 780 New Depot street.

Frank Fontino, his brother.

The prisoners were released on $100 bail each after the "peace conference" in the detective bureau resulted in the promise that both sides will remain in status quo. The three men will appear in Police Judge Richardson's court this morning to plead on the charge of disturbing the peace. The original charge against the men was suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

The fear of revenge and stern code of "Little Italy" prevented the police from getting evidence from eye-witnesses that would warrant prosecution on felony charges, the officers say. Inquiries from witnesses brought no results, and it was decided to reduce the charge and accept the offer of peace.

According to the police, Ambriola and the two Fontino boys are rival leaders of two factions. The outbreak of hostilities was due to rumors that each side circulated about the other, it is declared. Back of the feud, the officers say, is a keen rivalry of men on the opposing side for the hand and smiles of the dark-eyed Mary Bonini. The girl, who is 17 years of age, is said to have promised to marry one man and then failed to keep her promise. Rumors that threats to kill the girl were made by this man's friends led to counter rumors, with the result that friends of both sides appeared in the office of Attorney Hahn a few days ago and asked to have the other sides put under peace bonds. Damage and slander actions were ordered prepared. Finally it was decided to settle the matter at a peace conference that was to be held in Mr. Hahn's office yesterday morning.

Late Saturday night the comparative peace of New Depot street and the streets around the hills

ADMITS .. DIVORCE .. IS .. PLANNED.

Film Director and Screen Star Wife Separate.

Marguerite Snow (Mrs. James Cruze.)
Who is expected to sue husband on grounds of mental cruelty as sequel to long-standing differences.

JAMES CRUZE, director for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation soon will be a principal in a divorce suit with his wife, known professionally as Marguerite Snow, he admitted yesterday.

"I had hoped," said Mr. Cruze, "that the matter would not get into the papers. My wife and I are living apart."

"Who is to sue?" he was asked.

"Oh, I understand that my wife means to sue me on the grounds of mental cruelty," was the reply.

Mr. Cruze and his wife have a beautiful little daughter of 7 years. They have been married about nine years. It was not until a couple of years ago that they first separated. Since that time they have lived apart at times, at other times patching up their differences and living together again. But of late the situation seems to have become intolerable and they have not lived together for some months.

Mr. Cruze is known as one of the picture world's most successful directors, while Miss Snow was formerly a Metro star, but has worked only intermittently during the past several years.

Charge Bribe Offered by Man Nabbed in Raid.

The Gandier ordinance and Volstead Act were well represented on the police records yesterday morning following four raids by the metropolitan squad and substation officers, one raid resulting in charges of bribery being lodged against a suspect.

Vito Bondrello of 657 Alpine street was held at the City Jail on the charge of violating the Volstead Act and the additional charge of bribery. Three bottles of wine and $45 in money were held against him as evidence by which Officers McKay and Rounds of the purity squad expect to prove the charges that he was violating the dry act and also tried to bribe the officers.

The other raids occurred at 619 New High street, where one man was arrested on the Gandier ordinance; at Twenty-third and Toberman streets, San Pedro, where two men were held for Volstead Act charges and at Western avenue and Santa Monica Boulevard, where Officers Conlin and Johnson of the Hollywood division arrested two men on Gandier ordinance charges.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS SEEK NEW MEMBERS.

"Ten thousand active younger Republican workers in Los Angeles county" is the goal of the Young Men's Republican League membership campaign under the direction of Lin William Price, chairman of the "10,000 committee." The appeal for new members will continue this month and throughout May and June.

Honorary vice-presidents are being enrolled among representative Republicans. Walter J. Little is chairman of the executive committee.

In announcing the league's policy, the officers state:

"The league is organized along nonfactional lines and for the purpose of furthering the principles of Republicanism among the younger voters of the community. Among these principles of Republicanism now commanding our attention is the matter of the enforcement of law and order—the security and protection of our people in life and in the home—an issue which today affects every man, woman and child in our community."

PAY NO HEED TO DYING MAN.

Cars, Without Hesitating, Race Over Motor Victim.

One Killed, One Fatally Hurt; Six Injured.

Four Dash Off After Crashes Without Giving Aid.

A wave of reckless driving caused the death of one man and sent several other persons to the Receiving and County hospitals during the early morning hours yesterday. The victim whose life was snuffed out was identified by the police as C. Goggins of 719 Grosse Building. He was found on Figueroa street, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets, after several automobiles had dashed over his limp body without, apparently, paying any attention to it.

The man was evidently struck by an automobile some time after midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Olson of 902 East Fourteenth street, and their cousin, A. A. Olson, Hotel Rosslyn, saw the still form just ahead of their automobile, barely in time to swerve aside. The car just ahead of them passed over the body, they told the police. As the Olson car came to a stop, Patrolman Abercromby reached the spot. He had been sent there by Fred Pierce, 107 West Sixth street, a taxi driver, who saw the body in the street. The victim was taken to the Receiving Hospital where he lingered from 4:15 a.m. to 5 o'clock. He died from a basal fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Physicians at the hospital said they believed the man was in the street for several hours before he was found.

IDENTIFICATION INCOMPLETE.

The identification of the victim as Goggins was made from a card found in the man's pockets. The detectives have been unable to get any further confirmation. The body was taken to the J. D. Faris & Co. undertaking parlors.

Mrs. Alice Thralls, 42 years old, of the St. Charles Apartments, Seventeenth street and Grand avenue, is at the County Hospital, near death, and Thomas Tigh, 917 South Grand avenue, is recovering from serious injuries as the result of another instance of reckless driving by a motorist who escaped after causing the accident. Mrs. Thralls and Mr. Tigh were returning from Venice when their automobile was sideswiped by another car, traveling at high speed, on Washington Boulevard near Culver City. Tigh's automobile was thrown into a ditch. Mrs. Thralls received internal injuries, including a puncture of the lung and concussion of the brain. She is said to be fatally hurt. Tigh was treated at the Receiving Hospital and later sent home.

THIRD VICTIM.

The third victim of gasoline and drivers was Alvara Garvan, 621 Sun-

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS DRILL FOR LAURELS.

Girls from fourteen different high schools will be represented in the annual competitive drill at the Los Angeles Athletic Club gymnasium next Thursday.

This affair being the only branch of sport that the school officials will recognize for the feminine sex, is a good reason that a capacity crowd will be present.

A beautiful loving cup will be awarded to the school that runs off with first honors, and there is also a possibility that to each member of the winning team a gold medal will be donated.

Among those who are expected to witness the drill will be Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, superintendent of schools, and her assistants.

UNDERSTANDING

He: I'm lucky to find you home. I hardly expected it. You go out such a lot, don't you?

She: Yes. I was going to a dance tonight. But just at the last moment something made me feel that—that—

He (thrilled:) That what?

She (shyly:) That—that—perhaps—you might call.

He: Say, that's wonderful. But do you know, it doesn't really surprise me? I thought you were that kind of a girl.

She: What kind of a girl?

He: Oh—why—the kind that—oh, well, the kind that understands.

She (enchanted:) I hope I am.

He: You bet you are! One can tell it to look at you. There's something in your eyes different from other girls'—say, do you think I'm talking a lot of slush?

She: No! Oh, no! Please tell me just what you mean.

He (a little beyond his depth, but warming to the occasion:) Why—er—a fellow can see that you—why, that you understand. Do you see what I mean?

She: Yes, but I'm not quite sure just what expression in my eyes you meant. Please tell me.

He: Why, a kind of—oh, a kind of serious one, as if you were taking a fellow in—I mean as if you were understanding. You're not laughing at me, are you?

She (horrified:) The idea! Of course, I'm not! Please go on.

He (reassured:) I noticed it the first time I saw you.

She (thrilled again:) The expression? In my eyes?

He: Yes.

She (breathless:) Wasn't that wonderful? It was at the Carys' dance.

He: Yes, and you gave me the second and the fifth.

She: And we sat out the eighth.

He: And it was then I noticed it. I said to myself (very solemnly,) she understands.

She: And didn't you ever change your mind?

He: Not for one single minute. Haven't I been on your doormat ever since when I wasn't following you to teas and parties?

She (almost inaudibly:) I was always glad you were there.

He: And when I wasn't there I was thinking about you.

She: What were you thinking?

He: I was thinking how different you are from other girls and—and—about the look in your eyes and—and how you understand.

She: Perhaps I was thinking about you, too.

He: Were you? Do you ever think of me?

She: Yes.

He: When?

She: Most of the time.

He: Mabel!

She: Jack!

He (after an interval:) We're awfully young. Do you expect your father—

She: Mercy, yes. He expects it. I told him.

He: You told him? W-w-when?

She: The second time you came here.

He (dazed:) By Jove!

She: So it's all settled. But they won't let us get married for a year. You won't mind waiting, will you? I think the engagement is the happiest time, so I'm glad we'll have to wait. After that everyone will expect us to settle down and be old married people. But, oh, Jack! Think of what fun we'll have selecting a flat and getting the furniture for it! We can begin to plan things right off. We don't have to wait for that, do we?

He (still dazed:) N-no!

She: I think I'd like to stay right here in this neighborhood, near mama. And it's lovely here, so near the park. That will be awfully convenient, won't it?

He: Yes, darling.

She: And, oh, Jack, now that we're engaged and can't have any more secrets from each other, there's one thing you simply must tell me. What is it you are so sure I understand? I'm just dying to know!

Question: In the reports of Wall-street brokerage firms going to the wall, the announcement is made that the probable cause was "bucketing orders." What does this mean O. E. K.

Answer: The word "bucketing" is derived from "bucket shops." Bucket shops are run by irresponsible brokers, not members of any stock exchange, and do a marginal business upon $1 a share and upward. As a matter of fact, in the case of a bucket shop, the stock itself is usually not purchased or sold for the customer. When an order has gone through the machinery of a bucket shop and been accepted by the same, theoretically executed, it has been "bucketed." No actual purchase or sale takes place, the broker must pay losses if the customer has guessed the right way, and vice-versa if the opposite. "Bucketed" is used to denote the handling by a legitimate stock exchange broker of his customer's accounts on bucket-shop methods.

Q.: Is there a Mohammedan church in the United States? R. C.

A.: A Moslem mosque has been built in Highland Park, Mich. The first magazine for Islam, the Moslem Sunrise, is published there, and the first Moslem missioner to America, Mufti Muhammad Sadiq, has his headquarters there.

Q.: When was Washington's Birthday first celebrated? W. W. B.

A.: The first recorded celebration of Washington's Birthday occurred in Richmond, Va., in 1783. It was celebrated there and in other places, until in 1793, it was generally adopted.

Q.: Why is the new wireless called radiograph? J. V. N.

A.: The word radiograph was coined because radio is an abbreviation for radiation and the radiograph is the instrument for radiating electric energy through air.

Q.: Are fish scales of any use commercially? R. J.

A.: Great quantities of fish scales are used in making artificial pearls.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

They Annoy Her

MONTEREY PARK, March 29.

[To the Editor of The Times:] Although everybody must be sick of the subject by now, still before it is dismissed, I feel I must add my views on the matter. I think the man or woman who calls at the door with something to sell is a big nuisance.

They have annoyed me greatly in time past. Living in the country or rather, a thinly settled neighborhood, there are not so many of them as in town, but still we do have them occasionally, and, with perhaps one exception, I have never bought anything that has proved satisfactory. The worst pest of all was the man who had a set of encyclopedia to sell. He forced himself into my house (as did his counterpart, the man with the kindergarten blackboard, both equally persistent) by addressing me familiarly by my name, having obtained it from my neighbor where he last called. He spent two hours, more or less, trying to convince me that I should have this wonderful book in the house for the sake of the children's education. It was inconvenient to subscribe for the volumes (or blackboard) then, and I did not care to bind myself to some future date several months ahead when the books could be delivered as the agent suggested and I had the most difficult time getting the man to believe me and take his departure.

After two such experiences is it any wonder that I am down on canvassers in general? One never knows when a [illegible] at the door whether one with something [illegible] They have the methods of leading stock in trade. I [illegible] salesmen all such [illegible]

KrepeKnit

The Incomparable

Fashion's Premier Knitted Silk Fabric for Women's Apparel

The tremendous vogue of KrepeKnit has inevitably led to the appearance on the market of many imitations.

None of these substitutes can in any way compare with the genuine Banner KrepeKnit. All of these attempts have failed because the imitations lack the lustre, the distinctive surface finish, and most important of all, lack the durability of the genuine KrepeKnit.

Therefore, for your protection and to avoid imitations, insist that the name KrepeKnit in exactly this spelling and trademark form is stamped on the reverse side of every yard you buy.

QUAKERS IN GREAT REVIVAL.

Friends Church to Stage World-Wide Campaign This Month.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, April 3. — The Friends' churches throughout the world will make an effort to place "Quakerism" and its fundamental teachings before the public during the month of April, according to information given out by Rev. Frank Dell, pastor of the First Friends Church of Whittier. The local church is the largest Friends Church in the world in point of construction and in membership.

"In these days," said Rev. Mr. Dell, "when the work of the Quaker church has been brought more prominently before the world than ever before by the attitude of the Quakers during the war and through their administration of relief funds for stricken Europe since the war, it should be a matter of widespread interest to consider not only the historical beginnings of Quakerism, but some of the fundamental truths for which Quakers have always stood.

"To this end the First Friends Church of Whittier will celebrate the month of April as "Quakerism month." Each Sunday evening and each Wednesday evening during the month some suitable phase of Quaker history for doctrine will be taken up and emphasized."

This evening Dr. Dell began the series of sermons by using for his text the memorable words of Sir John Crossland, regarding George Fox, the founder of the Friends Church, when he said, "He is as stiff as a tree, and as pure as a bell." This comment was made when George Fox was released from an English prison after spending a year in jail on account of his religious convictions.

GASHES THROAT, GOES TO POLICE STATION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, April 3.—F. W. Fisher, aged 32 years, a dishwasher in an East Fifth-street hotel, late Saturday night walked into the police station here with his throat badly slashed. Fisher at first stated that he had met two strangers on the beach and started to a room with them to get a drink when they attacked him and slashed his throat. Later he admitted to the police that he had tried to end his life because he was despondent. He was taken to the Martin Sanitorium, where his wounds were dressed, and later removed to the County Hospital.

CORONA POLICE CHIEF WOUNDED

Frank Redans Victim of "Bad Man's" Bullets.

Injuries Not Expected to Prove Fatal.

Posses Seek Assailant in Near-by Hills.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CORONA, April 2.—Chief of Police Frank E. Redans was shot three times early this afternoon by Jack Mais, a Mexican, the bullets taking effect in the officer's right breast, right arm and left thigh. The wounds, while serious, are not believed to be fatal and at a late hour Mr. Redans was resting easy and reported in no immediate danger of death.

Mais, who has the reputation of being a "bad" man, yesterday completed a term in the county jail following his conviction on a charge of wife beating. At the time of his arrest by Chief Redans, he threatened to "get" the chief, who paid no attention to the threat. On the expiration of his sentence yesterday, he came to Corona and sent word to the chief that he wanted to see him.

MEXICAN PULLS GUN.

Chief Redans went to the northeast part of the city park on Quarry street and there found Mais, who was standing in a vacant lot, carrying a bundle under his arm. When asked what he wanted and what he was carrying, Mais pulled a gun and fired three shots at the Chief.

Realizing that he was seriously injured, Chief Redans got into his automobile and returned to the business part of the city, informing a friend what had happended. He gave a complete description of the Mexican and told where the shooting had taken place and was then taken to his rooms at the Kinney Hotel. Dr. C. E. Shank was called and after giving the injured man first aid treatment, he was taken to the Riverside Community Hospital.

SHERIFF HEADS POSSE.

Sheriff Frank F. Wilson, assisted by Constable Peeler and Officer A. Humble, gather a posse, and hundreds of armed men, spent the rest of the day scouring the country in search of Mais, who is known to be heavily armed and prepared to kill the first man who approaches him.

Chief Redans assumed charge of the City's police department about four years ago and has an excellent record. Feeling against Mais runs high and threats have been made against him, should the posses locate their man.

Sheriff Wilson is taking personal charge of the case and, with many well-organized parties is prepared to spend the night in the hills which surround the city.

Elks Campaign for Service Men is Short of Goal.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, April 2.—Following an accurate tally, it was announced today by Ross T. Hickcox, chairman of the Elks' drive for the American Legion post, that $2500 has been raised during the campaign.

"That leaves us $500 short of the $3000 quota we set out to get," Mr. Hickcox said. "Although we canvassed the city and rural districts pretty thoroughly, if there is anyone who has not contributed and wants to aid this worthy cause, subscriptions may be given to Ray Edgar.

"Every cent of the money collected went toward paying off a debt incurred by the war veterans in maintaining their local club and clubrooms, and toward a lot of charity work the club has been doing."

SECRET OF SUCCESS THEOSOPHISTS' TOPIC

R. W. Machell, a member of Katherine Tingley's headquarters staff at Point Loma, and a former pupil of Mme. Blavatsky in London, spoke at Symphony Hall last evening on "The Secret of Success, from a Theosophical Standpoint." He said, in part:

"The secret of success, like the philosopher's stone, is a myth to the multitude, a dream to the idealist, a snare to the gambler, and a reality perhaps only to the one who has no personal interest in the outcome and consequently no fear of failure. This may seem an extraordinary assertion, but there is reason for it. Fear of failure implies a doubt, a suspicion if not a belief that the outcome of an enterprise is uncertain, whereas the secret of success should place its possessor beyond the reach of doubts and anxieties.

"Self-knowledge is the crown of life, the secret of success. The key to it lies in the teachings of theosophy. 'To live to benefit mankind is the first step,' we are told, and those who have taken that step can testify to the happiness that comes when one takes it whole-heartedly. When the unity of the universe is grasped as a fundamental fact in nature, when we make brotherhood our ideal, we shall measure our success in life by the degree to which we have identified our personal interests with the true interests of humanity."

FIRE CAUSES PANIC.

Rooming House Occupants Flee Blaze in Early Morning.

Occupants of a rooming house at 910 West Eighth street fled for their lives early yesterday morning when a fire started in the structure, filling it with smoke.

The damage to the rooming house a two-story frame building, was estimated at $5000. No one was injured, although a panic was produced by the fire. The rooming house was owned by J. Leonard.

Removing the Danger from Your Coffee Cup

FEW people really know what coffee is—every cup you drink contains about 2.5 grains of caffeine. This dangerous drug causes nervousness, irritates the heart, raises blood pressure, disturbs digestion and destroys sleep.

Yet no other drink can take the place of coffee, so you continue to drink it. If you could only find a real coffee that wouldn't hurt you ——!

Coffee Freed from Caffeine

You can enjoy a coffee—a genuine coffee—that is as harmless to nerves as it is delicious to the taste.

Science has perfected our process which removes 95% of the caffeine, the one harmful element, without affecting a single one of the good elements in coffee.

All the Good Retained

We remove the caffeine from the finest coffees obtainable and blend them to a standard that ensures a mellow, flavory, full-bodied cup. Careful roasting releases every bit of the goodness to delight you.

Since the drug caffeine is tasteless and odorless, and our process does not disturb the natural coffee oils from which all coffee derives its flavor and aroma, Kaffee Hag has that true coffee taste and satisfying after-effect you crave.

Make Kaffee Hag Your Coffee

Kaffee Hag will please any lover of good coffee. And it is safe even for children. If you do not agree that it makes as fragrant and delicious a cup as ever set you up on a brisk morning — your money back!

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

In his rooms in London, Sherlock Holmes, chatting with his friend, Dr. Watson, has a strange caller in the person of Dr. James Mortimer, a country practitioner, who produces and proceeds to read a remarkable document, dated 1742, which had been handed down to each succeeding master of Baskerville Hall, a huge estate situated in the midst of the gloomy moorlands of Devonshire. The paper relates the story of one Hugo Baskerville, a "most wild and Godless man," who, after setting his hounds on the trail of a beautiful peasant girl whom he had kidnaped, and who had escaped, died a horrible death under the fangs of a monstrous, diabolical black hound. From that time on a legend of evil had hung over the Baskervilles, and the document concluded by warning each heir to the title never to cross the moor after nightfall. Dr. Mortimer then produces a newspaper account of the sudden death of Sir Charles Baskerville, late master of the estate, a few months before, whose body had been found, features contorted as by fear, but with no evidence of physical injury. Investigators found no footprints on the ground around the body, but Dr. Mortimer did, he says. "A man's, or a woman's?" asks Sherlock Holmes. Dr. Mortimer's voice sinks almost to a whisper as he answers: "Mr. Holmes, they were the footprints of a gigantic hound!"

Chapter III.
THE PROBLEM.

I confess that at these words a shudder passed through me. There was a thrill in the doctor's voice which showed that he was himself deeply moved by that which he told us. Holmes leaned forward in his excitement and his eyes had the hard, dry glitter which shot from them when he was keenly interested.

"You saw this?"

"As clearly as I see you."

"And you said nothing?"

"What was the use?"

"How was it that no one else saw it?"

"The marks were some twenty yards from the body and no one gave them a thought. I don't suppose I should have done so had I not known this legend."

"There are many sheep-dogs on the moor?"

"No doubt, but this was no sheep-dog."

"You say it was large?"

"Enormous."

"But it had not approached the body?"

"No."

"What sort of night was it?"

"Damp and raw."

"But not actually raining?"

"No."

"What is the alley like?"

"There are two lines of old yew hedge, twelve feet high and impenetrable. The walk in the center is about eight feet across."

"Is there anything between the hedges and the walk?"

"Yes, there is a strip of grass about six feet broad on either side."

"I understand that the yew hedge is penetrated at one point by a gate?"

"Yes, the wicket gate which leads on to the moor."

"Is there any other opening?"

"None."

"So that to reach the yew alley one either has to come down it from the house or else to enter it by the moor gate?"

"There is an exit through a summer house at the far end."

"Had Sir Charles reached this?"

"No; he lay about fifty yards from it."

"Now, tell me, Dr. Mortimer—and this is important—the marks which you saw were on the path and not on the grass?"

"No marks could show on the grass."

"Were they on the same side of the path as the moor gate?"

"Yes; they were on the edge of the path on the same side as the moor gate."

"You interest me exceedingly. Another point. Was the wicket gate closed?"

"Closed and padlocked."

"How high was it?"

"About four feet high."

"Then anyone could have got over it?"

"Yes."

"And what marks did you see by the wicket-gate?"

"None in particular."

"Good heavens! Did no one examine?"

"Yes, I examined, myself."

"And found nothing?"

"It was all very confused. Sir Charles had evidently stood there for five or ten minutes."

"How do you know that?"

"Because the ash had twice dropped from his cigar."

"Excellent! This is a colleague, Watson, after our own heart. But the marks?"

"He had left his own marks all over that small patch of gravel. I could discern no others."

Sherlock Holmes struck his hand against his knee with an impatient gesture.

"If I had only been there!" he cried. "It is evidently a case of extraordinary interest, and one which presented immense opportunities to the scientific expert. That gravel page upon which I might have read so much has been long ere this smudged by the rain and defaced by the clogs of curious peasants. Oh, Dr. Mortimer, Dr. Mortimer, to think that you should not have called me in! You have indeed much to answer for."

"I could not call you in, Mr. Holmes, without disclosing these facts to the world, and I have already given my reasons for not wishing to do so. Besides, besides——"

"Why do you hesitate?"

"There is a realm in which the most acute and most experienced of detectives is helpless."

"You mean that the thing is supernatural?"

"I did not positively say so."

"No, but you evidently think it."

"Since the tragedy, Mr. Holmes, there have come to my ears several incidents which are hard to reconcile with the settled order of nature."

"For example?"

"I find that before the terrible event occurred several people had seen a creature upon the moor which corresponds with this Baskerville demon, and which could not possibly be any animal known to science. They all agreed that it was a huge creature, luminous, ghastly, and spectral. I have cross-examined these men, one of them a hard-headed countryman, one a farrier, and one a moorland farmer, who all tell the same story of this dreadful apparition, exactly corresponding to the hell-hound of the legend. I assure you that there is a reign of terror in the district and that it is a hardy man who will cross the moor at night."

"And you, a trained man of science, believe it to be supernatural?"

"I do not know what to believe."

Holmes shrugged his shoulders.

"I have hitherto confined my investigations to this world," said he. "In a modest way I have combated evil, but to take on the Father of Evil himself would, perhaps, be too ambitious a task. Yet you must admit that the footmark is material."

"The original hound was material enough to tug a man's throat out, and yet he was diabolical as well."

"I see that you have quite gone over to the supernaturalists. But now, Dr. Mortimer, tell me this. If you hold these views, why have you come to consult me at all? You tell me in the same breath that it is useless to investigate Sir Charles's death, and that you desire me to do it."

"I did not say that I desired you to do it."

"Then how can I assist you?"

"By advising me as to what I should do with Sir Henry Baskerville, who arrives at Waterloo Station"—Dr. Mortimer looked at his watch—"in exactly one hour and a quarter."

"He being the heir?"

"Yes. On the death of Sir Charles we inquired for this young gentleman, and found that he had been farming in Canada. From the accounts which have reached us he is an excellent fellow in every way. I speak now not as medical man, but as a trustee and executor of Sir Charles's will."

"There is no other claimant, I presume?"

"None. The only other kinsman whom we have been able to trace was Rodger Baskerville, the youngest of three brothers of whom poor Sir Charles was the elder. The second brother, who died young, is the father of this lad Henry. The third, Rodger, was the black sheep of the family. He came of the old masterful Baskerville strain, and was the very image, they tell me, of the family picture of old Hugo. He made England too hot to hold him, fled to Central America, and died there in 1876 of yellow fever. Henry is the last of the Baskervilles. In one hour and five minutes I meet him at Waterloo Station. I have had a wire that he arrived at Southampton this morning. Now, Mr. Holmes, what would you advise me to do with him?"

"Why should he not go to the home of his fathers?"

"It seems natural, does it not? And yet, consider that every Baskerville who goes there meets with an evil fate. I feel sure that if Sir Charles could have spoken with me before his death, he would have warned me against bringing this the last of the old race, and the heir to great wealth, to that deadly place. And yet it cannot be denied that the prosperity of the whole poor bleak countryside depends upon his presence. All the good work which has been done by Sir Charles will crash to the ground if there is no tenant of the Hall. I fear lest I should be swayed too much by my own obvious interest in the matter, and that is why I bring the case before you and ask for your advice."

Holmes considered for a little time.

"Put into plain words, the matter is this," said he. "In your opinion there is a diabolical agency which makes Dartmoor an unsafe abode for a Baskerville—that is your opinion?"

"At least I might go the length of saying that there is some evidence that this may be so."

"Exactly. But surely, if your supernatural theory be correct, it could work the young man evil in London as easily as in Devonshire. A devil with merely local powers like a parish vestry would be too inconceivable a thing."

"You put the matter more flippantly, Mr. Holmes, than you would probably do if you were brought into personal contact with these things. Your advice, then, as I understand it, is that the young man will be as safe in Devonshire as in London. He comes in fifty minutes. What would you recommend?"

Patrolman Cooper, who was near, ran to the scene of the shooting and managed to catch one of the principals with a gun in his hand. When Detectives Williams and Longeuvan arrived from the Central Station the other revolvers and automatics were out of sight. Statements made by Ambriola led to the arrests of the Fontino boys.

Four others were injured on Pico street, in the 4800 block, when an unidentified automobile crashed into the car driven by Albert V. Marcellus of 1919 North Catalina street. With Mr. Marcellus was his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graham of 122 North Hobart Boulevard. The automobile responsible for the collision was traveling in the opposite direction. The four occupants of Marcellus's car were badly bruised and cut. All were treated at the Receiving Hospital.

Here's Your Health Breakfast

Drink the juice of two California oranges—nothing equals orange juice to correct acidity and to prevent biliousness. Heat two Shredded Wheat Biscuits in the oven to restore crispness and eat them with milk or cream.

Shredded Wheat

is 100 per cent whole wheat made digestible by steam-cooking, shredding and baking. Better than mushy porridges for children because it encourages them to chew, thereby developing sound teeth. Cereals and fresh fruits—that's the food combination for health and long life.

Two Biscuits with milk or cream make a complete, nourishing meal. Delicious with peaches, berries, raisins, prunes, sliced bananas and other fruits. TRISCUIT is the Shredded Wheat cracker—a real whole wheat toast—eaten with butter or soft cheese.

APRIL FOOLS.

A coal strike for April Fool's day was well timed. The men duped into such adventure by radical leaders form the grand army of the foolish.

THE WORK HABIT.

The Bureau of Economic Research is going to employ a lot of men to make a nation-wide inquiry as to why a lot of men are out of employment. The reason why a lot of folks are not working is that they have lost their jobs. But there are others who are out of employment of their own wish and volition.

THE BREAD LINE.

Now they are persuading us to eat spinach bread. We have already tried alfalfa meal biscuits and bean muffins. Seems as if they were disguising bread in more different ways than were ever dreamt of before. They are flavoring it with almost everything but wheat. If a man had to live by bread alone he could find varieties enough to hint at a course dinner.

GERMANY ON ICE.

The new German Ambassador says that neither apology nor excuse can explain the use of ice water. It simply doesn't belong. It is about the worst thing with which the human tummy may be insulted. Statesmen who visit the German Embassy in Washington and ask for a drop of water to cool their parched tongues will find no commerce with the hydrant. The Ambassador says he does not use water. He has the intention of filling the embassy cellars with the vintages of the Rhine and Moselle valleys and visitors who do not indulge these vinous beverages will have to go unrefreshed. The embassy is German territory and the Eighteenth Amendment does not apply. But if Dr. Wiedfelt gets too foamy about it we may call out the reserves and take possession of his German oasis.

THE BRUSH PILE.

Quite a group of male citizens of Sacramento are boycotting the razor for three months. There is to be a great celebration of the forty-niners during the week of May 23 and it was agreed that whiskers should be a feature thereof. Accordingly a lot of young business men signed up with the hairy brigade for three months. For that period they are to let their beards grow their wildest and the one who shows the longest whiskers at the opening of the festival will receive a prize of $49. Some of the candidates are using tonics, stimulants and coaxers on the side. They are developing all the hairy strength possible. Three months is a short time in which to put on a mattress, but some of the entrants are showing remarkable progress. Of course there will be no knee-lengths, but some of the rivals are already so enmeshed with brush that their wives can only reach them with a pickle fork. The city is said to be filling up with Delilahs who await with impatience the great day of the shearing.

THOU SHALT NOT.

Although it has some noisy and insistent backing it is not thought that Congressman Johnson's bill to forbid smoking by women in the District of Columbia will make much progress on the legislative path. Congressman Volstead, who is a bear for prohibition, does not want to prohibit the ladies from smoking. Alice Robertson, the only woman in Congress, is also opposed to the measure. She says she is in favor of prohibiting anything that becomes a menace, but she sees no menace in cigarettes. Uncle Joe Cannon, the dean of Congress, remarked when approached on the subject: "Hell! let the women smoke. My mother used to do it back in North Carolina and nobody thought anything about it. What's the use of fussing about it now?" But Congressmen have to fuss about something or else they couldn't gather notoriety. Congressman Johnson himself thinks he is blazing the trail to immortality. After Washington has been made smokeless he expects the rest of the world to fall into line.

BACK NUMBERS.

British investors who are trying to offset the claims of the United States by digging up repudiated issues of the bonds of various Confederate States issued before or during the Civil War will not gain much headway. There is an issue of Mississippi bonds dating back as far as 1831. All the issues have been repudiated by vote of the people or the State Legislature. A man could not go to Washington with a million dollars' worth of these securities and buy him a cheese sandwich. The fact that they happen to be held by Englishmen will not help any. Many of them were issued for railroads or improvements that never materialized. The people did not get value received; neither did the present holders lose much of anything by them. They are about as dead as the mummy of Rameses. However, if Johnny Bull wishes to make out a check for the full amount of his obligation to this country on account of the war he might be permitted to deduct the actual cost to him of these southern securities. It wouldn't be just, but there would be no serious objection. But to merely urge it as an offset will not get Great Britain anywhere.

LAST OF THE HAPSBURGS.

On a lonely, fog-drenched island of the Atlantic, off the African coast, the last candle on the altar of the Holy Roman Empire flickered feebly in its socket Saturday morning and was snuffed out. A flame that had burned brightly for 1000 years, that had lighted at times international holocausts, is forever dead. Dethroned, an exile from his empire, itself dismembered, sequestered as a royal prisoner by an Allied guard, the last of the once regnant House of Hapsburg passed from the earth's stage into the infinite.

Five years ago Karl of Austria ascended with faltering steps a tottering throne. Perhaps he was more to be pitied than blamed. Fate had marked him for royalty, although two years before he probably had never dreamed of reigning over Austria-Hungary. During the critical years before the World War broke he was a careless young prince of a line that was far removed from the throne. He had cared nothing about politics and lived a care-free life in the open. He was a fine horseman, a crack shot and never bothered his young brain with the machinations of diplomacy.

Then came the tragic episode of the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, followed two years later by the demise of Franz-Josef, and the young Karl, then serving in the Austrian light horse, was hailed as Emperor. He found his kingdom assailed by enemies on all sides and held as a veritable vassal by the ruler of Germany. Seldom has a prince ascended a throne under more discouraging conditions. He was cursed from the beginning by the heritage that was thrust upon him.

Repeatedly during the two years that followed before the signing of the Armistice, Karl tried to get into communication with the French government. He was astute enough to know that to continue to follow in Germany's wake was to plunge this empire into chaos. But his efforts were blocked by the domination of Berlin and the treachery of the war party in his own kingdom. After it was too late, the Allies learned that the "Dear Sixtus" letter, the authenticity of which was denied from Berlin, was genuine. Karl had tried feebly but futilely to break away. Like many a ruler before him, he was virtually a prisoner on his own throne.

When the crash came he went with his Italian consort into exile in Switzerland. Queen Zita was a descendant of the Italian Bourbons; and since the Armistice she has displayed some of the hereditary traits of the women of the Borgias. Twice she dragged the unwilling Karl back into Hungary in a forlorn hope to regain the lost throne. For his own part, Karl expressed a perfect willingness to renounce all claims to royalty and live as a private citizen in Hungary. To this neither Zita nor the Allies would consent.

After his second attempt to regain his throne he was carried in a British war vessel to the island of Madeira and guarded there, much as was Napoleon at St. Helena. Broken in health and spirit, he succumbed to an attack of pneumonia, possibly the kindest act of destiny in his turbulent career.

Karl, the last of the Hapsburgs, was a victim of civilization rather than a sinner against it. He was born in the twilight of monarchies, and he passed into the night of eternity without having enjoyed even an hour in the sunlight. Had he been sufficiently strong, he might have broken the chain that bound him to the oar of the Hohenzollerns. But he was a creature of his environment. He did what his forebears had done for a thousand years before him. But the heart of the world had changed. The torch of Liberty invaded the twilight zone that made the domination of the House of Hapsburg impossible; and he sought to reign at a time when the will of his people compelled self-government.

His life was crushed out by the weight of a fatal heritage.

During the thousand years of its royal dominance, the House of Hapsburg passed through a checkered career, in which there were more dark squares than light ones. There were times when the Hapsburgs defended the frontier that separated Islam from the Christian states. A score of princes of that line fell leading Christian troops against the Ottoman invader. The kings of this house were the heads of the Holy Roman Empire.

Then came the Middle Ages and the Napoleonic era. Valor in the House of Hapsburg had been replaced by guile. The breed had degenerated. The Austrian emperors were the most treacherous in Europe, often more dangerous to their friends than to their enemies. The lack of morality and justice on the throne was reflected in the people and some of the Austrian cities were the most licentious in Europe. Austria was intellectual, but, in the higher circles, inclined to be immoral.

During the World War the House of Hapsburg was little more than a vassal of the Hohenzollerns. The political atmosphere of Eastern Europe is clearer and more wholesome since it is no longer polluted by the machinations of the Hapsburgs.

Karl retained until his death the warm affections of the little group of his countrymen by whom he was intimately known. Less than a month ago one of the former Austrian nobles, himself now in destitute circumstances, sold a famous Rembrandt that had been in his family for more than 200 years and sent the 600,000 francs received for it to the ex-Emperor.

The Hapsburgs have passed into history. The torch of Liberty has burned out one of the plague spots of Europe.

AGAIN WE HAVE WITH US.

The time almost is at hand for the advent of the kindly, thoughtful and wise stranger who respectfully rings the front door bell, scrapes deprecating feet on the door mat, extends an eager hand backed by a genial smile, pats Mary on the head, glances indulgently and admiringly at the baby, talks convincingly of great affairs, and departs in an aura of good-will after leaving a card.

Probably, in addition to his name, the card will bear an excellent likeness of the engaging and magnetic visitor and some few modest adversions to his sterling worth and patriotism and, particularly, to his overwhelming and almost incoherent desire to serve his fellow-man.

By the warmth of his greeting, by the wealth of his understanding, by the courage of his lofty convictions, and by the depth of his quiet determination to improve existing conditions you will recognize in him a man above the ordinary.

You will find, for he will tell you so, that he is a man you can trust with your last dollar or your first Liberty Bond. You will discover that the soothing tones of his voice and the optimism of his self-belief can paint a picture of peace, prosperity and progress charming to behold. He will insist upon shouldering your burdens; that is, your mental burdens, such as the continued high cost of living, the increasing tax rate, insufficient income, and an unreasonable landlord.

As to the first two, he will convince you he is the one man to bring them down. As to the third, that to him and him alone must be allotted the diplomatic task of bringing it up. You feel almost sorry for the unreasonable landlord when this sterling character concludes his righteous outburst of uncontrollable indignation. You know that you can cease worrying about that phase of life. The landlord will be attended to.

There are other problems this superior being is prepared to meet and overcome. For instance, poor car service, indifferent telephone service, bad roads, official arrogance or discourtesy, street lights, the gas bill. You find yourself awed, humbled, impressed—grateful.

You marvel that this brilliant student, this dominant personality, this man of success, can find the time and inclination to give you a minute of his valuable time. You, stumblingly and hesitantly, and with due apology, impart to him a few of your own worthless ideas and inspirations.

You are bewildered by his instant and unquestionably genuine enthusiastic reception of your halting advances. He is charmed, transported, by your intelligent grasp of public affairs. He tells you so, he again grasps you by the hand, this time with a warmer, firmer, more comradely grasp than before. Your ideals are his ideals; you understand him, he understands you.

He announces the necessity for his departure, as he is a busy man with many important engagements. He cannot find his hat. You join him in the search. Alas, the hat is discovered under the davenport, where the baby, with a burst of strength beyond his years, has thrust it. The hat is dented, crumpled and decidedly dusty. You are particularly humiliated at the dust that clings to the wreck.

You desperately cast about for fitting words to express your mortification. But, no! The great man smiles, smiles, smiles. It is nothing. Your baby is a wonder. More smiles, chuckles of high good nature, kindliness freights the atmosphere. He is gone.

You sit down and draw a deep breath and try to collect your scattered wits. You have talked to a candidate for office. Which office, you can't remember. You look up the card. The baby has chewed it beyond recognition. The campaign is on.

FOR THE GOOD OF THE CHILDREN.

Management of schools, training of youth, choice of teachers and text-books, construction and maintenance of suitable buildings, upholding high scholastic standards—are not these to every one of us matters of prime importance?

There is not one of us but would declare that before everything else he has at heart the efficiency of our public schools and the morale of the teachers and the children. He would declare this with a virtuous glow. And he would mean every word of it.

No preacher from the pulpit but with unfailing regularity drives home to the parents of his flock the solemn duty they owe to the young souls they have brought into the world. No daily paper but every once and so often adjures its readers in sonorous editorials not to neglect that coming generation in whose hands will be placed the perpetuation of this glorious republic.

No woman's club but at suitable intervals wonders what our boys and girls are coming to and swears eternal devotion to the cause of better and fuller education. No man or woman but would indignantly deny that he placed any interest or duty before the one he owed to the school and the family.

The average good man honestly intends to do whatever is in his power to promote the cause of public education. Let us view the question, however, as a practical and not a sentimental issue.

Our public-school system furnishes school trustees in the small towns and boards of education in the large cities to control and manage the education of our youth. On their efforts to a very large extent depend the fruits of the work performed in the public schools. And, of course, the future of the children, in which every one of us is so vitally concerned, depends on the selection of the school trustees.

So, naturally, when the day comes around for electing school trustees every zealous citizen who has thrilled at the sermon of the pastor or been moved by the eloquent editorial, having the good of the children at heart, will turn out in full force to cast his or her vote for the best available candidate.

But do they? They do not. In one country town in progressive Southern California with a registration of 800 electors at a recent election for a school trustee only seventeen cast their votes. Indeed, no election, Federal, State or county, brings out so small a vote as that for the school trustees. This indifference at the polls hardly agrees with the enthusiasm so easily expressed and so comfortably felt whenever the good of the children is the subject under discussion.

Nor in the small towns or generally in the large cities are the best citizens found willing, at a slight sacrifice to their personal interests, to fill these important posts. So too often political climbers of small educational or business ability become the choice of the people for this office on which the good of the children must stand or fall.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

EASY PHILOSOPHY.

Philosophy is easy, when one is stacking high, and one can hand out breezy remarks to those who sigh. For weeks it has been raining out here where I abide; and people are complaining as through the mud they slide. Jim Whitaker was roaring around the other night; "the way the rain keeps pouring," he grumbled, "is a fright. The silly rain keeps swatting my roof with mournful sound; my garden sass is rotting and spoiling in the ground; I should be out devoting my time to honest toil, but everything is floating. I cannot dig the soil." "Cheer up," I cried, "old croaker, your grumbling is a crime; this rain is sure a soaker, but it will end in time. And when it's done and ended the blooming earth will thrive, and you will say it's splendid and fine to be alive." Next morning I lamented. "This rainstorm has its gall; its measly spite it's vented on my retaining wall. The wall is washed to blazes, that wall of pure cement; the language has no phrases to cope with this event! Oh, willow, willow, waly! And likewise lackaday! And once I blithered gayly, ere hard luck came my way!" Jim Whitaker came snooping around my blasted home, to see if I was whooping an optimistic pome. "I see," he said, "you're cheery as any other guy; philosophy is easy until hard luck comes by."

WALT MASON.

CITIES.

Shame! Shame! Think only shame
Of Cities; while the countryside
For miles and miles is green with grass,
And grain, and pasture lands are cool
With shade, and moist with pool on pool
Of brooks, reflecting all that pass
In meadow hills or sky.
Think shame,—think shame of Cities, when
In all her moods great Nature calls
To every one in each huge mass
Of moving men on city streets,
Within huge buildings tall, or in Great factories where machinery din
And smoke and gas and darkness meets
Each slaving workman every day.
Oh, what a shame it is to boast
Of Cities large and great, when all
That greatness represents a mass
Of poor humanity crushed down:
Oh, what a joy to leave the town
Forever far behind, and pass
In perfect peace and quietude
Through meadow-land and flowered grass
To homely joys in peaceful mood.

A NEW PORTRAIT OF ST. PAUL.

[From the London Telegraph.]

There is the authority of Prof. Lanciani for the announcement that excavations at Rome have brought to light portraits of St. Peter and St. Paul, painted from the life.

The claim is bold, and without the indorsement of the great Roman archaeologist, we might have received it as a too romantic guess. But there is no staggering improbability in it.

We have in the catacombs of Domitilla fresco paintings of Christian inspiration which are universally admitted to date from the first century of our era.

The best opinion has it that the well-known head of Christ there, which has given the type artists have worked upon from age to age, was painted but little later. It would be an extravagance of skepticism to deny that portraits of the two great apostles painted by men who knew them may have survived to our own age.

* * *

St. Peter and St. Paul are many times depicted in the catacombs, but none of the known paintings can be confidently ascribed to their own time. To affirm that the frescoes just discovered are authentic contemporary portraits is a task which we must leave to archaeology. In such a matter only the long studies of an expert can provide competence to judge, and the rest of the world must rest content with the decision of authority. But we may well consider the circumstances of the discovery and the historic possibility that Rome can now show the apostles in their habit as they lived.

The frescoes were found in the course of excavation for building which brought to light a hitherto unknown catacomb, with the familiar galleries, crypt, and church. On the walls of the church were found "marvelous frescoes of an early date," that is, we presume, of the first century.

Of the date archaeologists can be sufficiently certain, and there will be equal certainty whether the subjects of the frescoes are St. Peter and St. Paul. But once it is established that we have St. Peter's and St. Paul's portraits painted by an artist of the first century we must feel the great probability that they were painted, if not actually from life, at least by one who had known his subjects, and was to meet the criticism of others who knew them.

* * *

All authority and tradition agree that St. Peter and St. Paul suffered martyrdom at Rome. In the second century Tertullian wrote that Peter was crucified by Nero, but a little later is the record that at his own desire he was nailed to the cross head downwards.

Paul was a Roman citizen, and for him no worse death than the sword was lawful. Tertullian has named the day and the place on which he fell. The traveler today is shown in the ancient prison on the Capitoline, the pillar to which St. Peter was chained. The church which stands beyond Tiber on the site of the Janiculum, the barbican of primitive Rome, was founded by Constantine to consecrate the ground on which the apostle suffered crucifixion.

St. Paul, tradition records, was beheaded outside the Ostian gate, two miles from Rome, and on the way there stands a chapel to commemorate the place where the two apostles separated on their way to martyrdom. We may question dates and details, but there is no reason to doubt that the two apostles lived some time in Rome, and there suffered death, whether together in that Neronian persecution which is described in a famous passage of Tacitus, or at some other time and manner.

* * *

What converts they had made, what friends they had in Rome, we cannot tell. It has been held that in the first century Christianity, a religion of eastern aliens and of the poor, a religion with no conjurers' magic, and no sensual excitement to offer, had made no impression on the higher ranks of Roman citizens.

Tradition rather suggests that there were those even in families of high rank and power who had heard the new gospel.

It is at least certain that before the first century was at an end Christianity could command the services of artists of technical skill and delicate feeling. Whether the new portraits exhibit this accomplishment we are not informed. But of the verisimilitude there are certain tests.

The Vatican has a medal of the second century which shows St. Peter with curly hair and beard, through which a strong jaw shows. His forehead recedes, and his head is round.

A document of still earlier date describes St. Paul as "a man small in size, bald, bow-legged, sturdy, with eyebrows meeting, and a slightly prominent nose, full of grace." The apostle himself was content to say that his bodily presence was weak.

TO THE UNEMPLOYED

By Henry Christeen Warnack.

If you want a job—and 20,000 of us right now are out of jobs—you can only begin, wherever you are and whoever you are, by doing the thing at hand. The law of life compels us all to sell the thing that we best know or can best do to the man or the concern who needs it the most. The truth is that somebody does need your work just as much as you need a job and that the world will never be right until the two of you get together and give it the best that is in you both for co-operation.

You owe the world a living, just as much as it owes you one, and you can only pay the world for bringing you along so far as you have come by selling yourself, exactly as you truly are, at the market price in the market place.

Nature abhors a vacuum, so when you are at the lowest ebb of finances and are in the sorest of straights, rejoice and look up, for you are in a better position than ever before in your life to be filled. It is when we appear stagnant and know not whence to turn that we are most likely to be caught up in a veritable whirlwind of activity.

Do not blame yourself for what is a general condition of the whole country and of the times, but do not forget that a hard experience is always intended to drive both the individual and his nation to such distress that we will be compelled to ask for divine guidance and to obey it when it is received.

The highest success does exactly the same thing as the most bitter need, for the only way to keep on being successful is to expand until your responsibility becomes so great that you are obliged to look to the Spirit for aid in carrying on.

Looking to the Spirit means looking within. Therefore seek to find in your own heart and mind what has seemed to displace you and, having found it, reform yourself on that point. It may be that you have been wasteful in days of plenty or that you have never worked for the sake of doing good work, but only for the pay. It may be that you have talents which you have not been using and opportunities that you have not taken; that you have lacked that sincerity and purpose that can take chances which look desperate, yet that are nothing in the face of real faith. It may be that you have shut the door in your own face by trying to take short cuts instead of following the true road and that you have asked for outside help before exhausting every means at your own command for helping yourself.

Any way, take stock of yourself, put the knife to the canker, and then look for a fresh start with a sure knowledge that not one of God's children can ever be outside of His love or His plan and not one of us can truly be out of our own place.

To repeat and put it practically, the work you need just as surely needs you and the job you are looking for is looking for you. Want the work that you are best fit for and want it for the sake of doing good work, as much as for the pay, and you will certainly get it if it does not first get you.

The law of getting is the law of giving. If you do not put out something of a magnet, you can never draw things your way. Don't wait to be struck by the lightning of luck. You may be living in a land where that kind of storm never happens.

Have no mood but joy, have no state of mind except serenity, have no passion other than truth, have no attitude save glad expectancy, and the very stars will fall at your feet.

THIS IS THE DAY

Made memorable in the annals of American letters by the birth of Washington Irving. The great historian and humorist was born in New York in 1783 and died at his home, Sunnyside, near Tarrytown, Nov. 28, 1859.

Washington Irving ranks with Prescott and Motley as the chief of American historians. His most widely read books are "The Alhambra" and "Rip Van Winkle," but his delicate humorous touch is seen best in his Knickerbocker's History of New York. During his lifetime 600,000 volumes of his works were sold in the United States while he became immediately popular with the British reading public.

He carried on a very valuable research work in the archives of Spain, to which country he was appointed United States Minister in the year 1842.

This day was also noted in the birth of another American author, Edward Everett Hale, in the year 1822. He was educated for the ministry and was well known in New England as a Unitarian preacher. His name is immortalized in his masterpiece, "The Man Without a Country."

This is the day that marked the inception of the Panama Canal project. On April 3, 1906, President Roosevelt appointed the Panama Canal Commission that took the first practical steps for the digging of the great ditch.

Names Toned Down.

During the war the rowboats, dories, sharpies and small catboats on Great South Bay ran largely to such names as Superdreadnaught III, Invincible, Jr., Bomb, Rapid Fire and Scout. Now one sees painted on the stern of similar craft: Peaceful Polly, Sally Lunn, Sister Sue and Margery.—[New York Evening Post.

A MODERN HOMER.

The Wages of Sin.

"Bredren," exclaimed the preacher as he came across a portion of his flock engaged in pursuing the goddess of chance. "Don' yo' all know it's wrong to shoot craps?" "Yas, pahson," admitted one parishioner sadly, "an' b'lieve me, Ah's payin' fo' mah sins."—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

SERMON TOPICS RUN GAMUT OF INTEREST.

Siamese Twins, Ghosts, Morals and Other Subjects Discussed from Local Pulpits.

Almost every subject imaginable, ranging from "Ancient Egypt" and "Modern Morals" and from "Ghosts" to "The Siamese Twins," was discussed yesterday from Los Angeles pulpits. A few excerpts from some of the day's noteworthy sermons are printed below:

CHILD IS IN NEED OF JESUS CHRIST."

The great need of humanity is not material prosperity, nor new industrial forms of government, according to Dr. Ray C. Harker, who, in a sermon at the West Adams Methodist Church yesterday, said that the one need of this sad old world is the religion of Jesus Christ. In part Dr. Harker said:

"We are living in a torn world. It is torn politically, industrially, socially. If you have a correct map in your mind depends upon whether you have consulted the dispatches today or not. The world is torn industrially. Millions are out of work. Perhaps six millions were idle; now there are three times as many millions who are idle. The world is torn morally. A sag in the moral tone has come. We must go back and back to our ideals of the past. There. Millions in the world are starving. This is not because the soil is not rich, nor because the rains have not fallen, nor because the sun has not shone. The vast majority of cases it is because hate and murder are in the world instead of love. Perhaps the greater crisis ever confronting the human race than confronts it today. And an adequate program to meet this crucial time must be given by the Church of Jesus Christ. How is the church going to meet this great need? It will be by the consecrated personality that presents the gospel of Jesus as the word of life. This gospel must be enshrined in the hearts of men before we have consecrated men we will have the sinews for a holy crusade in all the world and under all skies."

JESUS KEPT THE SEVENTH DAY.

Speaking on "Why I Keep the Seventh Day of the Week," Evangelist K. Dickson, at the Philharmonic Auditorium building, last night said that the seventh-day Sabbath is a perpetual institution that was created for man in the beginning of the world, at least 2000 years before a Jew existed. He said the Sabbath, said the Lord rested, blessed and sanctified the day—three acts which have never been helpless to God or to duplicate upon any other day.

"The purpose of this great institution was that man might at all times remember that God created the world in six literal days and not in six long periods of time causing it to evolve from one stage to another," said the speaker. "It is a notable fact that wherever the true Sabbath of the Bible has been kept and honored by men the man-made theory of evolution has never thrived, nor has idolatry been able to survive."

It was noted by the evangelist that in Christ's teachings and example the seventh day of the week was always elevated and kept, as it was also in the lives and teachings of the apostles. "All argument should end when we find the example of Christ," said the evangelist. "As for me, I will strive to keep the Sabbath Jesus kept."

TELLS WHY PEOPLE SHRINK FROM GOD.

In a sermon on "The God of the Bible," preached at the Church of the Open Door yesterday, Dr. R. A. Torrey declared that the reason some men do not wish to believe in God is because they wish to continue in sin without fear of punishment. In part Dr. Torrey said:

Dr R.A.Torrey

"If there is no God, there is no hope, there is no certainty, there is no assurance that there is a moral order in the universe, no assurance that wickedness may not finally triumph over goodness, that pain may not triumph over pleasure, that woe may not triumph over joy, that hell may not triumph over heaven, that this earth itself may not fly into a chaos at any moment, and human society become a madhouse. There is a God. Nature proves it. I do not care how far back you put God by the doctrine of evolution, by the nebular hypothesis or by any other doctrine, at the beginning of the process there must have been an intelligent Being who put into the primordial protoplasm the power of developing into what now is. History also proves that there is a God. History at times seems a tangled skein, but as we study it in a large way we find that throughout the entire seeming jangle of events wrought out through human ambitions and human passions, one ever increasing, intelligent, moral purpose runs. The Bible proves there is a God, not merely because it asserts that there is a God, but that book is so utterly different from all other books that it demands a God back of it to account for it. The experience of each individual proves the existence of God, but above all, the experience of every Christian proves it. I know there is a God. I know God in my individual and personal experience. I have met Him and had dealings with him. God is to me the one great reality."

PSYCHOANALYSIS UPHELD BY RABBI.

Psychoanalysis and the study of psychology in general were recommended by Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin in a discourse on "Hidden Forces" at the Temple B'nai B'rith last Saturday. In part Dr. Magnin said:

Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin

"Mankind will never begin to solve the most difficult problems that confront the race until the hidden recesses of the human mind are investigated thoroughly and understood by the majority of people. The trouble is that we do not understand ourselves, so how can we understand the phenomena around us? A few years ago the human mind was believed to be a simple affair and morality a matter of simple choice. Today we know that there are reasons for our fears, our hatreds, our passions. Many mean well who lack the power to do well. The cause may be physical or it may be purely mental. At all events the problem must be studied carefully and the key to the solution discovered. Man is a many-sided creature, a mixture of many vices and many virtues. A proper analysis of himself, if he be strong enough and intellectual enough to make it, or by some authority who understands him better than he understands himself, may help to make a new man of him. Psychoanalysis, properly applied, handled in a careful, balanced, sensible manner, is not a fad or a passing hobby. We are only beginning to find out who and what we are. The key to progress is knowledge."

"ARMENIAN HEROES DESERVE REWARD."

Rev. Dan A. Trundle, executive secretary of the Justice to Armenia Society, supplied the pulpit of the Vermont Square Christian Church yesterday morning. Speaking on "Armenia's Greatest Need," Rev. Mr. Trundle said, in part:

"Of all the nationals that either by fighting or financing shared the burden and bore the brunt of the task on the side of the Allies, Armenia deserves the highest honors. She should have had for her reward a fair chance and an unmolested peace, with liberty to rebuild her lost fortunes and re-establish happy homes, and a smiling land. This would have been a meager reward for these superheroes and superheroines whose history of over a thousand years has been that of unquenchable faith and unimpeachable honor!

"And what was their reward? For their loyalty to democracy and love of the faith of our fathers they received a scourging so ghastly, so unspeakably shocking, that were it not for the testimony of those we cannot question we would find it hard to believe. And was it preventable? It was. Further outrages impend, not only for these unhappy people, but for many others. If our hearts have not turned to stone and the noble quality of justice can find a way to function in our lives we will gladly welcome any reasonable and sane effort to end forever such hideously venomous conduct as that of Turkey, a nation that long ago forfeited her claims to the respect of mankind."

PASTOR DESCRIBES TRUE CHRISTIAN.

Preaching on "Three Marks of a Christian," at the Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church yesterday, Rev. M. Howard Fagan said that it is not enough that men shall learn about Christ but that the true Christian must live, as nearly as possible, the life that Jesus lived. In part, Rev. Mr. Fagan said:

"The name Christian occurs three times in the Bible. First in Acts 11:26—the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch. Then the first mark of a Christian is that he is a disciple—a learner of Jesus Christ. He has adopted a corresponding line of thought and action to that of his Teacher. The second occurrence of the word is in Acts 26:28. Agrippa said unto Paul, 'Almost thou persuades me to be a Christian.' A Christian, then, is one who is fully persuaded that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and upon this persuasion has obeyed His commands and is seeking to reproduce His life. The only other occurrence of the word Christian is in I Peter 4:16—'If any man suffer as a Christian let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God in this name.' To glorify God through Jesus Christ is the highest ideal of the Christian."

DECLARES GHOSTS ARE NOT DEMONS.

"Devils of yesterday and today" was the theme of a sermon by Dr. Herbert Booth Smith last night at Immanuel Presbyterian Church. In part, Dr. Smith said:

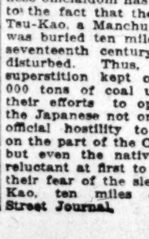
Dr Herbert Booth Smith

"In Bible times, a man was said to be possessed by an evil spirit when a spirit controlled his body or soul in such a way as to cause violent agitation and both bodily and mental suffering. There were two kinds of possession apparently, in one of which the soul alone was affected, as in the case of those possessed of the spirit of 'divination,' and those where the body primarily was the seat of the trouble. Many of those symptoms were undoubtedly the same as those seen nowadays in cases of lunacy and epilepsy; but Jesus sanctioned the belief in demons and we cannot suppose He was either ignorant or insincere.

"Ghosts are supposed to be the spirits of the dead as manifested to the living. The belief in ghosts is found among all primitive peoples. Because primitive man is more dominated by fear than hope, the evil ghost is much more prominent than the good spirit. The spirits of the sainted dead are wicked are supposed to return because their wants have not been satisfied. There is absolutely nothing in the Gospels which indicates that demons were supposed to be the unquiet spirits of the wicked dead. Jesus, while believing in the deathlessness of the human spirit, took pains to assure His disciples after His resurrection that He was not a ghost but their risen Lord, possessed of the same body He had before the crucifixion. If His resurrection is a sample of ours, surely we must believe in the resurrection of the body as well as the life everlasting."

DR. BROWN FLAYS REBELS OF TODAY.

"The rebels of 1864 who tried to overthrow the Constitution were cleaner and braver than the rebels of 1922," declared Dr. Bruce Brown, preaching last night at the South Park Christian Church. A few pointed paragraphs from Dr. Brown's discourse follow:



Dr Bruce Brown

The men who fired at the flag at Fort Sumpter were gentlemen compared with the ones who today are seeking to thwart the expressed will of the people, honestly and honorably embodied in the Constitution.

Every character like a building is the incarnation of some ideal. It is impossible to live high and think low.

The first thought that comes to the mind when a building is on fire is "Was it insured?" When life comes to an end we ask, "What did he do that was worth while?"

When a Christian moves to Los Angeles he hunts up the church. When a church member moves to Los Angeles the church has to hunt him up.

I'll tell the world that the church has to go some to catch up with some church members.

A good text for some people would be "I was glad when they said unto me let us go to the picture show Sunday night."

If the church would go into bankruptcy tonight it would leave a long list of creditors and debtors. Which are you?

Sometimes gifts cost more than anything else one possesses.

We would never have had the Declaration of Independence nor the Constitution of the United States if it had not been for the Bible.

What a travesty on the faith of our Revolutionary forefathers when the Bible is shut out of our public schools and the dance is invited in.

Shut Christ and the Bible out of any institution and bring the bunny hug and the fox trot in and there will come many a broken heart and home.

When the devil gets some folks the joke will be on the devil for he won't get much.

COAL AND MANCHU'S GHOST.

The Fushun coal mine of China is one of the largest open-cut mines in the world. The Tartars are known to have worked the mine in the twelfth century.

For years the Chinese have been urged to work the mine, but Chinese officialdom has always pointed to the fact that the spirit of Tai-Tsu-Kao, a Manchu Emperor, who was buried ten miles away in the seventeenth century must not be disturbed. Thus, for centuries superstition kept over 1,000,000,000 tons of coal untouched. In their efforts to open the mines, the Japanese not only found great official hostility to their scheme on the part of the Chinese officials, but even the native coolies were reluctant at first to work, through their fear of the sleeping Tai-Tsu-Kao, ten miles distant.—[Wall Street Journal.

Letters

Good Morning, Mr. Warde:

Almost a pertect morning—
Almost, I said—
Did you ever know anything to be absolutely perfect?
Of course, possibly, a pertect woman—but a perfect man, who did perfect things perfectly?
No?
Well, in 1472, in Naples, there was a printer who THOUGHT he had put one across—a perfect book.
His name was Sixtus Russinger, and in his book he inscribed:

"Sixtus the copies hath printed with much care,
Now twice revised by Dr. Olivere—
The happy purchaser in vain shall look,
Yet find no error in this book."

Well, Sixtus had to guess again. Right off the bat there was an error—and on the second page at that. So the volume was not perfect after all.

But, in 1922, in Los Angeles—

At The Times-Mirror Printing and Binding House we strive to make things as nearly perfect as is humanly possible. We train men to do their best—and we give them the best to do with.

When can we serve YOU?

Yours,

Task of Bettering City is Praised from Pulpit.

Calling upon Los Angeles citizens to make sacrifices to aid in the campaign against vice and crime, Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, last night spoke at Temple Auditorium on "Cleaning Up the City—Can Chief Everington Do It?" He took as his text Rev. xxi-27 and also a part of the eighth verse.

"John gives us a description of the Holy City," he said. "No doubt it is intended to be the ideal after which every city should be modeled. The history of the cities is the history of the world. They are 'the nerve centers and storm centers' of the world.

CITY CAN BE DIFFERENT.

"This is largely true, politically, socially, industrially, religiously and financially. The supreme task of Christianity is to make good cities out of our big cities. The individual grows by keeping before him an ideal of character. We will make our modern cities worth while, only as we keep before us an ideal of the true city. It is just as possible for a city of Christian citizens to be different from and better than a heathen city as it is possible for a Christian man to be superior to a heathen man.

"As Los Angeles grows in population and material wealth, it ought also to grow in moral cleanliness and character. But the price of civic righteousness is eternal vigilance and an everlasting warfare. It means a continual fight. The great difficulty in this battle for righteousness is that good people are liable to become disgusted and indifferent. We are prone to accept the philosophy that certain evils are necessary and cannot be abolished. We are told that these evils have always existed and always will exist, and what's the use of everlastingly trying to make the city chemically pure.

VICES NOT UNAVOIDABLE.

"But is it so?

"Personally, I do not believe in the fatalistic doctrine that the well-known vices of a great city are unavoidable and cannot be abolished.

"However, no one man, nor two men, can accomplish the work of morally cleaning up a great city. It is up to the Mayor and the Chief of Police to see that all laws are enforced. It is up to the judges to heartily support them in performing this duty. But back of all these there must be an interested, intelligent, enthusiastic, united people.

"The crying need of the hour is a Christian citizenship that will make itself felt publicly and privately in the enforcement of law and the establishment of moral conditions in our city. The best Christian men and women should be the best citizens. In this hour, Christianity must stop singing, 'I want to be an angel'—for there are not enough wings to go around anyhow—and get down to living the principles of Christianity and applying them the needs of the city.

APPEAL TO CITIZENS.

"I know that cleaning up a city is disagreeable business. Those who are making their money out of the degredation of manhood and womanhood will not hesitate to die about you, and work up some frame-up to destroy your reputation if possible. If necessary, they will go to the limit of brute force and murder. But the decent people of a city must be willing to make some sacrifices for the cause of their city and the good of humanity. They must be willing to give time, and contribute money, and throw the weight of their influence and active service behind the Chief of Police and other city officials who are ready to enforce the laws and give us as clean a moral city as possible.

"Let every citizen register, and be ready to vote. Let us as Christian people and decent citizens, stand together and perform our civic duties, and with that support I believe our officials will give us a better city in which to live than we have ever had before."

REFORMS ARE URGED BY MAYOR.

Says Citizens Must Aid Arm of Law in Driving Out Criminals.

Mayor Cryer, sharing the pulpit with Dr. John Eby at the Wilshire Presbyterian church last night, told the audience that Chief of Police Everington is doing his best to make Los Angeles a better city, but said that the Police Department and the courts will fail to achieve the results hoped for unless the people of the city give them hearty support.

Mayor Cryer stated that "of late we have been getting some unenviable advertising largely due to certain major crimes committed by well known people." Our criminal courts were never so crowded, he said, in spite of the fact that the number of courts handling criminal cases has been increased.

Bringing up the subject of the winter influx of the criminal element, the Mayor advocated, as a measure for preventing crimes committed by "the homeless, friendless and unemployed," the establishment of a lodging house in which men may find shelter and financial aid until they are able to secure honest employment. Such an institution, he said, would be better for the inmates and for the city than the City Jail.

Among other reforms advocated by Mayor Cryer were: Strict repression of the traffic in narcotics, stern justices for criminals in order that Los Angeles may become widely known as a city that does not dally with the lawbreaker, and the fixing of bail at a figure that will insure the presence of the accused in court on the day appointed for his trial.

"Above all, we should remember that, as a rule, we get the kind of government we deserve," said the mayor. "If we, as citizens, go to sleep on the job and become neglectful of public affairs, we need not be surprised to find that the lawless, grafting element has made away with the broom with which we intended to clean up the municipal establishment."

STRONG-ARM MEN ARE BUSY.

Roam Streets of Sonorstown. Send Two to Hospital, Rob Three.

Strong-arm artists who roamed the streets of Sonoratown early yesterday morning, slugged two men and relieved three of their convertible assets without recourse to any other argument than black jacks.

Albert Turner, 1850 Alameda Boulevard, Long Beach, came face to face with two men at the north end of the Broadway tunnel. A moment later his head came in contact with a padded slugshot stick. He woke up in the Receiving Hospital. Five dollars, the sum total of his immediate wealth was gone.

Joseph Smart, 24 years of age, 3782 South Main street, has but $3 to give for his safety, but that was not enough to satisfy the thugs, so he was robbed first and beaten afterward. He was taken to the Receiving Hospitol and treated for bruises and cuts. In a fall caused by the rain of blows he injured his hip.

Senon Oropeza, 2653 Lacy street, had a good gold watch and $20 when he walked lightly down New High street, shortly after midnight. He met the strong-arm crew for just a minute and parted much poorer.

City Prosecutor Scored in Resolutions Adopted.

Minister Declares Officials Support Bootleggers.

Declaring that thousands of public officials in Southern California are supporting the bootlegging business, Rev. Robert Shuler turned a verbal machine gun on the law-defying fraternity yesterday in addressing a for-men-only meeting in the Trinity Methodist Church, South, on law and order. He expressed regret at having heard that a representative of the Chamber of Commerce had said that such tactics as Chief of Police Everington is pursuing will give this city a bad name.

Rev. Mr. Shuler asserted emphatically that City Prosecutor Widney should resign. He explained that he saw a motion picture of a naked woman in a local theater and called Mr. Widney's attention to it. Mr. Widney, after investigating it, wrote that he saw nothing there which offended his sensibility, Mr. Shuler said.

"Standing as he does, the City Prosecutor is more dangerous to law and order than 100 bootleggers," remarked Mr. Shuler.

"The average policeman thinks that we want a wide-open town. The man who will not obey the law, regardless of what he thinks of prohibition, is a traitor to his country," he remarked, amid applause.

AMERICAN CRIME WAVE.

Maj. William T. Morgan talked on the crime wave in America, pointing out that before the war there were more murders in New York among 4,000,000 persons than there were in England, Scotland and Wales among 58,000,000 inhabitants.

He deplored the fact that the best citizens of this country dodge jury duty and permit the important law-and-order cases to be decided by professional jurymen who are, in some instances, hand in glove with the worst element.

Speaking of the Eighteenth Amendment, he said:

"When you put a law on the statute books, enforce it to the letter. If you do enforce it and it is wrong, public sentiment will repeal it."

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which was largely attended by members of the Citizens' Police, a resolution offered by Mr. Shuler was adopted, pledging support to the Chief of Police in his clean-up plans and deploring "the fact that the City Prosecutor has made a public statement condemning in strong language the program of the Chief." The resolution concludes as follows: "We now pledge ourselves to assemble at the call of the Christian ministers of Los Angeles at any time that a public utterance or attitude is needed by and from the Christian manhood of this city on matters of law and order, and we are ready, when the Christian leaders of this city think the hour demands, to effect an organization for the purpose of driving crime and criminals from our midst. We affirm that the hour has come for men to be men, and we are ready for any reasonable sacrifice to wipe out the stain of lawlessness and crime that has been placed by the criminal element upon our good name."

The meeting also adopted a resolution calling upon Atty.-Gen. Daugherty to institute an investigation of the activities of certain Department of Justice agents in conjunction with members of the Long Beach Police Department, in connection with the case wherein W. S. Jeffreys, an investigator, was recently arrested on a charge of having impersonated a Federal officer.

PRISONERS TO BE GIVEN MORE HELP.

Salvation Army Plans to Aid Men and Women in Jail and on Parole.

In a report given out yesterday by Brig. C. R. Boyd, divisional commander of the Salvation Army for Southern California, it is pointed out that increasing demands annually upon the resources of his organization have made it imperative to provide for increased facilities to handle the welfare work of the various departments.

Brig. Boyd stated that prison reform will be given greater consideration by the Salvation Army in Southern California and other sections of the country this year. The program is very comprehensive and is designed to help men and women in jail and others among the paroled prisoners.

According to Brig. Boyd, this welfare work is being directed in forty-one State prisons, one territorial prison, two Federal prisons, 313 county prisons, fifty-four city jails, eight reformatories, twenty-nine women's prisons and 250 courts.

Maj. Mrs. Elizabeth Galley of the local headquarters of the Salvation Army recently outlined a definite program to aid prisoners in the Los Angeles jails and hundreds of others on parole, who are seeking to re-establish themselves in society.

One of the important features of Maj. Galley's work is in behalf of prisoners in the local jails, held for their first infractions of the law. She also is helping paroled prisoners to obtain employment and become better citizens.

"We expect great results through this work," Brig. Boyd said yesterday. "It has always been the aim of our organization to help unfortunate men and women in prison by extending every possible aid to them and their families. Our records show we are obtaining greater results every year through our prison reform work."

REHEARSE FOR CRITICS' MINSTREL.

Screen Stars and Artists in Vaudeville Get Ready for Benefit Performance.

With scores of cinema celebrities and footlight favorites on the program, rehearsals started yesterday for the much-heralded "Billion-Dollar Minstrels" which the dramatic critics of Los Angeles are to present as the opening attraction at the Children's Exposition, April 8, at Exposition Park.

The "400" of screenland and the blue book of stagedom is well represented in the list of volunteers, who are staging the ultra modern minstrel show with songs and jokes of highly topical interest.

A large outdoor stage for the show is being rushed to completion at Exposition Park, opposite the main grand stand, and the reviewers' minstrels will have the distinction of christening with their performance the 150-foot structure, a stage three times as large as the biggest theatrical stage in Los Angeles.

The executive committee in charge includes Guy Price, Monroe Lathrop, Florence Lawrence, Gilbert Brown and Edwin Schallert, and this quintet has been working day and night to make the "Billion-Dollar Minstrels" one of the biggest affairs of its kind ever staged.

Fred Niblo is to be interlocutor, with Otis Harlan, Theodore Roberts, Neely Edwards, Lupino Lane, Clyde Cook, Larry Semon and Herbert Rawlinson as end men.

Among the stars chosen to occupy chairs are Pauline Frederick, Guy Bates Post, Gladys Walton, Adele Ritchie, Sessue Hayakawa, Lila Lee, King Baggot, Tsuri Aoki, Shirley Mason, David Butler, Mayron Aye, Mary Philbin, Tom Mix, Maryland Morne, Harry Carey, Roy Atwell, Will Van Vleck, Raymond Hatton, Edith Roberts, Agnes Ayers, Harry Meyers, Colleen Moore, George Walsh, Patsy Ruth Miller, Earle Williams, Ruth Roland, William Russell, Lois Wilson, Douglas McLean, Billy Bevan, Doris May, Reginald Denny, Ruth Renick, Enid Bennett, Milton Sills, Claire Windsor, Dustin Farnum, Bessie Love, William Duncan, Helen Ferguson, Irving Cummings, May McAvoy, Alice Lake, Lee Moran, Jackie Logan, Wallace MacDonald, Kathryn McGuire, Harry Gribbon, Lucile Carlisle, Carl Gantvoort, Margaret de la Motte, Alice Calhoun, Lloyd Hamilton, Edith Johnson, House Peters, Sylvia Breamer, Dorothy Phillips, Richard Dix, Florence Vidor, Carter de Haven, Wallace Reid, John Bowers, Art Accord and Louise Lorraine.

Woman Enjoys Hold-up Scene, Loser Reports.

While his woman companion watched the proceedings with evident enjoyment, a bandit with a small mustache and a large gun held up and robbed Charles Junior of 1103 West Seventy-fourth street of jewelry and cash estimated at $2000 early yesterday morning.

The bandit, according to the victim's report at the Central Police Station, was tinkering with the engine of his automobile on West Twenty-fifth stret when Mr. Junior neared the motionless car. The hold-up man, wearing goggles and a small Charlie Chaplin mustache, asked Mr. Junior for a cigarette. When the victim pulled out a silver cigarette case and offered a cigarette to the man in goggles, the bandit took one, lighted it, and then, pulling a revolver from his coat pocket, commanded the obliging victim to hold up his hands.

"A man with stuff like yours deserves to have it taken away from him," the bandit remarked as he relieved Mr. Junior of his large diamond ring, Masonic emblem and other jewelry, with neatness and dispatch.

CATS BEARING GERMS KILLED.

Society for Prevention of Cruelty is Active.

Great Source of Disease is Wiped Out.

"Be Kind to Animals Week" to be Observed.

Seven hundred and sixty-nine alley cats were collected and destroyed by the Los Angeles Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals during March, it was announced yesterday by Henry C. Deknatel, a director of the society, in outlining the work done by the organization during the last six months.

"The local society for the prevention of cruelty to animals does a most helpful work," declared Mr. Deknatel yesterday, "although few persons in the city with the exceptions of members have any idea as to just what we accomplish.

"With the destruction of the alley cats alone we remove a source of disease from the city. In almost every case we find that the cats are suffering from ring worms or skin troubles of some kind or other. Many children have taken the various skin ailments from playing with the stray cats found in every neighborhood."

Books kept by the society show that 13,630 cattle, 42,430 sheep, 39,200 hogs and 24,000 fowl were inspected by officers of the society during the last six months. The animals all are inspected before they leave the railroad cars in which they have been shipped into the county. Where it is shown that animals have suffered while being shipped into this city the persons in charge of them are arrested and taken into court by officers of the society.

At present thirty dogs, eighteen cats and two goats are in the pens of the society at 1412 South San Pedro street. During the last six months more than 1000 animals have been cared for, treated and found homes. Other found post treatment have been destroyed in the most painless manner known. No charge for any of the service has been made.

Inspectors are kept at the San Pedro street address of the society day and night and the books show that more than 100 investigations per month have been made. The society has a standing offer of $100 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of dog poisoners. All rodeos in the entire State are carefully watched by a Field Inspector under direction of the society. Approximately 86,677 pieces of mail matter have been sent out of the Los Angeles office of the society since the reorganization May 19, 1919.

The officers of the Los Angeles Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals are:

Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, president, G. C. Harrington, vice-president, F. M. Harrington, secretary and treasurer. The directors are, Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, G. C. Harrington, F. M. Harrington, Hugh J. Baldwin, Henry C. Deknatel and Col. W. J. Hogan. The offices of the secretary and service station are at 1412 South San Pedro street. Dr. Charles A. White is consulting veterinarian.

The history of the local association is as follows:

Incorporated, Nov. 12, 1877. Reorganized May 19, 1919. Jurisdiction in City and County of Los Angeles. Area covered, 4009 square miles. Membership, 2654.

The society publishes "The Western Humanitarian" a monthly magazine, it operates four automobiles, a department for the finding of homes for friendless animals, a free clinic for animals, as well as protecting animals in every way under the law.

Beginning the 24th inst. "Be Kind to Animals Week" will be observed in Los Angeles by recommendation of Mayor Cryer and Sunday the 30th inst. has been selected as "Humane Sunday."

WOOLWINE CHARGES TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL

ATTORNEYS FOR BURCH PLAN TAKING JURY-TAMPERING ASSERTIONS HIGHER.

A plan to carry the investigation of the asserted activities of the District Attorney's office in tampering with the Arthur C. Burch jury panel to the Attorney-General of the State was formulated yesterday by Paul W. Schenck and Richard Kittrelle, counsel for Burch, when they were advised that the local departments of the Superior Court cannot legally investigate the matter. In the event that the courts could not act, Mr. Schenck had expected to carry the matter to the grand jury, but as there is no jury at the present time, he announced yesterday that he will lay the matter before the Attorney-General.

Should Mr. Schenck demand such an investigation by the Sacramento authority it will be the second investigation demanded of the State into the affairs of the local District Attorney.

Judge Reeve, before whom Burch is being tried, announced Friday that he would refer the entire question to Presiding Judge Willis. In a conference with Judge Willis, Saturday, Mr. Schenck learned that the court, in all probability, would take no action.

Mr. Schenck stated yesterday that he will this morning again ask Judge Reeve to make an investigation and, if this request is refused, the matter will be taken to the State officials.

MILK SCORING IS REPORTED.

Samples Placed Under Test by Veterinarian.

Department of Agriculture Announces Ratings.

Standing of Dairies is Set by Officials.

Dr. William Velt, chief milk inspector and city veterinarian, yesterday reported the results of the tabulation of a milk-scoring period which started Dec. 1, 1921.

During the week ending the 1st inst., samples of milk have been collected from every milk dealer and dairyman having over five cows who delivers milk in Los Angeles. These were scored at the health department by Dr. F. P. Wilcox, State Department of Agriculture; C. A. Phillips, university farms, Davis, and R. J. Posson, United States Department of Agriculture.

This score card allows 100 points for perfect, of which 35 points are for bacteria count, 15 points are for flavor and odor, 10 points are for absence of sediment, 15 points are for butter fat, 15 points are for solids not fat, 5 points are for acidity and 5 points are for appearance of package.

By the use of this system, with disinterested judges, the standing of the dairies is placed before the consumer in a fair and impartial manner, Dr. Velt states.

It is the custom of the judges to allow points as arrived at from the score card adopted by the representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Industry division.

Following is a list of the dairies with their class, location and scores:

To all women "from Missouri"

We like to meet the "show-me" kind of women, because they know what they want when they see it.

This is how we explain to them the Florence Oil Cook Stove:

Go into any store where Florence Oil Cook Stoves are sold. There you will find one filled with oil, ready for use.

Try it yourself.

You will be delighted with its beauty at first sight.

When you light the burner and see the smokeless blue flame, no one will have to explain its convenience.

The picture of a cool kitchen, time-saving, fuel-saving, comes into your mind at once.

And oil is the cheapest fuel you can use.

This would have provided thrills for one day without the accident.

In the third lap an axle shaft on Klein's car broke and threw off the right rear wheel. Klein was running next to last at the time, with Bordino behind him. The black wheel went careening up the track in front of grand stand B for all the world like a human figure thrown out of a car, and continued for a quarter of a mile down the track, with Bordino dodging along behind it. Death leered up at the Italian, but he laughed at it and, in a wild burst of speed, brought himself up from the ruck and, hurtling along at a wild gait, passed first one and then the other car, eventually nosing out Tommy Milton at the tape.

Whether his speed or Milton's craftiness was responsible is alone known to Milton. By winning the first heat Bordino made himself ineligible for further competition until the final scramble, whereas, Milton assembled $750 for his second-place efforts in this race and $1000 for capturing the next heat and $3000 for the final.

It was Jimmy Murphy, however, who got the gravy in the heats, his third, second and first giving a total of $1850.

BORDINO FAVORITE.

Bordino was the big favorite with the crowd after winning the first heat, not only for his victory, but because he set a new world's record of 115 miles per hour for twenty-five miles.

Bordino didn't hold his honors long, for Milton went right out and lowered the time to 115.03 miles per hour.

After Klein's axle shaft was broken a hurry-up call was put in for another part and a new axle shaft was rushed out from the city. It was announced that a motor cop made the round trip in 42m. flat without being arrested.

Milton won the second heat after letting Elliott in the Leach and Murphy in his Deusenberg do the leading for over three-fourths of the way. Elliott led for nine laps, and then Murphy surged to the front. Milton passed Elliott and Murphy in the twelfth lap, but was immediately flagged by Murphy. The positions remained the same until the seventeenth lap, when Milton stepped on the gas and stayed out in front until the end.

HEAT HELD UP.

The third heat was held up an extra ten minutes to allow Klein a chance to get his chariot fixed and enter. He didn't do anything in this heat, but nosed out Harry Hartz for third in the fourth heat and a place in the final round. Klein had all the misfortune in the world, but showed himself to be a fighter of the first degree.

The sympathy of the crowd, which was not large in spite of the remarkable program, was with poor Eddie Hearne. Eddie's fans wheezed around like some ancient tin Lizzie. It simply didn't have anything, and in one heat Hearne was lapped twice by the leaders. He managed to cop fifth money once because only five cars were able to finish, and his was the last.

Joe Thomas was another driver who failed to show anything. His car mysteriously refused to synchronize and though he started in every heat he was never in at the finish. The Grand Prix Deusie, driven by Jerry Wonderlich, also refused to Grand Prix.

MURPHY TAKES LEAD.

Frank Elliott had the third heat well in hand until the fourteenth lap, when Jimmy Murphy sped ahead and stayed there. Elliott's car developed stomach trouble and the best he could pull out of the fire was a fourth.

But Elliott was not to be denied and snagged the fourth heat easily with Roscoe Sarles in his black creation in second place 200 yards to the rear.

For thirty-six of the forty laps in the last and final heat Milton was out in front. Hartz led for the first four laps, Milton usurped the lead in the fifth, and though challenged by Murphy frequently finally drew away and when he finished was an eighth of a mile ahead of Murphy with Hartz a lap behind the leaders.

Curiously enough Frank Elliott drew the pole for four of the five sprint tests. Milton was in luck for the first gallop around the saucer when Cliff Durant pulled out number one for Milton.

SETS NEW RECORD.

Bordino set a Southern California record when he failed to stop for a single rear tire change. The Italian had his car equipped with Beam shock-checks after the recent 250-mile race at the Beverly Hills plant and this apparently turned the trick. His only change was due to the mixup with Elliott and Klein.

There were ten starters for the first race, Ralph de Palma and ABILENE (Tex.) April 2.—The Immortals in baseball's hall of fame will have to shove over to make room for Granville Nugent of Trenton, near here. He struck out twenty-one men in a game between Sweetwater and Trent High Schools. The score was 3 to 1, a Sweetwater man stealing home during a squabble among the players.

WELCH IS HIGH MAN IN SHOOT.

Wins from Belt and Groat in Close Match at L. A. Gun Club Traps.

A glorious day brought forth a large crowd and excellent scores at the Los Angeles Gun Club yesterday, J. M. Welch taking top honors in the feature event after a prolonged argument with Bob Belt and C. E. Groat. At the end of the first 100 targets the three stood tied with 98x100. Belt was eliminated in the first shoot-off, and Groat in the second, leaving Welch to claim the diamond trophy.

SENATORS WIN SLUGFEST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, April 2.—The Senators closed their 1922 training season here today with an exhibition game staged against the local Elks' Club. It was a slugfest for the Senators for the first four periods, during which time they clustered clouts for eleven safe wallops and a like number of runs off Pitcher Rooney. He was replaced in the fifth by Wyon, who held the Solons scoreless from there.

The score:

Sacramento	11	14	2

Batteries—Rooney, Wyon and Hasty; Ems, Penner and Flanagan.

PASADENA TEAM NABS CUP.

Sons of St. George Soccerites Defeated in Final Game of Season for Spalding Trophy.

Pasadena has always been recognized as a plucky team, and it was this attribute that enabled them to win the Spalding challenge soccer trophy at the expense of Sons of St. George at Maier Park, Vernon, yesterday afternoon. A game of football is never lost until the referee makes his final signal and by recognizing this precept they finally won out. Even when their chances seemed very slim, when they were trailing two goals, when their forward line was shot to pieces with A. Lippiatt and Kerr so badly crippled that they were merely passengers, they played on and on. Their splendid perseverance was surely rewarded, although it took them half an hour extra time to capture the cup.

THE SPORTING LIFE

BY W. A. PHELON.

Gibes and Jests.

The mighty slugger trains hard in the South—
The experts of the camera are dazed
At the fierce postures that the star assumes,
While all the public is, forsooth, amazed!
The man is greater than in all his life—
Just like a lion he comes forth, and he
Proceeds, when once the season has begun,
To hit the leather round one-thirty-three!
The dazzling pitcher gets in splendid shape,
Has confidence, pepper, strength and verve—
He shows the correspondents, twice a day,
A novel fast ball and a shaky curve.
Rusie and Mathewson, compared to him,
Were only pikers—he goes great guns
Until he actually mounts the hill—and then
He's tagged for nineteen hits and fourteen runs!

"All men are entitled to the pursuit of happiness"—and of free baseball tickets.

It's only a figure of speech. The umpire won't go there anyhow, no matter how often you request it.

PUZZLES.

If Babe Ruth gets nothing extra for his home runs, how many rocks can a baboon throw off the top of Gibraltar in 29 seconds?

If a camel can live for 11 days on two pounds of bright green cactus, how badly was Tom Gibbons disappointed the other evening?

If Rogers Hornsby is to get $22,000 for the season, how much does a giraffe suffer when he has a sore throat?

If John Evers can feel really at home in the American League, why is a fish?

Darkness come down upon the woods and hides
A flock of figures shambling down the track—
Just the young rookies and the bush-league stars,
Measured, found wanting, and now going back!

Seaside Golfer's Steadiness is Feature of Match.

Victor Thrills Gallery With Spectacular Shots.

Portly Bill Campbell of the Virginia Country Club annexed top honors in the Los Angeles Country Club's annual invitation golf tournament yesterday by trimming Horace Major 8 and 7 on the L.A.C.C.'s links in the 36-hole final match of the tourney. Major's golf was not up to the standard he set in the early rounds of the tournament, especially in the afternoon section of the match, and the steadiness of his opponent, who played right around par all day, kept him two or three holes behind for the greater part of the affair.

In the morning half of the match, played on the south course, Campbell's putting eye was sadly out of kilter, while Major's driving was erratic. In the last eighteen holes however, chubby Bill began putting like a wild man and finally won the match by holeing a fifteen-foot putt for a birdie three on the eleventh green. Major also marked up a birdie on this hole, but needed to win it to keep in the running.

Campbell was 3 up at the end of the morning round. The first hole went to Campbell with a par 4. The players halved the second, and Campbell was 2 up at the third. Major sunk a long putt for a par 4 on the next hole, and honors were divided on the fifth.

After Campbell had taken the sixth, the players halved the next three, which made Campbell 3 up at the turn.

A par 5 gave Campbell the tenth hole, and a well-played 3 on the next put him 4 up. They halved the twelfth and thirteenth with pars. Major took the next with a 4, Campbell the fifteenth, Major the sixteenth, and Campbell the seventeenth.

Campbell had an excellent

Krisel Goes North for A.A.U. Diving Championship.

BY IDA R. KOVERMAN.

Three important aquatic titles will be up for competition Thursday night, the national A.A.U. championship in the men's 150-yard back stroke and the women's Southern Pacific A.A.U. title for the 100-yard back stroke being scheduled for the L.A.A.C. pool, while national A.A.U. honors in men's diving will be settled in the Olympic Club's tank at San Francisco.

The back stroke event for men will bring into competition the present title holder, Ray Kegeris of the Los Angeles Athletic Club; Holmes Bowers, junior national champion, also of the L.A.A.C.; Ernest Wessick, L.A.A.C., and Francis Theiner of the San Diego Rowing Club.

Holmes Bowers, junior national champion, is expected to force Kegeris to a swift pace to retain his laurels, while both Wessick and Theiner are no mean contenders.

FAST COMPETITOR.

The women's 100-yard Southern Pacific back stroke championship will undoubtedly be closely contested. Dorothy Burns, present title holder, will meet two competitors in Marion Himmelstein and Viola Hartman, who are prepared to give her a sharp tussle for first place. Miss Himmelstein is steadily improving in this style swimming, while Miss Hartman makes her initial try in back stroke competition in this event.

The national ten-foot springboard diving championship for men will bring together the best diving talent in the country.

GOES NORTH.

Fred Cady, coach of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, has chosen Walter Krisel, his young protege, to carry the Mercury colors in the contest. Krisel now holds the Pacific Coast springboard championship, having defeated Clarence Pinkston at Coronado last summer. He will be opposed in the coming event by Clarence Pinkston, the present national title holder, who will represent the Olympic Club; Patterson, also of the Olympic Club; Al White, Stanford's new star; Happy Kuehn of the Multnomah Club, Portland, a member of the American Olympic team, and a number of other aspirants for diving honors.

Krisel left for San Francisco Saturday in order to have several days to work out on the Olympic Club springboard.

MILTON FIRST IN AUTO RACE.

Peter de Paolo being unable to get their engines in working order in time for the race.

The crowd made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers and was rewarded with one of the finest racing programs that has ever been staged in the South, and of the thousands present there wasn't one who didn't feel the icicles creeping up and down his wishbone when Art Klein threw a tire in the first race and blew one in the final, culminating in a crash with two other cars. Fate was kind to the speedway management and the drivers yesterday. Death stalked on every turn. But he was balked at every move. His harvest was lean.

PLAY ON NORTH COURSE.

The afternoon round was played on the north course. Campbell won the nineteenth and twentieth holes with a 5 and 4, respectively. Major won the twentieth, halved the twenty-first, and won the next.

One of the most spectacular shots of the match came at the seventh hole of the afternoon's play—the twenty-fifth hole of the match. Major drove to an excellent lie, while Campbell's ball veered to the left. However, a lucky bounce perched his ball on the fifth tee, which is adjacent to the seventh green, and a perfect approach carried his ball up to the pin. Major did his derndest, but his putt missed by inches.

MIDWICK POLOISTS ON TOP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DEL MONTE, April 2.—Midwick won the final senior match for the Del Monte polo statue from Del Monte, 9 to 6, before a large crowd here today.

Excellent teamwork of the winners brought this to 6-4 at half time.

The game was marred by an accident to Maj. W. A. Robertson, Del Monte No. 1, who was caught under his mount when he fell in the fourth period. He suffered painful bruises. Dick Swerin substituted for him.

The combination work of Arthur Parkin and Carleton Burke and the fast riding and goal shooting of Lafayette Hughes and Teddy Miller in the forward line marked the game. Erlo Pedley and Hugh Drury starred for Del Monte.

With the approach of another baseball season we are reminded of many things, one of which is that once not less than six balls entitled a batter to first base. This was later changed to seven. That's allowing the pitcher a lot of latitude for sowing his wild oats. Southpaws should have done well in those days.

We didn't see these things with our own eyes, but they are a part of baseball history. Going still deeper back into the oblivion of baseball's early days, eight called balls entitled the batter to first base. The great national pastime must then have been the left-hander's paradise. The drop to six was regarded as too radical, and the rule-makers subsequently compromised on seven. Base on balls also counted as a base hit. Batter who stuck around until eight were counted deserved it.

Batsman also was allowed four strikes. Pitchers claim umpires sometimes still allow batsman four strikes. Home plate formerly was of marble and there were a lot of sparks when the hardy, old-time athlete slid into it with his flinty head. Then when the athlete's head began to soften with civilization, the composition of the plate was changed to rubber. Once a sliding athlete bent his neck sliding into the rubber and the term "rubberneck" was added to our impoverished lexicon.

Reader wants to know what was happening in P.C.I. baseball around ten years ago. Don't know, and care still less. That is too recent to be interesting. But in order to accommodate we hereby dug up a tribe of dope from a decade ago.

Los Angeles had a team comprised of Ivan Howard, Slagle, Tozer, Perritt, Dillon, Chech, Jackson, Moore, Crabbe, Metzger, Rodgers, Ellis, Hoffman, Ryan, Wottell, Maggert, Gill, Brooks, Lober, Boles, Johnson, Fahey and Page.

Another reader jerks us up on our statement that Dr. Jud Smith is the only ball player of our acquaintance who ever turned dentist. He speaks of Dr. Warren Gill.

Several of these players are still active in various parts of the country. Johnson, obtained from the White Sox, has gone back to that team. Howard is managing Oakland. Others are playing in lesser leagues. Third base didn't worry Pop Dillon in those days, defensively speaking. He had Metzger. Jack Ryan when last heard from was conducting a garage in San Diego. Dillon has retired to his Yucaipa apple ranch. Ellis is a Rivera rancher, coaching a high school team between irrigations. Boles is said to be practicing law.

* * *

Vernon team, then known as Venice, as the Tigers then disported themselves down by the sea waves, which in those days were anything but sad, had such players as Patterson, Koestner, Kreitz, Harkness, Tonneman, Hitt, Ferguson, McDonnell, Drucke, Griffin, Hosp, Baum, Roy Brashear, Carlisle, Litschi, Meloan, Bayless, Elliott, O'Rourke, Kane and Stewart.

Rowdy Elliott is one of the few of these still active as players, and the only one, we believe, still in fairly fast company. Kane is playing independent ball somewhere in Idaho, I believe, and Brashear is managing a club in Texas, as is Ham Patterson. Baum is a traveling secretary with the Seals, and Roy Hitt is or was chaperoning a refilling station. Rhino, as he was once known, was said at one time to entertain aldermanic ambitions, but I cannot vouch for this.

Drucke, formerly of the Giants and secured by Venice from Sacramento, whither he had been brought by Harry Wolverton, was by all means the wildest pitcher ever seen on the Coast.

* * *

Harold (Rowdy) Elliott and Cecil Ferguson formed an exceedingly cultured battery in those days on account of their front names. But we recall one occasion on which Harold forgot to be polite and considerate.

Just as Cecil delivered the ball to Harold the man on first started to steal. Cecil turned his back to the plate in order to see what might transpire at second when the ball arrived at that spot. This was very careless of him and, instead of the ball, he saw many stars. Harold made a perfect peg and hit Cecil squarely on his cerebellum. Cecil collapsed into an inanimate bulk. Friend Ferguson never was quite the same pitcher after that.

The nearest thing to this play was some years later when the Vernon catcher, pegging to second, hit Chief Johnson on the ear. This made the chief wild. He protested against the great national pastime being played by ear.

Cute happenings like this may be seen this season. Why knows, and if so, how do they know?

LAFAYETTE TO HAVE HARD-HITTING NINE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EASTON (Pa.) April 2.—The Lafayette College baseball team will be a much stronger hitting club than last season, according to Coach Bill Coughlin, who now has been in charge of the team for two weeks. Last year several games were lost because of the inability of the players to hit safely with men on the bases. This spring, however, Coughlin expects to have both a slugging outfield and infield.

CANADA MAY TRY FOR WALKER GOLF TROPHY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BRANTFORD (Ont.) April 2.—Ralph H. Reville, editor of the Canadian Golfer, said today he had no doubt that if Great Britain sends a team of amateurs to the United States to try for the Walker cup in the Fall Canada will follow suit and send the best aggregation it can collect. The rapid strides golf has made in the Dominion in the last five years, he thinks, will make possible the organization of a very strong team, which, while it may not take first rank, will acquit itself creditably.

POMONA WALLOPS SANTA FE SQUAD.

In the first contest of a three-game series which will settle the baseball title of the Orange Empire League, Pomona defeated the Santa Fe Athletic Club of San Bernardino yesterday afternoon on the former's diamond, 5 to 3. The hitting of Buckle and Arsbry of the Pomona nine was the feature of the game.

Bullocks	15	12	2

Batteries—Ellsworth, Parker, Hicks and Sawyer; Kaup and Byrne.

FLYING FINISH PROPER CAPER.

Hurls Body Through the Air Near the End.

How a Champion Won Many Sprint Contests.

Training at Starting a Big Factor in Success.

BY CHARLES W. PADDOCK,
America's Premier Sprinter and Holder of Ten World's Records.

(Copyright by the Los Angeles Times.)

It has been mentioned that the finish of Al Sarrall in a Southern California interscholastic championship first gave me the idea of the flying finish. Carl Haas, competing in the inter-Allied games in Pershing Stadium, just outside the city of Paris, where the Olympics of 1924 will no doubt be held, also used this flying finish to advantage. He was generally too tired to make use of the jump in the 220 yards, but in the century dash his stride came just right to enable him to cover the final yards, with both feet raised from the ground.

SUITABLE TO TYPES.

It would be foolish to recommend the jump finish as the method all sprinters should use, because it is only suited to certain types of runners. But it seems to me that when a man can naturally employ this method of finish in his sprint that it is by far the most effective way. When successfully performed the jump or flying finish hurls the body through the air over the final fifteen feet of ground, which is the equivalent of two strides, in the time it takes to make one stride. The feet are only raised a few inches from the ground, and the body is falling forward, with ever increasing momentum. The moment the tape is reached, the runner tries to catch himself from going to the ground, and herein lies the danger, for he may be too late to save himself from falling, and a cinder crash, at full speed, with opponents' spikes flying about, is not a particularly pleasant sensation; and then the runner may save himself from falling only at the expense of a turned ankle or a wrenched knee; for the fall must be stopped in just the right manner at just the right moment. Again, many men running at full speed, would be certain to hurt some muscle or strain a tendon in attempting to go from the regular stride into the jump. But when the take-off foot hits the ground in its final stride about fifteen feet from the string, and a man can pick up his feet as though broad-jumping, being careful not to raise them too high from the ground, and throw his body toward the tape with a gradual fall, having the hands well out in front, as balancing wings, then the flying finish is not only graceful as the final touch to an artistic bit of running, but it is undoubtedly the most effective and quickest way of covering the final distance.

HORRIBLE EXAMPLE.

When the flying finish is done without any previous practice, and for the first time, it is a horrible exhibition of running, and it is little wonder that the coaches and trainers of the cinder path have not universally-recognized it as one of the standard methods of concluding a race, such as the lunge and the shrug. That day will probably never come, for the jump will always be used by only a few sprinters who are naturally fitted for it, who possess strong ankles and the patience to practice it a great deal. During high school days more time was spent by me in practicing the finish than in practicing the start. This latter was always my hobby, for the finish always seemed more important than the start, or the stride, or any other part of the contest, because the judges always managed to be present there at the tape, and it makes little difference what a man does the first part of the contest if he is there at the string-breaking part of the festivities.

Of course, in order to be in on the finish it is necessary to do all things in the sprint at least moderately well. It is simply that if any part of the race is to be stressed, it seems that the finish is that part. As a scientific study, there is nothing to surpass the start, however. For the real nervous strain of the 100 yards is to be found here. When a man has reached those last few yards before the finish tape, he has all his wits about him, and is prepared to comprehend the situation and use the finish which seems most effective, and to give his best efforts if necessary. But the beginning of a race is similar to those first few minutes of a football contest, in which the most hardened of gridiron stars usually admit that they are too nervous to know exactly what is going on before the ball is actually in play.

A QUICK HAPPENING.

The start of a race happens so quickly that a man has little time to gather his wits about him and to banish his nervousness. It is here that the training which has become a habit helps a man to success. For if a runner has gotten his start down to such perfection that he does not have to think of the various things which are necessary for him to do, but can concentrate his mind wholly on the gun, then he is most certain to go along way in the sprinting game. The same thing of practice applies to the stride. In practice it is well to think about bringing the knees up high and shooting the legs straight out from the hip; it is good to have increased the stride by daily practice; but these things are not to be on a sprinter's mind the day of the race, when he is actually in the contest. For then he has only the string before him to think of, and his opponent breathing hard beside him to fight against. And if he gives his best in the race he will need all his strength and energy to put in this fighting spirit.

PERFECT START HELPS.

The perfect start helps; the stride is essential; the best finish is necessary; but races, even such short ones as the 100 yards, have been won, time and again, without very much help from any of these things. For there is something more important than all this, something which lessons will not explain, or coaches be able to teach; and without which the start, and the stride and the finish are almost useless, and that is the fighting heart. George Adair, that grand old-timer, who has officiated in all the Southern California track meets, even before the days when Charley Keppen was the star announcer, and E. J. Lackley, the head judge of the finish, says that success in track work is due to 10 per cent form and 90 per cent fight. And those who know track, know George is right.

CALIFORNIA OARSMEN IN MID SEASON FORM.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, April 2.—Oarsmen of the University of California who are training daily for their three-mile race against the University of Washington at Seattle, April 22, are reported to be in midseason form, displaying a clean-cut stroke with plenty of power.

Coach Ben Wallis has practically decided the personnel of the first varsity, and is working his men this week in the seats it is believed they will fill in the northern race.

The men now in the first shell are: Coxswain, King; stroke, Capt. McMillan; No. 7, Brown, No. 6, Sesnon; No. 5, Howell; No. 4, Stainnori; No. 3, Hankins; No. 2, Balling; bow, Rosendahl.

NOT EXPECTING DAVIS CUP FOR A FEW YEARS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, April 2.—Until lawn tennis is cultivated among British boys to the extent it is in the United States and Australia, declares a prominent writer, "we can never feel hopeful about the return of the Davis Cup to these shores."

He says that "even the churches" encourage the game in Australia, while interschool matches are a feature of the summer term. The writer calls attention to the fact that the Australian stars, G. L. Patterson, J. O. Anderson, P. O'Hara Wood and J. B. Hawkes all won the boys' singles championships of their country.

VERNON GUN CLUB MOVING.

It has been moving week for the Vernon Gun Club and the coming week could be titled installation week and get by. Consequently no shoot was held by the Vernonites yesterday.

The old clubhouse, the supply houses, traps and other equipment on the old grounds have been moved to the new site in Huntington Park. More conveniences for the shooters will be added and when the formal opening shoot is put on, the New Vernon Gun Club is expected to rival any organization of its kind in California.

SCRIBE UNLOADS BASEBALL DOPE.

Last Year's Opening Day Results Set Forth.

Essick and Killefer Are the Only Old Bosses.

New Rulers Guide Other Clubs in League.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Here is some absolutely reliable opening day baseball dope, with the exact scores. It shows the winner in every game.

But the dope applies only to opening day one year ago. It will remind many of us of the wrong guesses of the past, and possibly enable all of us to do worse next time.

Los Angeles defeated Seattle, 8 to 1; Sacramento beat Vernon, 9 to 8; San Francisco nosed out Portland, 7 to 6, and it snowed in Salt Lake, spoiling the show which Oakland and the Bees had planned to put on.

HELD TO EIGHT HITS.

Doc Crandall was the pitcher for Los Angeles, and held Seattle to eight hits. Los Angeles collected a dozen off Geary and Schorr, mainly Geary, who was bumped off in the sixth.

Up in Sacramento the Solons resorted to Fittery, Prough and Niehaus, while Vernon used Dell, Fromme and Shore. This was a slam-bang engagement. Sacramento ran second until the seventh when Billy Orr busted a home run with the bases full, blasting the Tiger hopes and scorching their whiskers.

Of course, these things are not an index to what may happen tomorrow, as everything will be new, even to the peanuts. Gilbert Williams, the new concession man at Washington Park, is said to have improved on the old-fashioned double-jointed peanuts. He now has peanuts with universal joints. The alignment is as follows:

Los Angeles and Portland here.
Vernon in Salt Lake.
Seattle in San Francisco.
Oakland in Sacramento.

A FITTING SEND-OFF.

Sacramento inaugurates an enlarged park and a new manager. Mr. Charles Pick, new pilot of the ship of state, will be launched with appropriate ceremonies. A beautiful Chico maid, from which we derive first chic and then chicken, will but a bottle of Sacramento River water athwart the prow of Mr. Pick, and then give him a shampoo with soft soap.

In fact, every team in the circuit with the exception of Los Angeles and Vernon will show a new managerial face—Kenworthy at Portland, McCredie at Seattle, Lewis at Salt Lake, Ivan Howard in Oakland and Jack Miller in San Frncisco.

What a neat outfield Salt Lake has with Lewis, Strand, Willhoft and Schick. All swatters. Pitchers will be white meat for them, in their own home town, especially. Strand is another remodeled pitcher whose arm failed him in the box, only to prove a whale of a fin in the outfield.

Washington Park resembles St. Patrick's Day in the morning. Grand stand and bleachers have been squirted green over winter. It is in this beautiful setting the bugs will begin blooming tomorrow.

LENDS MORE COLOR.

All told, $10,000 worth of paint was squirted on the stands and bleachers. That's a lot, but it isn't a circumstance to the amount of stuff which Mayor Cryer will try and put on the first ball pitched. But, however much it is, Sheriff Traeger says it won't be too much for him. Bill vows to leave his thumb prints on the ball.

Of course, many familiar faces will be present. We have never known Larry McGrath, Butch Hiers, Harold Wright, Joe Rafferty, Frank Chance, U. Gene Doyle, T. Cuttlebone Cartwright, Billy Cline, Pat Higgins, Charley Keppen, Jack Kepper, Archibald Reeve, Harry Brand, Clyde Bruckman, Lou Anger, Leo Moriarity, Charley Parker, Bernal Dyas, Sam Appel, Bernie Durning, Lord McHugh, the firm of Shanley & Furness, T-Bone Riley and a large mess of others, to miss an opener, whether done with a corkscrew or a turnstile.

THEY'LL BE THERE.

Then over in the coffing back of third base will be two quiet, devout-looking persons, meaning "Uncle Tom" McCarey and John F. Carter, late internal revenue collector, who had the knack of extracting your income tax and making you like it. We have even seen men pass their tax over to Mr. Carter and say, "Thank you." That's genius.

Of course, rogue's gallery, euphoniously known as Wisdom Row, and containing the finest collection of boneheads in captivity, will have its usual inmates.

FREEMAN TRIUMPHS.

In the huliabaloo tourney at Hollywood yesterday L. H. Freeman won, Richard Scharey, the last of the forty entrants, going out on the tenth hole. C. N. Randolph won the booby prize by taking in ten strokes on the first hole.

HOPE HELD OUT FOR HUNTAMER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, April 2.—Jack Huntamer, ace among the jockeys at Tijuana this season, was resting easy today at St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was removed last night following the spill at the race track, when he suffered grave injuries. The boy has concussion of the brain and other injuries, but his condition was somewhat improved this afternoon and attending physicians said he had an even chance of recovery.

Jockey Carl Studer, who also figured in the accident, will be able to leave the hospital in a few days.

BEAM SHOKCHEKS

Bordino won the first event, averaging 114.4 miles per hour, and made no tire change on rear tires, he attributes this tire performance to the "BEAM SHOKCHEKS" which he used on the rear springs.

In the 50-mile event no tire change was made on rear tires, demonstrating conclusively that Shokcheks did the work.

The most remarkable improvement ever developed for automobiles.

"BEAM SHOKCHEKS" were used by some of the leading drivers in yesterday's races at Beverly Speedway.

The price is small, but the efficiency is greater than that of any shock absorber or snubber on the market.

MULCIBER FALLS BY WAYSIDE

King of Turf Finishes Third in Tijuana Classic; Coffield Wins Feature.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, April 2.—[Special.]—Mulciber, who was crowned king of the turf at Tijuana two weeks ago by virtue of his sensational victory in the $20,000 Coffroth Handicap, lost some of his glory today when he finished third in a field of nine horses that went to the post in a special effort to lower San Gabriel mile record of 1:33 flat. Coffield captured the event and came within one-fifth of a second of equalling San Gallo's mark. Motor Cop was second.

While San Gallo's mile record remains, Motor Cop broke the track quarter-mile and half-mile records, rounding the first post in 23 seconds flat and the half-mile post in 47 3-5 seconds. The former records for these distances were held by Ikey T., who did the quarter in 23 1-5 in February, 1916, and Rollin Laird, who hung up 47 4-5 in the half-mile on June 12, 1916.

Motor Cop broke fast from the barrier and opened up a two-length lead at the quarter-mile post. Half-way around, Motor Cop was leading by three lengths, with Coffield five lengths ahead of Silver. Coffield bore down fast and Motor Cop as the three entered the stretch and passed the latter in the final jumps to win by a length. Motor Cop showed amazing speed for half a mile, but after that apparently had shot his bolt. He had the advantage gained in making two records and slowed up enough to make his time at the quarters post two-fifths of a second slower than Slippery Elm's record.

Favorites got off badly today, outsiders grabbing the first three races. Clover Junia, in the fourth, was the first popular choice to score.

Results:

First race, five furlongs—Tom Gill, Mary Jay, second; Full Moon, third. Time 1:04 2-5.

Second race, six furlongs—Dainty Lass, Junia, won; W. C. Dooley, second; Sir Quivo, third. Time 1:16.

Third race, one mile—Malcolmian, won; Dainty Lass, second; Persian Gun, third. Time 1:42 1-5.

Fourth race, one and one-sixteenth miles—Clover Junia, won; Dainty Lass, second; Chinese, third. Time 1:49 3-5.

Fifth race, five and one-half furlongs—Gen. Gay, won; Kingfisher, second; Polaris, third. Time 1:08 2-5.

Sixth race, one mile—Coffield, won; Motor Cop, second; Malcolmian, third. Time 1:39.

Seventh race, one and one-sixteenth miles—Silver Alloy, won; Bute, second; Ben Ali, third. Time 1:54 2-5.

Eighth race, three and one-eighth miles—Fireboy, won; Walter Dant, second; Pedro, third. Time 1:47 4-5.

Ninth race, five and one-half furlongs—Sweetie, won; Mabel A., second; Fool's Luck, third. Time 1:08 1-5.

KOLB AND DILL.

THEY'RE NEW ABE AND MAWRUSS IN "GIVE AND TAKE."

By Grace Kingsley.

They're with us again, those joymakers, long slim Kolb and fat, little Dill. They opened last night at the Mason in their latest production, a real live comedy, by Aaron Hoffman called, "Give and Take." "Give and Take" is right. They give you joy, while they take your admission money. The comedy itself concerns labor and capital, and we never knew the subject was funny before. It is good-naturedly satirical, with some clever little jibes for both sides. It makes capital comedy of capital, and takes the bore out of labor.

It has a tang of George M. Cohan's "Broadway Jones" to it. A spice and breeziness.

And besides there is some really penetrating wit in its lines. But most of all, there are the personalities of Kolb and Dill, sure promise of delightful entertainment.

The owner of the Bauer canning business is elected as president of the local Industrial Democracy, willy nilly. "Yeh, I put up the capital, and you put up an argument," he demurs. The workers demand rest periods, good food, and other things. But the owner is in debt, and the mortgage is about to be foreclosed. When along comes a supposed savior. But he turns out to be an escaped lunatic.

"Ah," wails poor little Dill, "he's the only rich man in the world who believes in industrial democracy, and he's a cookoo!"

There are many surprises and twists to the comedy, but, of course, everything comes right in the end, with the plant saved and everybody happy. Bauer turns out to be the right bower, the left bower and the joker.

Kolb and Dill are business associates in "Give and Take," and they're as funny as Abe and Mawruss in the Montague Glass plays. I hope they'll keep on in this line.

Appearing in straight comedy is a new departure for them, and you keep wondering when the chorus is going to romp on and sing and dance a little. Don't worry.

There's a symphonic orchestra which ripples jazz delightfully between acts, with solo numbers, and a bunch of pretty girls come out between acts two and three and warble.

K. and D. are playing safe. If you expect the usual vaudeville from them, well, you're not going to be disappointed.

Hot Beauty Contest.

After all, as it turns out, Flo Zeigfeld hasn't cornered all the beauties in the market, to take it from Norman Dawn, Robertson-Cole director. Something unique in the way of beauty contests was staged at the Robertson-Cole camp in the Yosemite Valley during the filming of the final scenes in "Son of the Wolf," an Alaskan story by Jack London.

Naturally, Indians were a requisite in providing the play with the proper atmosphere, and when word went out to a near-by reservation that original Americans were in demand on location at so much wampum per head, not only came a horde of young bucks, interspersed by forebears well reckoning up in the nineties or over, but squaws were fetched along for good measure.

Twenty swarthy beauties, as Indian standards go, were numbered among this picturesque ensemble. They afforded an interesting study in type.

With three exceptions they were full-blooded specimens of their tribes, of which nine were represented. Two hailed from the tenees of the Yaquis, the most blood-thirsty contemporary clan of the continent.

One was of Aztec descent: the Pimas, Piutes, Navajos, Siwashes, Hopis, Comanches and Yolos were other classifications of a once great race who had entries in this unusual beauty contest, and, upsetting a long-standing tradition, they were not at all camera shy.

R-C Studios Buzz.

Wheels will soon be revolving fast at the Robertson-Cole studios, where P. A. Powers is in charge, and where some six or seven companies will soon be under way.

Inclement weather in the last week did not retard the new Doris May production, "The Unexpected Honeymoon," at the studio. William Seiter is directing.

Christine Mayo, who has appeared in recent productions by the Wilkes stock company at the Majestic, is back on the screen. She resumes her forte as vamp in Doris May's picture.

They All Answer Right Up.

Armed answers came to Walter Woods, the scenarist, when he asked the opinions of those affiliated in the filming of "Is Matrimony a Failure?" at Grauman's, on the question embodied in the title. Here are the answers:

James Cruze, the director: I don't dare say that matrimony is a failure. I'm married.

T. Roy Barnes: It all depends on the coffee.

Walter Hiers: Don't know. Not married. But I'm broadminded.

Lila Lee: Don't know, either, but hope to.

Lois Wilson: Being single, I can safely say "No." By the way, what does Miss Wilson mean when she talks about saying "No"? They do say that a certain nice young millionaire is trying to make her change her mind.

MARY MINTER IN "HEART SPECIALIST."

By one of those unaccountable ironic tricks of fate Mary Miles Minter's picture, showing at Clune's Broadway this week, is called "The Heart Specialist."

I think there were about five more people in the house yesterday than there were at the time I was present when her last picture was shown, so I don't believe her mention in connection with the William D. Taylor murder has hurt her popularity here, though. I understand her pictures have been withdrawn in some cities. Neither, apparently, has the notoriety helped her popularity.

"The Heart Specialist" is all about the adventures of a newspaper woman who is the Cupid pager and sob sister on a big city daily. I had always thought the lives of newspaper people were rather humdrum, but you have only to go to the movies to find out differently.

I think the editor has been holding out on me and I'm going to talk to him about it. And no newspaper person ever gets killed in pictures. They're always too smart. At any rate, if I ever do meet wild adventure I shall know just what to do on account of the newspaper people I've seen in pictures.

Mary as the sob sister in search of adventure went to a big country estate, met a handsome returned soldier, also a villain. She pretended that she was their cousin Muriel, wife of a Turkish rajah or something, in order to gain admission to the home, and the pretense gave us a chance to see a great deal of Mary, because she made up a wild story about her life in the harem.

The villain was trying to poison the hero and threw the heroine down a well, but I suppose it was her athletic life as a newspaper woman that enabled her to climb out.

Miss Minter looks very lovely and does as much acting as the piece calls for. Alan Forest is handsome enough for any girl to risk being thrown into a well for, and Noah Beery is the high-power villain.

Irving Cummings is the hero of a tense little story of the Northwest Mounted Police called "The Avenger." If ever I see a picture in which a member of that constabulary really sees justice done a murderer, I'm going to frame it. That functionary always wipes away a tear and lets the murderer go when he finds out that said murderer has a wife and child or a pet dog. "The Avenger" is no exception. But Cummings's work, aside from a little staginess, is good.

REVIEWS.

LINDER DIVERTING.

"BE MY WIFE" MAKES FOR LAUGHS AT CALIFORNIA.

By Edwin Schallert.

If you haven't seen anything to make you laugh during the past few weeks take a jaunt down to the California Theater. Max Linder is there in "Be My Wife," and he's making everybody agreeably happy.

Max always does a number of funny things. You're sure of that. They may not be howlingly funny, but at least they are entertainingly amusing. He has a different slant of humor, and manages always to intrigue you with his own quicksilver presence.

Some of the gags in "Be My Wife" are very good. The climax is a bear. Or, to be zoologically correct, it's a white rat. In fact, several white rats. And what Linder does with them is a caution.

There's a French dexterity to the Linder humor. Some of it is too subtle to get over with a wallop, but all of it is very engaging, and occasionally just a bit risque. As risque anyway as the censorship will allow.

The only trouble with Linder's photoplays is that they're not built up to whopping big thrills like those of Lloyd, Semon and others. They're always imbued with novelty, however, and were the construction improved, would probably hit the ball clear over the fence.

Max's supporting players make a very good record. Most amusing is Caroline Rankin as Auntie. Lincoln Stedman plays the heavy, or I should say the "weighty," cleverly. Alta Allen, Vera Daniels, Rose Dione, Arthur Clayton and Charlie McHugh are others in the picture. Not omitting the dog, Pal, who does a very effective bit.

The "Ballad of Fisher's Boarding-House" is a film novelty of serious interest. It has the benefit, of course, of Kipling verses, which are full of virile conviction. The film is a background only, until the closing bit, which is strong screenwise.

Christie's comedy, "'Tis the Bull," is light frivolity — tinted with bright spots of humor. Not exceptional, but then it passes.

The musical program, which is always a feature, includes a phonographic reproduction of the late Enrico Caruso's singing of "Vesti la Giubba," from "I Pagliacci," with the orchestra; a Mazurka by Schuecker, with a harp solo by Hubert a Graf, and the popular selection, "Leave Me With a Smile," by Koehler. Carli Elinor directed.

VAN DEN BERG SOLOIST.

Brahm Van den Berg was the soloist with Grauman's orchestra yesterday morning at the popular concert and played a group of solos that justified the place he holds in the realm of artistic pianistry. He made Saint-Saens's Etude, "In Waltz Form," a brilliant presentation of a technically difficult but rhythmically pleasing work. In the Chopin "Berceuse" he proffered a tone of limpid beauty. The Rachmaninoff Polka was instinct with vitality and the Mendelssohn-Liszt "Midsummer Night's Dream" was a splendid exhibition of virtuosity.

The orchestral numbers included Von Weber's overture, "Oberon;" Offenbach's "Love Tales of Hoffman," "Waltz's Prize Song" from Wagner's "Meistersinger;" Strauss's waltzes, "Tales From Vienna Woods," and as an extra number, Moskowsky's "Serenade," which won a merited encore. Conductor Guterson was at his best in the two remotely different compositions, the "Prize Song" and the Strauss Waltzes. The latter was given zither part. The Offenbach number won long and loud applause.

"TEN NIGHTS" GOOD FOR TEN NIGHTS MORE.

I suppose you would call it a vintage picture. No matter. It's the greatest historical spectacle that's shown in town in a blue moon. "Ten Nights in a Barroom!" It opened at the Alhambra Theater yesterday.

A large audience congregated to see the picture. They came out of curiosity. They wept tears over its pathos. Whether from sentiment or because stirred by memories—who knows? Those who didn't weep laughed.

Really, it is astonishing what a vogue a bleary-eyed classic melodrama can acquire of a sudden. From the interest displayed by the public I would say that the old "Ten Nights" were good for ten nights more and maybe then some. Stranger things have happened in the dizzy photoplay trade of the present.

And as far as it goes—as far as any picture like that can go—"Ten Nights in a Barroom" is a very entertaining picture. That's aside from its historic value, which is great enough by itself. Just think, anybody can find out what a thoroughgoing bar, with a pocket-trimming room attached, looks like by seeing the film.

The story, of course, is the one that probably everybody remembers from that vagrant bit of verse, "Father, dear father, come home tonight, the clock in the steeple strikes twelve." Father always dutifully goes home, too roseate nose and all. But he ever and anon returns to the place whence he was "hurried hence," the nose blossoming anew.

The death of the child, is, however, a pathetic bit well put over. Handkerchiefs fluttered in the audience at the scene.

The fight which ensues and the race through the log jam are familiar thrill material, but pretty well done.

All in all, "Ten Nights in a Barroom" looks like a popular revival.

Fogged Action is Barricade to Enjoyment.

Containing some rare moments, but loosely thrown together and very literary, "The Barricade," William Christy Cabanne's production which this week is showing at Loew's State, by no means touches one's expectations, or even its own possibilities.

The picture is an attempt to dramatize prejudice—social, racial and financial. Its characters are pulled from the Ghetto and from Riverside Drive. Its action involves the two worlds which it seeks to make one. Admirable contrasts are used; keen flashes of beauty and pathos serve at times to illuminate the arguments, but motives are left so to conjecture that the illusion of reality is decidedly intermittent.

When the young doctor decides to give up his work in the slums and marry a rich wife, he promptly does so, but not the slightest indication of why he does so filters through. One thinks at once that if he sold out so easily, he was worth nothing anyhow—so what's it all about?

The work done by William H. Strauss as the old Jew and by Dorothy Richards as his daughter is clean strain, and most of the East Side scenes are extremely poignant. One forgives the hero for arriving just in time to stop the eviction, because old Jacob's marvelously sincere emotion somehow turns the melodrama into beauty and underscores the action with a human significance not always present in the bulk of the picture. The "society stuff," however, is a cartoon.

With so many subtitles everything ought to be crystal clear, but they are not sufficiently well distributed and at last one leaves, breathing a prayer in reverse English over the head of whoever cut the thing and left out all the connecting links. "Of all sad words of tongue or pen—" The quotation is too well known to need completing here.

Viewed with a reasonably indulgent eye, the variety bill is good, if not exciting. In the case of one act, though, the only comment one can think of is that it takes a lot of nerve to try to fill fifteen minutes with a couple of girls, some comedians from the audience and a high-frequency current.

Superba Film is Delightfully Nonchalant.

Every reason but one for not liking a picture is to be found in "The Dangerous Little Demon," this week's feature at the Superba. But that one reason is extremely potent, and by its grace the picture survives triumphantly to entertain and amuse.

Though this comedy-drama is by turns thriller, burlesque, satire (both conscious and unconscious,) melodrama and crook play, it is—heaven be praised—never serious, and so it gets over.

When one stops to think what a grave impediment seriousness often is to the picture producer, not to mention his public, it seems a wonder it is not oftener discarded. Generally, when it is, wisdom, as in this case, is justified most generously by its fruits. And it must be so much easier on everybody.

However, though the problem drama has changed its clothes, it is still among us. And something like "The Dangerous Little Demon" is needed now and then to prevent reviewers becoming homicidal.

Second thought on this picture brings to light another reason for liking it—Marie Prevost, and that is positively all. But it is enough, in fact, it is a lot.

The story doesn't matter particularly. It is about a millionaire's daughter who had trouble selecting a husband, chose one outside her own set, and was finally compelled to give him the air in favor of one who belonged in her kind of house and spoke her language.

There are wild parties, gambling hells, sidelights on the prohibition question, and other minor matters, but this choice of the heroine's is the picture's raison d'etre's and in it is more food for thought than acres of serious film generally contain, though the strenuously democratic may find it indigestible.

The Superba is also running a naval melodrama, the end of which shows the hero, his girl and his girl's mother surrounded by cheering jack-tars, respectful admirals, and a close-up of a hand-written congratulation from the Secretary of the Navy. From which you may gather that it's the real thing. There are several other items, but the Marie Prevost picture remains the focus of interest, despite its horrible title.

HOLD FUNERAL OF MRS. NETTIE HATCH.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, April 2.—The funeral of Mrs. Nettie Hatch, widow of the late Charles D. Hatch, was held this afternoon at the Trinity Episcopal church in this city. Mrs. Hatch died suddenly Friday at the home of her son, Carl D. Hatch at Winslow, Arizona where she had been visiting for several weeks.

Her husband died in Redlands about six months ago. She suffered a physical breakdown after his illness. The son and his family are the only immediate survivors.

The new steamship Santa Ana of the Pacific Mail Line will sail today on her maiden voyage to New York by way of Panama. She has a full cargo and passenger list.

Among the passengers for New York are Philip W. Dickson, Los Angeles realty dealer, and Mrs. Dickson; State Senator Burlingame Johnson of Pasadena; J. W. Wood former postmaster of Pasadena; George Weaver, New York diamond merchant, who has spent the winter in Southern California, and Mrs. Weaver; Robert S. Nelson, capitalist of Sierra Madre, and Mrs. Nelson. Rosco Stevens, general manager of the St. Helens Petroleum Company, is going to Panama on business. W. H. Picking, manufacturer and banker of Bucyrus, O.; Charles H. Williams, retired furniture manufacturer of Utica, N. Y., and G. A. Spicer, real estate operator of Chicago, and their families are going home after spending the winter here.

PORT NOTES.

On her maiden voyage from Pacific Coast ports in the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's New York service, the newly acquired liner Santa Ana will sail from Los Angeles Harbor tonight for the east coast via Havana. The vessel is scheduled to arrive from San Francisco at daylight this morning and will take on a record list of passengers at this port. An unusually large tonnage of freight destined for east coast ports will also be taken, according to Clay Hutchison, district passenger agent at Los Angeles for the Pacific Mail. Among the passengers from Southern California who will board the Santa Ana at the harbor for the trip to the east coast are Philip W. Vickson, Los Angeles real estate dealer, and wife; Burlingame Johnson, former U.S. Consul in Japan; J. A. Wood, former Pasadena postmaster; Robert F. Belson, retired capitalist, of Sierra Madre, and wife; Samuel Morril, American diplomat, on a trip to Central and South America, and many others. The Santa Ana will sail from her wharf at the outer harbor at 6 o'clock tonight.

Word has reached local shipping circles of the death at Manila on Friday of Captain H. C. Thomas, master of the steamer Wenatchee, and senior captain in the Admiral Line service. Captain Thomas became ill while his ship was at Hongkong and he turned his command over to the first officer but would not leave the ship for a hospital. He died soon after his vessel reached Manila. Captain Thomas was one of the best known masters and navigators on the Pacific coast and his death terminated a career of 35 years continuous service with the Pacific Steamship Co. For many years he commanded some of the finest vessels in the coastwise service and he was known to thousands of travelers. He was on his third voyage in the company's trans-Pacific service when he died. He is survived by his widow, who lives in Seattle.

Radio advices received at the harbor early yesterday stated that the United American line freighter Iowan, reported afire at sea in Balboa Friday, is safe. Tugs, which were dispatched from Panama to go to her aid, brought her to that port Saturday with the fire in her holds under complete control, the reports stated.

Another United American Line freighter, the Arizona, is at Cristobal, on the east side of the Canal with a broken propellor blade, according to advices reaching here. The accident occurred March 20th. The vessel will be delayed several days in sailing for New York, to which she is bringing a large cargo of Southern California products.

The Ruth Alexander, newest of the Admiral Line's coastwise passenger liners plying between Seattle and Los Angeles Harbor, will arrive at the local port Wednesday on her first regular trip in the coastwise service. The vessel, formerly the German liner Callao, arrived on this coast from the Atlantic three weeks ago with a full list of cabin passengers from east coast ports. She will work opposite the steamer President on the coast run.

"CHICKEN" ADDED TO BOOTLEG VOCABULARY.

ARREST AT HARBOR SAID TO HAVE REVEALED LIQUOR-DISTRIBUTING PLAN.

There's a new use for the word "chicken."

Discarded by male mashers for the more expressive descriptive term "flapper," the old word once applied to certain types of femininity, has been taken up by Southern California's bootlegger fraternity.

"Send me a chicken." To those "in the know" this means to certain men who have their headquarters in Venice that a customer in Wilmington or somewhere else in the Los Angeles territory wants a gallon of moonshine whisky. "Two chickens" means two gallons of whisky, and so on, ad intoxicum.

This was the discovery made yesterday by two police of the Los Angeles Harbor district after they had taken into custody Clarence Firth, 39 years of age, and C. A. Peterson, 50. The men were arrested after they had driven up to a house on Neptune street, police say, to deliver six "chickens."

Arrest of Firth, police say, revealed the existence of a well-equipped whisky distributing headquarters at Venice and a system of telephone messages whereby trusted customers may receive at their doors any quantity of illicit liquor that they are able to pay for. Harbor and Venice police were working yesterday to locate the headquarters.

SEA CABS CUT RATES.

Boat Association Makes Special Rate for Fleet's Sailors.

Operators of eighteen water taxicabs, as the fast speed boats plying between the shore and the battleships at Los Angeles Harbor are known, have formed an organization called the Home Ten-Boat Association, with A. H. Mason as president. Reduced rates from the Fifth-street landing at San Pedro to the battleships on Man-o'-War Row and return will be given sailors of the fleet by the organization, it was announced.

Regular one-way tickets, formerly selling at 25 cents, will be sold at the rate of six for $1, it was announced.

News of Ships and Sailings in Pacific Ports.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ASTORIA (Or.) April 2.—Carrying 1,050,000 feet of lumber from Portland, the steam schooner Solano sailed today for San Francisco.

With freight from Puget Sound and Portland, the steamer San Francisco sailed this morning for Liverpool, via way ports.

The steam schooner Hornet laden with 580,000 feet of lumber from Knappton sailed last night for San Francisco.

The steam schooner Santa Cruz with freight from Puget Sound and Portland, sailed this morning for Valparaiso.

With freight and passengers from Portland and Astoria, the steamer Admiral Evans sailed this morning for San Francisco and San Pedro.

SEATTLE (Wash.) April 2.—Returning to the Seattle service of the Blue Funnel Line after an absence of eleven years on other routes, Capt. Thomas A. Price will assume command of the steamship Ixion on her arrival here from the Orient, Tuesday or Wednesday. He arrived a few days ago from Liverpool, coming across the continent.

Clearing on her maiden voyage, the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company's new 501-foot motorship Loch Katrine, said to be the largest vessel of that type in the world, will arrive in Seattle next Sunday in the joint service operated by the Royal Mail and the Holland-American Line between the Pacific Coast and Great Britain and Continental Europe.

TACOMA, April 2.—The Kaisho Maru is due tonight to arrive before morning. She will load here at the pier of the Tacoma Mill and is expected to be in port until Thursday.

The William of the Williams Line brought a considerable load of freight for local consignees on her arrival today from New York. She was forced to go to the Milwaukee dock because of being unable to get a berth at the port of Tacoma dock. After loading some lumber and miscellaneous cargo the William will depart tomorrow for New York.

The Admiral Farragut, Admiral Line, is due today from San Francisco. She will depart tomorrow afternoon for the same port. The Farragut brought a considerable amount of local freight and will have a fair outbound cargo. She is berthed at the Commercial dock.

Due at the Baker dock tomorrow or Tuesday is the American Trader, Inter American, sent from New York and Boston with several hundreds tons of cargo for this port.

PORTLAND (Or.) April 2.—Pacific Northwest lumber mills are now shipping to the Atlantic Coast at the rate of 50,000,000 feet a month, according to estimates made by factors interested in the movement. For the next two months it is expected that shipments for the calendar year to the Atlantic side will reach 800,000,000.

Plans of all vessels of the Pacific Steamship Company in this district were at half-mast today by order from the head office out of respect to Capt. Howard C. Thomas, master of the steamer Wenatchee, who died at Manila last week.

Cargo of the steamer Las Vegas was being discharged today preparatory to placing the vessel in dry dock with a view to removing a propeller blade from the Board feet here. The Las Vegas developed boiler trouble on her present voyage from Portland to Los Angeles and is certain to be laid up for being placed in commission again.

The Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Company's steamer West Haven, will arrive in port today ahead of her schedule and will arrive April 8, according to advices received at the local office of the line.

Prince Axel of Denmark, master of the Danish motorship Asia, now here, has been advised by his government that his ship will be in port until the Asia is ready to depart for Europe. Prince Axel has been studying forestry in British Columbia.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—Gilkey Bros. of American Whale Fame have chartered the Red Rock tugs Sea King and Intrepid for one year with options to buy, from the Pacific Coast Shipowners and Merchant Tugboat Company, according to announcement here. Gilkey Bros. will put the tugs into the log-towing service on Puget Sound.

The Matson Navigation Company steamer Enterprise arrived here today from Honolulu with a badly damaged rudder and one lifeboat smashed from a northward gale which struck the vessel yesterday. The storm piled up seas of seventy-five miles an hour and battered the ship for two days.

The Enterprise carried nineteen passengers.

The veteran coastwise vessels went on the auction block last week. The barkentine S. G. Wilder, a former Matson liner, was knocked down for $1500 to Brannan & Co. The United States Marshal sold the schooner Oceanic Yacht to the H&H Hill Tuna Packing Company of Los Angeles for services in the tuna trade.

COOS BAY (Or.) April 2.—Fifty-five vessels entered and sailed from this port during March, a record for the port with foreign cargoes.

There were twenty-three days when sailings took place and eight days when there were none. None of the delays were caused by bar.

The steam schooner Tahoe completed her lumber cargo and departed for San Francisco this evening.

With 1,400,000 feet of high-grade lumber, the steamer Mendocino sailed late Saturday for Gray's Harbor, where she will finish her cargo. The steamer Twin, which was scheduled to sail from Coos Bay today, has not completed loading and will be detained a day or two.

KILLED BY ENGINE.

Man Walking Alone in Santa Fe Yards Crushed Under Wheels.

While apparently "walking the ties" on the Santa Fe beneath the East First-street bridge early last night, a man of about 55 years of age, identified from papers found in his pockets as Charles P. Holt of 1215 Alta street, Redlands, was struck down and crushed to death under the wheels of a switch engine.

In the pockets of his shabby coat, Police Detectives Slaughter and Longuevan found a notebook filled with notations of poetry which he evidently had written for publication. With them were rejection slips from local newspapers. They also found several letters signed with the name of Albert S. Holt, 188 Spring street, New Haven, Ct., who they believe is a brother. The handwriting in the notebook was that of a man of education.

The body was found by Thomas Crowley, a switchman. It was later removed to the George A. Fitch undertaking establishement.

NAME LOCAL MEN IN GRAND LODGE GROUP.

Among the Southern Californians named on the Grand Lodge committee which will be in charge of details for the Supreme Lodge convention of the Knights of Pythias are the following: U. S. District Judge Bledsoe and Robert G. Loucks, Supreme Representative, of Los Angeles, and Herbert A. Grogham of San Diego. Judge Samuels of Oakland is chairman of the group, whose members were selected by Grand Chancellor J. Stanley Brown.

GRAIN GROWERS TO SELL OWN PRODUCT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, April 2.—The United State Grain Growers' Sales Company is preparing to go into the handling of grain in the largest markets within ninety days, as announced by C. H. Gustafson, president of the organization as well as of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., the sales company being an auxiliary of the parent company.

It is proposed to operate along the plan of the Committee of Seventeen, it was announced. Consignments of grain have been offered to regular commission houses by the grain growers, shipments to be made with bills of lading attached.

STOCK MARKET REAL FEATURE.

The Professional Speculators Were Wrong.

Selling for Reaction is Very Poor Policy.

Investors Are Impressed With Outlook.

BY ALEXANDER DANA NOYES.

NEW YORK, April 2.—The foreign exchange market, the grain market and the market for investment bonds have so long held the center of the stage for all serious observers of the drift of affairs that it was something of a novelty to find the stock market last week taking the central place. It is not that Wall street or the general public had lost interest in the recent stock market. Quite aside from that harmless fraternity who sit all day by blackboards matching views of the particular stocks which they have "heard are going to move," a larger public always glances at the daily stock table to see what it shows, if anything, as to financial sentiment over the business situation. During many weeks, however, the market had merely testified in a desultory way that the general movement of apprehension and liquidation had ended.

Professional speculators would at intervals rush in to buy stocks from one another, and when prices had risen sufficiently would sell them back to one another and prices retained some of the advance after each occurrence of the kind. This had no very obvious meaning beyond the fact that what Wall street calls "official sentiment" or "commission house opinion" was looking more favorably toward intrinsic values.

PROFESSIONALS WRONG.

What attracted considerably more attention in last week's stock market was the fact that when professional speculators, having decided that prices were too high and did not take account of such bad news as the coming coal strike, sold stocks heavily in expectation of a prolonged reaction, the reaction refused to come. People who were expected to sell stocks kept them; people who were expected to wait for a lower level before buying came in so promptly with purchasing orders that the professional operators had to beat a hurried retreat.

This was the kind of incident which impresses Wall street, from the very fact that what had appeared to be the consensus of judgment among professional experts had not been accepted by the investing community at large. For this there could be no other obvious explanation than the assumption that the people who would not sell their stocks because of the bad immediate balance sheets for 1921, or the coming coal strike, or a possible cut in railroad rates, or 5 per cent call money, or the new decline in the German mark, or the announcement that reaction in the stock market was due on general principles were more impressed with the signs of better things in trade and industry than by these other passing events.

FORECAST OF FUTURE.

In this respect, the week's stock market probably fulfilled its traditional function of forecasting the financial future, how important or how prolonged a business revival is foreshadowed must remain in doubt. Probably even the investors or capitalists who at such time buy stocks or refuse to sell them would not be able to agree on the answer to that question.

Prices of stocks have advanced substantially since the beginning of the year; the statistical averages show an all-around gain of about ten points to date. But even existing prices, although 20 points the average of any day in 1921, are fifteen to twenty points below the last half of 1919 or the first part of 1920. This of itself may measure uncertainty as to scope and duration of the trade recovery. The disappointment over last autumn's brief revival, which turned out to be merely a sudden and short-lived recourse to the markets for replenishing the issued stocks of merchandise, makes judgment rightly conservative.

The question of the scope of coming trade revival is connected in a peculiar way with the bond market. Prices for investment bonds have continued to move upward in a far more striking way than prices of railway or industrial shares, and the bond market has indicated the active presence of an outside public as the stock market has not done.

NEW FIELD LOOKS GOOD.

Geologists Differ But "Drill Will Tell" in Riverside County Development.

[What of the oil outlook for Riverside county? Here is what E. J. Monger, special writer for The Times on oil development in the southland, has to say following a special trip over the field.—ED.]

For two years Riverside county has been before the oil operators and geologists for a prospective oil field. Some of the leading geologists of California have turned this section of the South down flat. Other men whose judgment is just as good and who have taken the time to make extended study of the field report with some favor. Riverside county has a lot in its favor for a field and also much that is against it. Like in many of the big fields that have been discovered in California the drill will tell.

It will be remembered that not a few geologists hooted at the Union Oil Company's famous Chapman No. 1 at Richfield. One geologist high in associated circles predicted a dry hole for Chapman No. 1, and discouraged his company from getting any territory around the well. This gentleman quit the geological profession when the well came in 8000 barrels. Many operators as well as geologists thought that Chapman No. 1 was the last place oil would be found.

BEACH CONSIDERED JOKE.

Huntington Beach was considered a joke when drilling first started. Many thought that Huntington Beach would be another Newport. Oil might be found, but it would be heavy and carry a lot of water. The drill told the tale; today Huntington Beach is producing 20,000 barrels daily.

Many said that the Shell Company had a lot of extra money for wild-cat purposes and that it might as well be spent at Signal Hill as any place. The Shell Company spent the money and now we have one of the greatest fields in Southern California. There are several 1000-barrel wells on the Hill and the Long Beach field is just celebrating its first birthday.

In going into Riverside the operator or geologist is not much impressed with the surface conditions or lay of the land until you come to Beaumont. The country for an area of approximately three miles square has many of the earmarks of an oil field. The Beaumont section seems to lie in an area comparatively free from the outcropping granites. Much of the country resembles strikingly the low hills near Bakersfield and the Elk Hills.

The geology of the Beaumont section is in a measure favorable for oil. The overlying rocks are chiefly marine tertiary of the Cenozoic age, consisting of lake gravel sandstones, fossiliferous limestones, chert and shales. A number of the canyons show outcroppings of Monterey shales. The Fernando clays and fossils seem to be of a somewhat earlier period.

ANTICLINE WELL DEFINED.

The surface conditions in the vicinity of the Riverside Oil Company's well and the Beaumont Midway show a well-defined anticline striking south to north about 40 degrees West and fully a mile in width. There is also a well-defined drainage basin for oil, a thing that the geologist always requires for prospective territory. Probably the biggest and best indication of oil can be found in a number of water wells drilled from 350 to 450 feet deep. The water from these wells carry considerable oil. The famous Chapman well was located partly on the strength of the oil and gas showing in a nearby water well.

Development work at Riverside is just getting under way. The Riverside Oil Company blazed the trail by getting a good showing of oil at 1500 feet. It is believed that the only thing that stands in the way of this well being a commercial producer is the difficulty to shut off water. The Moreno Oil Company has drilled a well 1200 feet in the hills south of Beaumont. Drilling has not gone far enough to determine the prospects. The Nuevo Oil Company is drilling a well in an old lake bottom west of Beaument that promises to be of great interest. The well appears to be located in a syncline, but a more careful survey of the country reveals an anticline.

The Beaumont Midway drilling a test south of the little town of Beaumont will no doubt be the company that will present Southern California with a new oil field if such a thing comes to pass. This company has been financed by local and Los Angeles capital and will develop oil if oil is to be developed.

FILM PLANTS IN MERGER.

of the Powers institution, including everything for a screen visualization of a church, club, court, hotel, home, hovel, school, office, etc. There are also foreign sets, including streets of cosmopolitan centers, which carry one to Paris, Geneva, Sebastopol, Tokio, Honolulu and Shanghai, and rustic scenes which include a Russian village of the Volga Valley or dotting the steppes of the Ural Mountains.

There are storerooms containing stained-glass windows, pilasters, columns, fireplaces, niches, doors, windows and window seats, mostly made by the mills and finishing shops on the grounds. An estimate places these units at 350.

Of furniture there are innumerable character pieces of every period. Tables of every description alone are sufficient to fill a floor in a big furniture house. Nine hundred chairs, of every type, including such patterns as Italian, Rennaissance, Louis IV, Jacobean, Louis Quinze, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Ponpeiian, Span-Umbrian, English and Gothic, are made available for R-C productions.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

A pipe organ and other styles of organ, from earliest type to modern; thirty pianos, grands and uprights, including a clavichord of the days of Franz Liszt; spinning wheels and vehicles peculiar to periods and peoples, such as sedan chairs, post chaises, broughams, jinrickshas, peasant carts, coaches, a horse-car that once traversed Main street an airplane and an auto of earliest vintage are some major props.

Interior embellishments are enhanced through access to the United's drapery department, which inventories $50,000 alone in valences, lambrequins, curtains, portieres and the like, with such accessories in home and club appointments as paintings, tapestries, gongs, bric-a-brac, books, antiques and other ornamentations as further aids.

This phase of stagecraft will find further latitude in resort to the United's collection of oriental rugs, valued at $40,000, and the accessibility of $25,000 in light-ing fixtures, including every means of illumination from switchmen's laterns, to a light-house tower.

UNITED'S SHOPS.

The staff shop on the United lot, with its artists and sculptors, where statues, busts, friezes, pillars and other work counterfeiting concrete and stone are modeled in plaster, is another ramification of the enlarged prop department.

Formal and informal gardens will provide R-C productions with a greater variety of romantic backgrounds, while the big smithy on that lot will double the present R-C capacity for iron work.

The water tank, which is in the shape of a T and has a capacity of 680,000 gallons, is included in the deal. Here lagoons of Venice or sewers of London, creeks and rivers, submarine or boat scenes can be created, with bridges, moats and every thinkable corollary to add to scene or setting.

Aquamarine photography is another of the many-aided uses to which this artificial lake can be put, and by mechanical manipulation a transition from duck pond to ocean waves is possible on short notice.

Another rich vein is a wardrobe sufficient to clothe 1000 actors at one time. It is possible to present everything from Mexican peons to royal receptions with these outfits when merged with the R-C costume department, which not only includes everything in dress from colonial days to the present, but fashions in vogue in the Tyrolean Alps, the Caucasus, Russia, Holland, Hawaii, Alaska, Java and the various corners of the Orient.

A bizarre nucleus of this collection is R.-C.'s famous "Kismet" collection, which includes the sartorial equipment of the original stage production with Otis Skinner.

A special cabinet contains Pauline Frederick's wardrobe, which remains as a heritage to the R.-C. organization with the return of that star to the speaking stage. Here are to be found gowns and coats and riding habits from the most aristocratic shops of the world, ranging in value from $250 to $600, and with hats, shoes and other accoutrement representing a total value of $20,000.

Military Band Gives Concert in Mexicali.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CALEXICO, April 2.—Prof. Irineo Rodrigues, leader of the Mexican military band of Mexicali, has recently composed two marches and has dedicated them to Gov. Jose Inocente Lugo, and Secretary of State Jose Felix Inciso. Prof. Rodriguez had his band play two of the new marches for the first time today at the Sunday afternoon concert in Chapultepec Park. Gov. Lugo and his staff, Secretary Enciso and the attaches of his office, and many high government officials, were present as guests of honor. Gov. Lugo extended a cordial invitation to all Americans from this side of the line to attend the concerts.

SCHOOL BOND CARRIES.

Jasper Township Carries Third Election for Money.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, April 2.—Jasper Township, after a six-year fight, has finally carried its school bond election, it became known yesterday, following the school bond and school trustee election.

Bonds for a new $30,000 school building carried at the election by a vote of 72 to 11. This marks the third bond election held to raise money for the new building project. D. C. Church and E. B. Holt were elected school trustees.

REVIVAL AT RANDSBURG.

District Said to be Receiving More Attention Than Any in California, Arizona or Nevada.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RANDSBURG, April 1.—The recent revival of interest in the Randsburg district seems to be more fully realized on the outside than right here in Randsburg. Since the discovery of the Kelly mine, which in two years has produced something over $2,000,000, Randsburg has been receiving in a quiet way more attention on the part of the public than any mining camp in California, Arizona or Nevada, but mines in general have been rather neglected during the past few years. However, of late there has been a decided change and the dawn of a new activity in mines, especially gold and silver, is in sight.

Randsburg, once famous through the operations of the Yellow Aster, declined when that property curtailed its operations, and owing to diversity of the rock formations of the district, the silver prospects were overlooked by miners and prospectors, but mining men have now begun to awaken to the importance of the new silver discoveries being made. No less an authority than Capt. John A. Hassell, mining engineer of international reputation, who has just visited the district, states that the possibilities by reason of the extensive mineralization, are excellent for the discovery of silver-bearing lodes similar to those of Tonopah and the Comstock, which made many millionaires in San Francisco. The Comstock is credited with having produced over $1,000,000,000 in silver and gold, and is still producing. During the Civil War, Lincoln wired the Comstock miners that they were saving the nation by producing silver for the payment of expenses of the war. When Capt. Hassell, who was for many years with the Cecil Rhodes organization in South Africa, and who has mined for precious metals on three continents, made the statement above quoted, Randsburg had to sit up and take notice. Los Angeles seems to realize what the district may mean in the development of the metropolis of the West. Daily mining men, stock brokers and investors are visiting the newly discovered silver district in large numbers.

Capt. Hassell has expressed the greatest interest since visiting the mines for the first time and states that the latest discoveries in what is known as the North Rand section are different from those found in the Kelly rock formation which consists of schist and porphyry.

If Randsburg produces half the crop of millionaires for Los Angeles that the Comstock lode produced for San Francisco, Los Angeles will be destined to become the mining as well as the oil metropolis, of the West.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY.

You are politely requested to submit samples, carefully wrapped and tagged, with letter accompanying stating what tests are desired. Make sample of small size. There is no necessity for big chunks. Correspondents offering matter for analyses with card, or scrap of paper, intended to show that the stuff is from Jim Jones, for instance, with no marks of identification on samples, will, hereafter, receive no attention whatever.

Not Carnotite.

CONGRESS (Ariz.) March 17.—Question: After a year's time in which I did not send you anything, here I am bothering you again with some new rock. I found them in a huge sandstone pile lying on some kind of volcanic lava or tufa (I think.) The sandstone is of white or grayish color. In places, however, away down toward the bed of volcanic matter, a well-defined stratum of bright yellow color appears, at places a few inches in thickness—as from where the samples come, and at other points two feet thick or more. The color and the formation made me think it could possibly be carnotite (vanadate or uranium.) Is it? Your ever obliged and grateful, C.

Answer: Whenever you propound a query to this department of The Times relating to the chemistry of samples submitted, it is always a pleasure to test the specimens very carefully indeed.

As you well know, there are many minerals of the peculiar yellowish color which react for uranium, but the canary-yellow of the true carnotite (the double vanadate of uranium and potassium,) when once studied and carefully analyzed is usually a lesson easily remembered. If a specimen of carnotite is merely rubbed slightly with a finger, the canary-yellow color of the mineral instantly appears, as a reaction. Iodyrite, humboldtine, copiapite, realgar orpiment, sulphur, autunite, minium, crocoite, gummite, pharmacosiderite, volborthite, pitticite, tanadinite, greenockite, jarosite, cacoxenite, sphalerite, zincite, triplite, limonite, basaltic hornblende, rutile, cassiterite, ferruginous quartz, and varieties of chloropal are but a few among the great number of minerals giving yellow colors, and which are frequently confused with many of the uranium minerals.

The samples appear to be very much altered rocks; showing in the change made by nature such chemical reactions as porphyritic matter, lime carbonate, basaltic hornblende, manganese, iron oxides and traces of copiapite (an iron sulphate.) The reactions for uranium on the specimens are negative, and they are not radioactive.

Three Samples.

WENDEN (Ariz.) March 18.—Q.: Please test the three samples I send you today. If we can make a million dollars out of the claims from which they were taken, you shall have one-fourth of it. Mr. F. sends his best regards to you. S.

A.: Judging by the results of analyses on the samples we recall the words of a friend who when prospects turn out badly takes things philosophically and forgets the claims by stating, "Another fortune gone!"

Sample No. 1 marked "from a 1-foot vein" is simply a silicious hematite carrying traces of microscopic pyrite. "Sample No. 2," from a big blowout of probably 1000 tons." The specimens are igneous rocks carrying miscroscopic pyrite and somewhat resembling telluride ore; there is no tellurium present, however. "Sample No. 3 is what I call mineral paint." There is a low per cent of "Indian war paint" in the samples, but it is in such low percentage and impure that it would not pay to mine the rock for paint mixtures.

Seven Samples.

PERRIS, March 18.—Q.: I am sending you a bunch of samples. Will you please tell me if there is anything of value to them. Nos. 1 and 2 look like allanite or zoisite. No. 3 like white lithis. No. 4 melts like wax. No. 5 probably silver ore. No. 6 pans like quicksilver (cinnabar.) No. 7 looks like graphite. Thanking you for past favors. E.

A.: Sample No. 1 is not allanite (orthite.) It is probably an altered hornblende with more or less trenolite. The fusion referred to by you is in fact very much higher than that of wax. No. 2 is an odd sample; it is chiefly actinolite with tremolite present. No. 3 is impure, silicious, and altered silicia, with aluminum silicate; the mica present is muscovite. On No. 4 we fail to get the fusion noted by you as of wax. Graphite and hornblende noted. No. 5.—granite-like—iron, graphite and some manganese. No. 6 is graphitic schist; cinnabar absent. No. 7 is graphitic mica schist.

Altered Magnetite.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—Q.: This specimen found one mile from Casa Verdugo (Verdugo Mountains.) It looks like iron ore, but not being gifted with great knowledge of minerals, have a hunch that there may be other minerals present. With thanks in advance. S.

A.: The sample is a good grade of iron peroxides, chiefly magnetite, and it is readily lifted by a magnet. There is a little manganese in the specimen, with traces of chromite.

Gneiss.

CABAZON, March 19.—Q.: What is it?

A.: It is "soft granite" of the mining boys. Hornblende more or less present.

Assessment Work.

COACHELLA, March 20.—Q.: If a quartz mining claim was located in the month of April, 1921, please advise me which date and year the first assessment work shall be done on the above mentioned location in strict compliance with the new mining laws of the United States government and also the laws of California. A.

A.: The new law relating to assessment work and approved by the government of the United States, requires that assessment work must commence on July 1 succeeding the date of the location of claims. "On all valid existing claims the annual period ending Dec. 31, 1921, is extended to July 1, 1922." The State of California has no right whatever to pass any law in conflict with the laws of our national government, therefore the dates given are supreme.

"On Dec. 31, 1920, ex-President Wilson approved a bill which extended the period within which 1920 work might be performed to July 1, 1921, so work done on or before July 1, 1921, has the same effect as if done in 1920."

It would, therefore, probably appear, that your safe course to pursue is to begin assessment work on the claim located in April, 1921,) July 1, 1922.

Odd Wallrocks.

AMBOY, March 20.

Q.: I'm coming again, but not so strong! I am sending you four samples of ore and I think they are a mixture of metals. Will you please test them and let me know if they show any values, and what to have assayed for. R.

A.: The samples look like pretty good ore, especially those coming from the hanging and footwall. Sample No. 1 reacts for lead, zinc and antimony. No. 2 marked "Formation," analyses lead, zinc, antimony, molybdenum, and iron oxides, with traces of sulphates of metals, and trace of molybdic ochre. No. 3 marked "hanging wall," reacts for lead, zinc and antimony, and No. 4 is of the same nature as No. 2.

The specimens, tested together, give some graphite results and they are peculiar ores indeed. We did not test any of them for gold and silver, but it is probable, that you are mighty near to an interesting ledge of silver ores with more or less gold value.

Interesting Samples.

MINA (Nev.) March 20.

Q.: Kindly analyze the inclosed ores. M. D.

A.: Sample No. 1 is marked on wrapper: "This greenish ore carries but a trace of copper; what is it?" It is an ore of Bismuth known in mineralogy as Bismutite. The particular specimen is of dull mountain-green color and contains pseudomorphous, acicular (needle like) crystals. It is soluable in hydrochloric acid, affording a deep yellow solution. It melts on a burning coal; it is reduced to a metallic globule, and covers the coal with white bismuth oxide. Some ore that and like samples will probably yield eighty-five per cent bismuth oxide, with carbon dioxide and water. No. 2 is simply golden yellow, transparent opal. No. 3 is not "Strontianite." It contains no strontium whatever; it is crystallized calcite (lime carbonate) of a very odd, brownish color, and, in color resembling the "Rosin rock" (iron silicate) which occurs near Atolia, Cal. The crystals, of the sample, show up as big acicular ones. No. 4 is a low grade alunite nesting in altered rhyolite, and No. 5 is silver glance.

Doubtful.

TULARE, March 21.—Q.: I am inclosing a sample of sand which we would request your analysis for the purpose of finding out whether this sand is of any commercial value, so far as cleansing and scouring purposes, and if same could be put on the market for the above purpose. Kindly give us your conclusions. C.

A.: The sample is not strictly sand. It carries silica, with silicates of magnesium, and that of aluminum. Iron traces.

It would appear, from qualitative analysis, that the specimen has some of the properties suggested by you, but on fine metallic surfaces the product would "scratch," unless further treated. The indications are, that fuller's earth occurs near the locality.

The blunt truth is, that there are so many polishing powders occurring in nature, especially in California, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and elsewhere, that the demand is far less than the immense supplies.

WELL WILL BE SUNK AT AJO MINE.

Salt Lake Firm Bonds Property in Red Tank, Arizona, District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AJO (Ariz.) March 17.—New Cornelia is to start work at once on the sinking of another large well, about seven miles north of Ajo, this to provide the large amount of water that will be needed by the 5000-ton flotation mill, which will handle the company's sulphide ores now under development. It is expected that the greater part of the available carbonate-oxide surface ores will be worked up within a few years. Thereafter, the main production is expected to be from the sulphides, through a simple form of flotation mill. There is suggestion that a reverberatory furnace may be installed here to handle the concentrates. New Cornelia in February produced 1,459,063 pounds of copper. In January the production was 1,602,909 pounds.

Hill and Clark of Salt Lake have bonded the Lost Trail group in Red Tank District, twenty-eight miles south of Ajo, a property that has a four-foot vein, carrying values in gold, silver and copper, averaging $60 to the ton. Development mainly has been by tunnelling. Development work has been started on the Black Bess property in Gunsight district, in charge of H. H. Simpson of Detroit.

A Chicago company is to revive the old Cerro Pinto mine in Sonora, about 100 miles southwest of Ajo and twelve miles from the Gulf. The property lately was sold by the Richard Brothers of Tucson, for $30,000.

W. L. Smith is developing claims 130 miles southwest of Ajo and has assays of $300 in gold from a three-foot ledge at the depth of only eight feet.

A 50-ton mill is to be installed on the well-known Jack Rabbit property, in Casa Grande district.

NOT ENOUGH FOR TWO.

William Jennings Bryan told, in a Washington address, a story about a minister:

"The minister," he said, "knew a chap named Jenks who drank too much. Now Jenks was a fine fellow in other ways, and the minister did all he could to reform him.

"One afternoon the minister saw Jenks making straight for Hogan's saloon.

"'Jenks!' he shouted. 'Jenks!'

"But Jenks, pretending not to hear, disappeared inside the little flip-flapping yellow doors.

"The minister waited round, and after a while Jenks came out again.

"'Jenks, didn't you hear me calling you as you went in Hogan's?' the minister said, reproachfully.

"'Yes, I heard ye, sir,' Jenks apologized, 'but ye see, I only had a nickel."—[Detroit Free Press.

VERDE ORE LEVEL IS REPORTED.

Entrance to Body by Cross Cutting Expected in Short Time, Says Announcement

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

JEROME (Ariz.) March 31.—Verde Central's shaft is in ore at about eighty feet below the 650 station and the cross cutting on that level is expected to enter the ore body within a few days.

Two steam-shovel shifts are being operated on the surface work of the United Verde, adding much ore to the stockpiles, though most of the material taken out is waste. A contract for the structural steel for the United Verde crushing plant has been given the Kansas City Structural Steel Company, which did much of the erecting at the smelter.

The Verde Jerome Copper Company is a new incorporation formed in Phoenix to take over three large groups of local prospects.

Anticipating the reopening of the Humboldt smelter, a force of forty men has been placed at work on the Swansea lease in Northern Yuma County.

Mrs. J. C. Herndon has sued the United Verde Extension Company, L. E. Whicher of New York and T. G. Norris of Prescott, the last a law partner of her deceased husband, seeking return of 300 shares of extension stock, alleged to have been secured from her by mistake and through fraud.

The Palo Alto and Sunol lodes and part of the Columbia lode mining claims have been transferred by the Palo Alto Gold Mining Company to the Mineral State Mining Company, with consideration noted as $20,000.

J. R. Ackerman, manager of the Sheldon Mining Company, now is opening a new level at 650 feet, in the company's property in Walker District. The main work heretofore has been on the 443 level, where the vein, tapped ninety feet from the shaft, was found twenty-six feet wide, carrying values as high as $113 in sulphide copper, gold and silver. It is proposed to erect a mill to handle the ore, which is of character well suited to concentration.

DOUGLAS SMELTERS BUSY HANDLING ORE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) March 31. A large quantity of custom ore is being received by the two local smelters. The Night Hawk lease at Bisbee is sending down ore that samples above nine per cent copper, with several ounces of silver to the ton. From a lease on the Commonwealth at Pearce is coming ore at the rate of 2000 tons a month, as well as four carloads a day of mill tailings, all to the C. A. Smelter. Much ore is promised from the Courtland-Gleeson section where a number of leases are at work, while Tombstone shipments are heavy.

In the Santa Ritas, at Salero camp, Frank Reichert is erecting a mill bought by him at Greaterville. With the purchase went ten tons of rich silverlead concentrates, shipped by Reichert to El Paso.

At Patagonia is being piled much ore, sacked at the Mowry mine for shipment. In the same locality, the Rupert and Black mines have been equipped with modern surface plants.

During the present term of this Federal court at Tucson is to be entered formal judgment in the long-contested partnership settlement case of Smith against Hovland, lately decided by a master in chancery as calling for payment to Smith of about $1,000,000. The dispute mainly was about settlement for sales of mining property in the Bisbee and Miami sections.

A court at Ures, Sonora, has decided that Alex Strachan of Nogales is entitled to possession of the famous Dolores mine on the San Miguel River forty miles east of Carbo. Fain has been working the mine for several years past.

In the lack of sufficient employment in the mines, a grant of 10,000 pesos has come from President Obregon to the unemployed at Cananea.

There is to be vigorous operation of the Lampazas mine, 100 miles south of Nacozari, with which communication is to be by motor truck over a road now being completed.

Sale of Mine is Expected in Jerome District

JEROME, March 18.—There is general expectation that the Shea property will pass into the control of Calumet and Arizona interests. T. H. Collins of Princeton, Mass., lately made an examination of the property, which is to be unwatered below the tunnel level.

Verde Central is speeding its development work, both in sinking and in drifting on the 650-foot level, from which a cross-cut has been started through vein matter. C. Hoatson of Calumet, Mich., son of Capt. Tom Hoatson of the Calumet and Arizona, has become a member of the Verde Central staff.

Celora M. Stoddard has purchased the majority interest held by William Reynolds in the Copper Mountain property, six miles east of Mayer, near the Arizona Binghamton. This action has terminated litigation, understood to have been the cause of a suspension of work on the property for the past three years. Mr. Stoddard has stated his intention of financing the Copper Mountain property and of resuming operations.

FREIGHT ON TIMBERS FOR MINES REDUCED.

RATE ALSO CUT ON OIL FROM CALIFORNIA TO POINTS IN ARIZONA.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TUCSON, March 18.—The Arizona Eastern and Southern Pacific companies have announced substantial reductions in freight rates on fuel and crude oil and mining timbers from Pacific Coast points. The character of the cut is indicated by the Globe-Miami rates. Oil from El Segundo, Bakersfield, Coalinga and other California production points, is cut from 43 to 39 cents per 100 pounds. On mine timbers there is a reduction of about 4 cents, the new rate being 36½ cents. The rates are effective April 12 next and are limited to October 15 next.

A diamond drilling crew is being assembled by the Central Copper Company in Dos Cabesas district. The company already has done about 30,000 feet of diamond drill work in the process of development.

In Tucson the Circle A Cattle Company has secured judgment for 1,250,000 shares of stock or $125,000 against the Gold Prince Mining Company at Los Angeles.

The Hilltop mine in the Paradise district in the Chiricahua Mountains, has driven its lower tunnel over 3000 feet. In the middle tunnel the ore body is to be cut within 500 feet of added work.

WILL DRILL FOR OIL.

Nogales Company Lets Contract for Sinking of Well.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NOGALES, March 18.—The Nogales Oil and Gas Company has purchased a standard drilling rig, 3500 feet of pipe and all necessary material for the sinking a well on the company's property in the Elgin district near Patagonia. A contract, entered into with the Western Pacific Drilling Company of Los Angeles, calls for commencement of operations not later than April 1. R. E. Leslie of Los Angeles will have charge of the work. A number of other companies or associations have been formed for the purpose of drilling in this Elgin-Sonoita field, where oil seeps have been found at a number of points, and where the formation is carboniferous, with occasional narrow coal seams. Favorable indications are said to have been found also on the near-by Babacomari land grant owned by the Perrin interests.

STORAGE INCREASED IN MEXIA OIL FIELD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MEXIA (Tex.) March 30.—Figures have been compiled which show that on March 1 a total of 10,497,990 barrels of oil were in storage in the Mexia field. Since that date several hundred thousand barrels have been added, it is stated. The total production of the Mexia field up to March 1, 1922, was 16,516,848 barrels. The storage is distributed as follows:

Sinclair Pipe Line Company, 1,291,274 barrels; Humphreys Oil Company, 1,956,011; Humble Oil and Refining Company, 2,733,040; Prairie Oil and Gas Company, 1,178,567; Magnolia Petroleum Company, 1,687,566; American Petroleum Company, 252,470; Arkansas Natural Gas Company, 17,075; Atlantic Oil Production Company, 84,300; Gulf Production Company, 857,050; Houston Oil Company, 205,320; Imperial Oil Company, 52,470; Kirby Petroleum Company, 56,000; National Petroleum Company, 2050; Simms Petroleum Company, 198,600; the Texas Company, 82,260; Tidal Oil Company, 11,066; Utilities Oil and Refining Company, 99,841; U. S. Texas Petroleum Corporation, 5520; Western Oil Fields Corporation, 12,160; White Eagle Oil and Refining Company, 25,850; scattering, 94,000.

OIL WELLS STARTED.

State Supervisor Reports on Week's Operations.

Oil-field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor Collom during the week ending the 25th inst. show thirty-three new wells started, compared to twenty-six during the previous week. The total new wells this year is 294, compared to 332 the same date last year.

Tests for water shutoff number thirty-four, compared to thirty-three during the previous week. Yearly total to date, 339; total to same date last year, 345.

Deepening or redrilling jobs numbered nineteen, compared to sixteen during the preceding week. Total to date this year, 184; total to same date last year, 197.

Abandonments numbered six, compared to eight during the preceding week. Total to this date this year, seventy-five; total to same date last year, fifty-six.

PRODUCTION AT BEACH CLIMBS.

New Wells Coming in at Surprising Rate.

United Oil Heads Long Beach Output.

Richfield is Scheduled for Increase.

BY ELLWOOD J. MUNGER.

Huntington Beach production continues climbing. New wells are coming in at the rate of two and three every week, and now the daily average is up close to 20,000 barrels. A year ago the pessimists were saying that Huntington would not make a field, and that it would only yield a small short-lived wells. Production increase for the past month have averaged almost 1000 barrels a week. Ten wells were completed in during March, the initial being 250 barrels, the other wells running up to 1000. A few days after the Shell Company of California became the owner of the Union Oil Company of Delaware's holdings a 1000-barrel well was brought in on the Bolsa lease. Ashton No. 2, completed at 2912, came in at 1200 barrels and settled to 1000 barrels. The big well is producing 30 gravity oil.

The Golden Dome Oil Company will resume drilling in a few days. Drilling was stopped at 3007 feet while preparations made to put the well on production. As only a few feet of oil sand had been drilled through, it was thought best to complete the well before the final production. The Golden Dome has been financed by Frank C. Hanley, a pioneer of the Huntington Beach field, and a believer in Santa Fe Springs for almost a decade.

ROTARY IS DRILLING.

Ed Anderson has taken hold of the Edens Syndicate and Huntington Signal in a manner that insures immediate results. The rotary is drilling the Edens Syndicate deeper and a string of six-inch casing that will shut off the water in the Huntington Signal has already been set. Anderson has directed the development work of the Selby-Rains Oil Company at Richfield and brought in some of the big producers of the field. Stockholders in the Edens Syndicate and Huntington Signal are fortunate in having their interests fall into the hands of Ned Anderson.

Ramon Guasti, the wine-grape grower of San Bernardino county, has put into the oil business at Huntington Beach. Senor Guasti has taken over the Huntington Beach lease well and will put it on production. Guasti has been heavily interested in this well from the beginning and takes it over to protect his interests. It is understood that Guasti is also heavily interested in the United Security syndicate and may take that over and put it on production.

The Interstate Oil Company has gone into Huntington Beach with the intention of developing the properties of the Bolsa Chica and the Del Mar companies and putting these two companies on a dividend basis. In the taking over of the Vista Del Mar the Interstate assumes heavy drilling obligations. The Interstate has the capital and the equipment to do the work and the Bolsa Chica and Vista Del Mar will have production inside of three months.

OPERATING IN PRIVATE.

J. W. Jameson's work as a private operator at Huntington Beach is beginning to attract attention. Jameson leased property several months ago in the northeast side of the field that was not looked upon much favor. The Rio Bravo No. 1 proves Jameson's judgment. Jameson has one well producing, one near the oil sands, one rigging up and fourth well building rig. Jameson's No. 4 is located south of the Petroleum Midway's big well, Towers No. 1, and should be one of the best in the field.

The Standard Oil Company has started the week at Huntington with starting four new wells. The new wells are Huntington A-16, A-11 and Bolsa 7. The Standard Oil Company has some twenty wells drilling. The new wells are located in every part of the Huntington Beach field and the work is not only proving up properties for the Standard, but for other producing companies as well.

Rideout is scheduled for a big increase of new production with the completion of the Amalgamated Oil Company's Kammerer No. 1 and the Merchants' Petroleum No. 1. The Amalgamated's Kammerer was drilled through some 1400 feet of oil sand and is scheduled to make a 500-barrel well. The Merchants' Petroleum No. 3, completed at 3448 feet, started off at 1000 barrels. The Keck Drilling Company did the drilling for the Merchants' Petroleum Company. The work in four months to a day is making a record for Richfield development. The Merchants' Petroleum Company was one year old in drilling their first well. The success of the Keck Drilling Company proves the advisability of a producing company contracting its work to a developer with the tools and the experience to get wells down and on production in the shortest possible time.

LONG HOLDING RECORD.

The Union Oil Company's famous well No. 8 is holding its record as the biggest producer in the field. For the past week the producer has averaged 4600 barrels. The well shows no inclination to decline or even fluctuate on production. Drilled to 3100 feet, this well is the greatest producer ever brought in in the Richfield district.

The Union's next big well at Rideout will be Chapman No. 11. Drilled to 4320, just 20 feet shallower than Morse No. 8, the Chapman well is showing more gas and is more like a gusher than any well ever looked. Chapman 11 will no doubt come in a 5000-barrel well.

A deal for the Whitley Oil Company's holdings at Rideout and Whittier, did not go through. The Universal Oil Company had practically arranged all details for the taking over and financing of the Whitley interests when the matter of taking care of a large number of small stockholders came up. No agreement could be reached on this matter and the deal fell through. It is understood, however, that another company has the Whitley Company under consideration, and a deal may be put through in the near future. In the meantime, the Whitley Oil Company is taking care of its four producing wells and going ahead with preparations to put No. 5 on production.

SHALES LOOK GOOD.

The La Habra Midway's wildcat well, drilling north of La Habra, continues to attact no small amount of attention. At 2260 the shales showed considerable oil and some gas. These showings continue and at 2670 are stronger than at any depth before. There is some possibility it seems now of getting production around the 3000-foot mark. The showings so far have been in shale only. The ditch is being watched eagerly for an oil sand.

All hope for Garden Grove getting on the petroleum map of Southern California has been abandoned. The Standard's Chaffee well is now at 5515 and is not looking any more like an oil well than it did when the rig builders started laying the foundation for the rig. No production has ever been found in the southern field below the 5500 mark, and there is little hope of Garden Grove proving the exception. At Buena Park the Standard is making splendid progress drilling on the Mitchell well. The Mitchell well is not deep enough to warrant any comment or deductions as yet.

SANTA FE SPRINGS?

What are we going to get at Santa Fe Springs? That is the question that operators both big and small are asking about the field that a few months ago looked like a second Elk Hills. Some oil men are saying that it is going to be a one-well field, others say that the sands are being passed up, and others are saying that a lot of dry holes are going to be drilled. Santa Fe Springs will come out all right. Like every new field discovered, certain things have to be determined before successful development can hope to be accomplished. Huntington Beach and Long Beach passed through the same period of uncertainty and discouragement now facing Santa Fe Springs. A field that has produced the biggest high gravity well in the West, the Union's Bell No. 1, is certainly capable of producing more wells like it.

The Amalgamated Oil Company will show the doubters something about Santa Fe Springs when Dellugge No. 1 goes on production. This well at 3900 showed up better than any of the wells so far drilling in the field and will make a second Bell.

The General Petroleum's Springs No. 1 showed plenty of oil at 2900 feet but carried too much water to make a good producer. This water is to be shut off and a big well brought in just across the street from the Union's Bell gusher.

The Standard Oil Company has three wells on the eve of production all of which have shown the necessary evidence of being all than can be expected. The Brown-Kellar rig at 4700 looks very good. Hapler No. 1 looks like a well at 3745. The Wolfskill is showing lots of oil at 4400, and the South Whittier Community is looking very promising at 3900. Sanches No. 1 had a nice showing at 4128, where the 6 1-4 was set.

Drilling at Bellmont on the B. & M.'s No. 1 has passed the 4100 mark. The outlook for a well is still hopeful. At 3930 a couple of feet of oil sand was drilled through that showed up rather good. Drilling is now in tough brown shale.

The way some of the Long Beach producers are increasing their production is nothing short of a marvel. Wells on top of the hill and over on the west side have a regular habit of increasing their output gradually after being put on. The marvelous increase of production of two wells has put the United Oil Company, a comparatively unheard of company of Southern California, at the head of the list of Signal Hill producers. The United Oil Company has three wells producing an aggregate of 2800 barrels. The greatest individual showing has been made by Dennl No. 2. This well came in three weeks ago at 650 barrels. The production yesterday figured 1885 barrels. Jones No. 1 came in at 900 barrels. This well is now doing 1100 and has been up as high as 1300. Dennl No. 1 is the small producer of the group. It is making 170.

The Shell Company's Horsch sprung a surprise by increasing its production from 1580 to 1580.

The Henderson Petroleum Company's Lekas No. 1 has raised its production from 460 to 525 barrels.

A few days ago a report came from Playa Del Rey that Kitselman had abandoned his 2800-foot test well. Such is not the case.

SPRINGS SPELL IS BROKEN.

Amalgamated Operations in Record Time Now Focus Attention Upon Field.

The Amalgamated Oil Company has broken the spell at Santa Fe Springs by bringing in a 4000-barrel well. Immediately after the Union Oil Company brought in the big Bell gusher the "big five" rushed into Santa Fe Springs, leased all the available territory and began drilling. Some fifty wells got under way, more than a million dollars was put into the field, four months passed and the most skilled operators failed to duplicate the Bell well.

To the Amalgamated Oil Company is given the honor of duplicating the Union's big Bell producer and restoring confidence to the Santa Fe Springs field. The advent of the big well puts the Amalgamated Oil Company at the head of the list of producers and puts to rout any and all ideas that the Santa Fe Springs field is a one-well field or freak field.

For speed, team work and efficiency the Amalgamated's Dellugge well stands as a masterpiece in petroleum development. The lease papers were signed November 17, last. Drilling started December 11. Just twenty-four days after the lease papers were signed the Amalgamated built the rig, set up the boilers, laid the pipe lines and spudded in on the well. March 29 the well was completed and became a 4000-barrel producer. Between the dates of December 11 and March 29 the well stood cemented forty days. Four strings of casing, 15⅝, 10, 8¾ and 6¼-inch, were set and cemented. This leaves sixty-eight days for the actual drilling time. The setting of four strings of pipe and carrying a well to 3950 feet sets an enviable record for Santa Fe Spring and is one of the best ever made in Southern California.

The speed of the drilling work is all the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that from 3597 to 3950-core barrel samples were taken every ten and fifteen feet. By doing this careful core barrel work the Amalgamated Oil Company pioneered the field and proved for the operators just what had to be done in this particular section of the field to bring in a big well. All the time the 450 feet of core barrel work was being done the company's geologist remained at the well and gave the work his personal attention. This careful work out down the speed of hole making, and made the well cost more money, but it made the work absolutely free from any guessing or hoping and it made one of Southern California's biggest producers.

The big well is now the second largest producer of high gravity oil in California. Dellugge No. 1 is producing 4000 barrels of 27.8 gravity oil so free from sand, water or any foreign matter that the closest tests fail to find a grain of sand or globule of water. The oil sand was struck at 3917, and the well was drilled only thirty feet into the sand. The advent of Dellugge No. 1 more than doubles the daily output of the Amalgamated Oil Company and gives it a production of 10,000 barrels. A year and a half ago the Amalgamated was producing but 2500 barrels of oil daily. The tremendous increase of production has had its effect on the stocks of the company and given it an enviable place among the producers of petroleum in Southern California.

PERMIT FOR POWER DAM IS EXPECTED

Mining Men Reported to be Backing the Diamond Creek Project.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX, March 31. — Gen. John C. Greenway, manager of the Calumet and Arizona mines, states that he expects favorable action within a few weeks on an application made by himself and associates for authority to build a dam and hydroelectric works in the Colorado River channel, near the mouth of Diamond Creek, north of Peach Springs. Already there has been official recognition of the rights of this project, Gen. Greenway says, and he claims this the only recognition that has been given to any project on the Colorado River by the national government or the National Power Commission. The enterprise is one on which J. B. Girand, a Phoenix engineer, has been working for years, and in which he has enlisted the support of Gen. Greenway, Dr. L. D. Ricketts and a number of Arizona mining corporations. The site is near the end of the Grand Canyon proper, yet understood to be above any interference with the government's Boulder Canyon plans, unless the lower dam exceeds 650-foot height. While no water storage is contemplated, there would be a degree of flood retention that at times might be of value to the agricultural lands below.

It is insisted that the Diamond Creek project in no wise could be considered detrimental to either the Glen Canyon or Boulder Canyon schemes, except insofar as it would occupy an electric supply field that is hoped to be a source of revenue to both the upper and lower projects. Mr. Girand is understood to be ready to proceed with his work at once, with ample financial backing. The dam would not be of great height and might be constructed and its power utilized before start was made upon the foundation of either of the other and larger projects.

In this connection, acts passed by the special session of the Arizona Legislature give authority for extension of the hydroelectric operations of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association. It is told that support of mining companies has been obtained for very important work on Salt River, the funds so advanced to be returned by the association in the form of electric current. Plans have been made for a power and flood equalization dam at Mormon Flat, about forty miles east of Phoenix. Another dam is projected near the mouth of Fish Creek, further upstream, for possible utilization of water power plans made by Engineer W. H. Code of the Indian Bureau of the Interior Department, many years ago. This plan provides for tunneling across a point of land that causes a great bend in the river. There also is mention of possible raising of the height of the storage dam at Roosevelt, where already about 12,000 kilowatts of electrical energy are generated. Construction of the Mormon Flat dam also may be aided from the proceeds of $2,000,000 in bonds voted by the Eastern Auxiliary Canal Company, which is planning for the reclamation of 40,000 acres of land east of Mesa, above the gravity flow of the present canal system.

DRILL TO START IN ELGIN-SONOITA FIELD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) April 2.—A drilling plant is being moved from near Bowie, Ariz., to the Elgin-Sonoita field, where there is expectation of finding petroleum in commercial quantities within a depth of 2000 feet. The rig has been purchased by the Nogales Oil and Gas Company, which has awarded a sinking contract to the Western Pacific Drilling Company, represented by R. E. Leslie and E. R. Cady.

A material enlargement of the possible oil area in Southern Arizona is indicated by leases signed on a large acreage in the San Rafael Valley, with a provision for voiding if work is not started by November. This field is not far from the Elgin-Sonoita field and the surface indications are said to be similar.

GERMAN PRICES NEARING LIMIT.

Most Commodities Approach World Level.

Believed Days of Hectic Prosperity Ended.

Industries Will Soon Have No Real Advantage.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, April 2.—With the storm caused by the arrival of the Allied Reparations Commission's note on Germany's moratorium application subsiding into a state of calm, and with the renewed hope that Genoa after all may bring Germany some sort of substantial international loan, the close of the week saw a considerable weakening in foreign exchange on the Berlin Bourse.

At the moment of writing, the mark has recovered the ground lost during the past week and is being quoted at 292 to the dollar. Business on the bourse again has assumed a more or less calm aspect, although accompanied by a distinct reserve arising out of the uncertainty of impending developments, particularly the Dubois threats in Paris regarding the application for new military sanctions in the event Germany refuses to meet the conditions of the Reparations Commission.

APPROACHING WORLD LEVEL.

While the fate of German exchange remains uncertain, additional evidence is piling up showing that German prices are rapidly approaching the world level. This is noticeable particularly in coal, iron, steel, grain and flour. They are now but slightly below the American scale.

Imported articles already have reached that level. If this process continues, the 300,000 Americans business men and travelers expected here this summer will no longer find Germany a fairyland of prices.

Wheat, for example, is selling on the Berlin Produce Exchange at $1.42 a bushel, rye at $1.02 and wheat flour at $5.77 a barrel. Prices of other produce articles have undergone similar changes. The price increase has been emphasized particularly within the past few weeks, wheat flour, rye and coal showing advances of more than 60 per cent. With the bread subsidies eliminated from the budget by the government, the rising price of bread threatens to produce extremely unpleasant consequences.

PRICES INCREASING.

Clothing prices have increased more than 100 per cent, while furs and many articles are above the American figures. The large increases in iron and steel prices set by German iron syndicates are already having a corresponding effect on the cost of production. Pig iron is now quoted at nearly $ a ton, representing an advance of 25 per cent. Foundry pig iron is selling at close to $20 a ton.

Other kinds of iron are quoted at similar figures. Rolled iron products have been boosted nearly 30 per cent. These are now quoted at $30 a ton, with manufacturers planning to abolish fixed prices and insisting on figures prevailing at the time of delivery.

Thus the ability of German industries to continue their hitherto successful competition in foreign markets is rapidly reaching the vanishing point, for they are compelled to absorb the large increases in the price of raw materials, buy coal at world prices and pay freight rates at actual cost instead of at the special rates existing hitherto.

Under such conditions, German industries are approaching the end of their hectic prosperity which has marked their activities of the past few years. The rise in prices and the prospect of new low levels for the mark place German industries before their most serious problems since the Armistice.

DIAMOND DRILLING IS BEGUN.

Oatman Companies Expect to Get Missing Values in Rhyolite Flanking Quartz.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OATMAN (Ariz.) March 31.—The Tom Reed at last has started upon the milling of United American ores, the daily shipments of twenty-five tons, averaging $60 a ton in gold. This ore is coming from a stope on the 700 level, where a four and one-half-foot lens is being followed. The same ore is believed to have been opened on the 500 and 850 levels, above and below the present workings. Within a few days there will be milling of twenty-five tons a day of ores from the Telluride bins, with assays running from $22 to $100 a ton.

About twenty local companies now are diamond drilling or have taken steps in that direction, nearly all of them with an idea they have been missing values that are likely to exist in the rhyolite that flanks each quartz vein. Oatman Gold has contracted for sinking of a large shaft, to cut its vein matter about 200 feet, and has added heavy surface machinery. Oatman United is to drill an air hole to its 600 level and then will upraise on this line, to block out its ore. Manager George Keating of the Black Range has returned from Los Angeles and will start two drills at once. Big Jim Consolidated is drilling 600 feet to a vein-dyke junction where value is expected. Oatman Amalgamated has bought a drill and has placed its mechanical plant in order. Other drills are operating on the Tom Reed Red Cloud, United Eastern No. 3 shaft, Merry Widow, San Francisco United Western and Gold Dust properties.

The equipment of the Golden Star Mine at Mineral Park is being moved to the Dardanelles property at Chloride, where it is being installed by E. Ford Eaton.

CALLS OUR FARES LOWEST.

Rail Commission Submits Comparative Rate Exhibit in Hollywood Case.

Street-car fares in California cities are virtually, without exception, the lowest in the United States, says the State Railroad Commission in an exhibit submitted yesterday in the Hollywood rehearing of the Pacific Electric case.

The exhibit was compiled by the engineering department of the commission from information received in response to a questionnaire sent to 100 of the principal electric railways in America and constitutes the latest official compilation on the subject, it is stated. The questionnaire requested information as to present rates of fare, reduced-rate tickets, transfer privileges, length of ride possible and other more technical information.

Referring to California fares, the report says:

"With few exceptions, the street railway fares in California cities are either 5 or 6 cents and the maximum possible length of ride for unit fare, with transfer, compares favorably with similar cities in other parts of the country. It is to be noted that in the cities of Pomona, Redlands, Riverside and Santa Cruz with a 10-cent cash fare and Santa Barbara with an 8-cent cash fare, an endeavor has been made to enable the continued operation of street railway service by increasing fares approximately to their economic maximum. These communities are faced with the possibility of abandonment of street railway service on account of operating losses due to automobile competition and other causes and the present fares may be considered somewhat in the nature of an experiment. In all cases in California where a 10-cent cash fare obtains, it was a question either of discontinuing service entirely or collecting the maximum fare, and the cities chose the latter alternative.

LIKE TO RIDE HERE.

In Los Angeles the average length of ride on the Pacific Electric is found to be five miles, as against an average ride of about one and one-half miles in San Francisco. On the Pacific Electric system in Los Angeles city, on account of the passenger-riding characteristic, it was found necessary to establish two zones. Each zone fare is 6 cents, with a 10-cent through fare. These recently established fares are now under further consideration on rehearing.

Of the seventy-nine cities from which data had been received when the compilation of the commission's report was closed, twelve have a 10-cent fare, one a 9-cent fare, fifteen an 8-cent fare, thirty a 7-cent fare, twelve a 6-cent fare and nine a 5-cent fare. Most of the cities reporting, especially those having the higher cash fares, allow a discount on the purchase of tickets or tokens in quantity. In a number of cases an additional charge is made for transfers.

The only cities, outside of California, reporting a 5-cent fare are Detroit, which makes a 1-cent charge for transfers and New York. In the case of New York, the Transit Commission of the State of New York reports that the deficit of the Rapid Transit amounts to about 1 cent a passenger, paid through taxation. The universal transfer system between companies practically has been discontinued, in effect raising fare to 10 cents to intercompany passengers.

ADOPT ZONES.

A number of the cities have adopted zones, Pittsfield, Mass., has zones of approximately two miles with a 6-cent fare in each. Boston has eight local zones, ranging from one and one-half to three miles. Winsookie, Vt., has two zones of two and one-half miles each, with a 5-cent fare in each zone. Springfield, Mass., has two zones, with a 7-cent fare in each. Eleven tickets are sold for $1, good between the inner zone and any point in the outer zone. Providence has a system comprising a series of 6-cent zones, with no production for interzone travel. Baltimore has in addition to an inner zone of ten miles four zones of two and one-half to five miles in length, with a 7-cent fare in each. There are also some 4-cent transfer points to what is in effect additional zones.

The maximum length of ride possible for a unit fare varies greatly according to the different cities, from approximately two miles in smaller towns, to a maximum of thirty-four miles in Chicago. In Los Angeles the maximum distance on the Los Angeles Railway is 26-49 miles, and 19.10 on the Pacific Electric, or 16.74 including the two zones. The greatest ride obtainable in San Francisco on one fare in 13.45 miles on the Municipal and 19.80 on the Market Street Railway.

EXPLAINS BURDENS.

Electric Railway Expert Says Franchises Are Too Short.

Present franchise obligations of electric railways of this State are burdensome to the extent of being the cause of financial distress for the carriers, W. V. Hill, manager of the California Electric Railways Association, said yesterday. Future franchises will be assumed only under much different conditions than those assumed by the industry in the past, he said.

"In the larger cities of this State, with the exception of Oakland," he said, "franchises are limited from twenty to twenty-five years. In San Francisco the city reserves the right to take over the property without payment therefor and has taken over some of the lines and paralleled others.

"In Los Angeles, the city agrees to pay for the property if it desires to take it over at the expiration date. But little business sagacity is required to appreciate the difficulty of financing a property on forty or fifty-year bonds with franchises that run about one-half the life of your bonds, further endangered by business

THREE FACTORS WORRY FRANCE.

Greco - Turkish Peace is Cause of Anxiety.

Discuss Russian Stand on Debt Payment.

Finance Minister Insists That Germany Pay.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, April 2.—There are three points at issue in France which are causing considerable public anxiety. The first is the Greco-Turk peace, the second is Russia's attitude toward the 4,500,000,000 gold francs due France, the third and most important is the international attitude toward a revision of the reparations system. In the first instance a temporary armistice seems imminent, while a deadlock with Russia on the debt subject would not leave France any worse off for the next few years as she is largely occupied with her own reparations problem as well as with the development of the little entente, which is growing rapidly under her auspices.

Confidence has been strengthened by news that the little entente, through Dr. Benes, has guaranteed to support the execution of the treaties. The rich neutrals, Holland, Spain and Scandinavia, will also exert a powerful influence due to their united action.

In the face of uncertainty in regard to the alignment of the remaining powers, confidence is felt here that a majority will sanction guarantees in the event of the Reichstag's refusal or inability to remedy Germany's financial situation which has been characterised since the armistice by chronic deficits even in internal expenditures.

INSISTS GERMANY PAY.

Finance Minister De Lasteyrie of France insists that Germany pay now through mobilization of her industries and by means of a loan based on the earning power of her great industries such as coal mines, Ruhr factories, and customs, all of which should be subjected to Allied supervision. This plan, he says, would also aid the stabilization of the mark, since the amount of foreign currency bought outside would be lessened.

The French chamber is virtually unanimous in maintaining that the reconstruction of Europe must be concurrent with the settlement of the reparations problem and not precedent to it. France's financial plans for the year call for the consolidation of some 20,000,000,000 francs of floating obligations. Preliminary steps have taken the form of lowered rates on treasury bills, and next month war loans will be liberated from certain restrictions. A reduction of the discount rate of the Bank of France is imminent.

New taxes will not be attempted and all inflation has been eliminated from the government program. The enforced policy of continued borrowings has depressed the stock market with the result that stock averages are near the pre-war level, which makes the value about 45 per cent on a gold basis, while dividends have been reduced in greater proportion through taxes and business stagnation.

REAL ESTATE SUFFERS.

Real estate has suffered similar difficulties through the moratorium and other government regulations so that building has been discouraged in the cities. Net revenues from rents are practically wiped out by communal and State taxation in the urban centers, although land in the rural districts has increased enough in value to compensate for the depreciation of the franc. Before the war 3 per cent was considered a satisfactory return on an apartment house, but now 7 or 8 per cent is necessary in order to meet tax levies.

The government's 3 per cent perpetuals have paid coupons at the 3 per cent rate since 1903 although their capital value has shrunk since before the war from 90 francs gold to 57 francs paper. The conclusion seems to be that while all forms of property suffered a share in the war costs, government securities, because they are virtually tax exempt, have been more highly favored than other forms of wealth.

BOLD LEADER NEEDED IN GRAIN MARKETS.

NERVOUS FEELING IN TRADE WITH NO DECIDED TREND IN VALUES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, April 2.—The grain markets are without a leader, and the largest traders say that until there is a bold and aggressive one to assume either side, and something new to create increased outside interest in the markets, a nervous feeling with no decided trend to values is to be expected.

Last week witnessed a weak and lower start, followed by an advance of 8 cents in wheat on covering of a very large line by a New York short. In two days after that buying ceased prices were off 6 cents, and the trade was mostly bearish.

Two important factors in the trade at present are the crop news, and the export and milling demand. Crop news is mixed and is not expected to be a significant factor as a price maker for several weeks by those who know the real conditions and are not influenced by the general run of reports as they come into the trade from various sections. It is regarded as too early to determine what the winter wheat in Kansas and Oklahoma will do that had failed to germinate up to the middle of March.

Green bugs are in Oklahoma and may be a market influence should they seriously damage winter wheat.

The trade had the Snow and Goodman crop reports on Friday, the former with its estimate of 530,000,000 bushels, compared with 621,000,000 bushels in April of last year, and 587,000,000 bushels harvested. The condition was 77.7, against 78 in December. Goodman's estimate is 550,000,000 bushels based on the average abandonment of 10.3 per cent equal to 4,500,000 acres. The condition is 78.5.

Wheat traders of the world are agreed that there is no burdensome surplus of supplies, as estimates range from 32,000,000 to 50,000,000 bushels.

As to the actual conditions surrounding the wheat situation of the world, there has been little change except that it begins to look as though the big rush of wheat from Argentina and Australia is over, and that shipments are to be of more moderate volume.

CORNELIA COMPANY TO ADD TO PLANTS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AJO (Ariz.) April 3.—There is much evidence that the New Cornelia Company considers the present not too early to start on its great program of plant additions. Since its formation the company's copper production, save for ores shipped to Douglas, has been from the oxide-carbonate ores of the property, lying at shallow depth and handled by steam shovels. But below these ores and also at other local points lies a vast store of sulphide ore similar to that handled by such mines as the Ray or Inspiration. To make available these ores there is to be construction of a mill of about 5000 tons daily capacity, somewhat larger than the new Phelps-Dodge mill near Bisbee, yet only half the capacity of the Ray mill at Hayden. An experimental mill has demonstrated the proper mill methods, by flotation, and the plans for the new works are said to be ready. An additional water supply is to be secured from additional wells now being sunk. There has been exploration by shafts and drifting of an immense ore supply and the steam shovels are reported to have worked downward even into the sulphide zone of the older claims.

Copper Ridge, which adjoins the Ajo Consolidated property of the New Cornelia, and which formerly was known as the Ajo-Cornelia, has resumed work on development that already is reported to have 1½ per cent copper ore in the bottom of the deepest shaft and which has shipped carloads from other points on its claims that ran up to 28 per cent copper, $2 in gold and 12 ounces silver. President Fred Steele declares: "If there is another mine in the Ajo district, we have it."

Galena ore running up to 70 per cent lead, with over forty ounces silver to the ton, has been found at only ten feet of depth in the Moore & Cates property in the Jack Rabbit section, east of Ajo. A sample carload is being taken out for shipment to El Paso.

A 100-ton Huntington ball mill is being installed on the Black Bess mine in the Gunsight district by a Detroit company. J. J. Sullivan is in charge. Transportation to the railroad is via Ajo by heavy motor truck.
